LOUIS BEATS BAER: KNOCKOUT

1½ CENTS A TON KEEPS 400,000 COAL MINERS OUT

Parley Ends 2d Day Still Deadlocked.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—A disagreement over 1½ cents in wage scales continued tonight to keep approximately 400,000 bituminous coal miners on strike.

After futile meetings this morning and again this afternoon, a special negotiating committee of two mine owners and two union officials met again at 8 o'clock tonight for further discussions. Rumors spread that the wage dispute had been virtually settled but that some new disagreement, precipitated by the mine owners, was prolonging the negotiations into the night.

At 11 p. m., the conferees disbanded, agreeing to meet again at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. They refused to discuss the reason for their continued disagreement.

Nerves, frayed by days of continual bickering, were beginning to snap, but in the face of an ultimatum from John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, government mediators continued to look for an early settlement. The threat of New Deal financing of the strike by putting all needy strikers on relief rolls hung over the mine owners as negotiations dragged on.

Lewis Says It's Last Word.

Lewis' explosion came after a futile morning session of the subcommittee had mulled over the 1½ cent wage differential without success. The mine owners had offered 7½ cents a ton for cutting and loading soft coal, and Lewis replied that 9 cents was "the last word" as far as the union was concerned.

"As far as we are concerned, they can take it or leave it," Lewis snapped. "These mutual admiration sessions are beginning to wear out as far as we are concerned."

Lewis declared that the negotiating committee of four was merely indulging in a "thumb-twiddling talkfest." He demanded that the operators either accept or reject the union's offer of 9 cents per ton and that the negotiations end.

Despite Lewis' belligerent talk, Secretary of Labor Perkins said she had "a feeling of optimism about the ultimate outcome." She declined, however, to explain the basis for her cheerfulness or to predict when the settlement might come.

McGrady Loses Exuberance.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward McGrady, President Roosevelt's representative at the negotiations, had lost some of his optimism as he sat slouched in an anteroom outside of the chamber in which the negotiating committee of four was at work.

The negotiations were being carried on by Charles O'Neill, representing central Pennsylvania operators; L. T. Putman, West Virginia mine owner; Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, and Van Bitner, president of the union in West Virginia.

McGrady declared again today that Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins had assured him that miners who refused to work and their dependents, numbering about 1,200,000, would be put on relief rolls if necessary. The relief administration confirmed this statement in a lukewarm manner, saying that strikers in need were always put on relief rolls unless the labor department held the strike unwaranted. McGrady, himself a former official of the American Federation of Labor, does not hold the strike unwaranted.

Contrast with Relief Strikers.

The New Deal attitude toward coal mine strikers was in marked contrast to the treatment meted out to unemployed persons who struck against the New Deal's work relief wages. They were denied direct relief when they refused work at wages lower than those being protested by the miners.

By assuring miners and their dependents of food, clothing, and shelter, the New Dealers were, in effect, underwriting the strike, it was held.

200 Chinese Troops Die as Train Plunges Into Canyon

SHANGHAI, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Two hundred Chinese soldiers were killed and an equal number injured today when a crowded troop train plunged from the rails into a mountain canyon near Loyang, Honan province. The troops were being rushed to Shensi over the Lunghai railway for anti-communist operations.

RIGHT TO JAW IN 4TH ROUND ENDS BATTLE

84,831 Watch Bout; Pay $932,944.

Photographs of the Louis-Baer fight, wired from New York to The Tribune, appear on back page.

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 24.—Dour faced Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber of Chicago Golden Gloves, tonight established himself as the leading challenger for the world's heavyweight championship by knocking out Max Baer, former titleholder, in the fourth round of a scheduled 15-round fight at Yankee stadium.

There was no question about the ultimate winner after the first exchange of blows. Baer, who never in his career had been knocked off his feet, was floored twice in the third round, once for a count of nine and again for three. The bell saved him the second time.

Louis prepared the way for the finish in the fourth round with a vicious attack to the stomach. When Baer lowered his guard Louis lifted his assault to the head.

Right to Jaw Ends It.

Soon came the lethal wallop, a right to the jaw. Full on the nerve center known to pugilism as the button, it landed with a crack like that of a firecracker exploding under a can. Baer's knees sagged. He did not stagger back as he might have done from a less deadly blow. He started to sink slowly, but all the more certainly, for his final descent. His eyes lost their sprightliness. His forced smile, caught on his face, became a frozen grin.

Through all this, the fleeting action of a second, a low rumble had started, the distant thunder of the gallery gods heralding a storm. It came on, outstripping any electrical eruption for speed, swelling into a wild roar as tier after tier of maddened humans caught it up until it broke in all its fury over the gleaming square where that tense ring drama was unfolding.

Eighty-five thousand persons, gone suddenly mad with excitement, were desperately yelling encouragement to the sinking Baer or shouting cheer to the attacking Louis, all individuality lost in one hoarse, guttural rumble, as the shrill barks of many field pieces far off may be mistaken for the tremendous belching of one giant gun. It was bedlam, nothing less, as that tableau was hewn in gleaming marble against the blackness of the night. All this in whatever fraction of time the eye requires to record a flash.

Donovan Counts Him Out.

Here was the instant for which Louis had dreamed. A former champion of the world in collapse at his feet. Baer never was completely stretched out. He sank to his knees and remained in that position while Referee Arthur Donovan barked out the ten counts that sent Baer to fistic oblivion.

It appeared from our point of observation that Baer might have climbed to his feet. He obviously had taken all the punishment he wanted. Baer, bleeding profusely at the nose, looked like an Apache in full war paint as he left the ring. As he went down the aile to his dressing room he was booed by fans who felt, perhaps unjustly, that he had shown a streak of saffron.

Married Before Bout.

Louis meanwhile was posing this way and that way for cameramen without once changing the sphinxlike expression on his face. For him it obviously was just another victory. He came through the battle without a scratch, and was eager to join his bride of a few hours, Marva Trotter of Chicago, whom he married before going to the stadium.

The official paid attendance was 84,831. The gross receipts were $932,944 and the net $805,725. This was the largest crowd that has seen a boxing match in New York, and it ranks sixth in receipts among the

F. D. COUNTISS SUES WHITING FOR $5,662 FUND

Judge John F. O'Connell in probate court yesterday set Oct. 2 for a hearing on a petition filed in behalf of Frederick D. Countiss Jr., 1524 Lake Shore drive, asking that Lawrence H. Whiting, his stepfather and guardian, be compelled to turn over $5,662 which he alleges is due him from the estate of his father.

The elder Countiss died in 1926. He was divorced in February, 1925, by Mrs. Eleanor Robinson Countiss, who in April of the same year married Whiting. Mrs. Whiting died in 1931.

The petition filed yesterday by the law firm of Swigart & Hurley declares that Countiss has demanded the money from Whiting, but that the stepfather has refused to give it to him. The bill points out that Countiss became of legal age on Aug. 10.

ROCKEFELLER JR., EDSEL FORD BACK 'SOUND' DRINKING

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Backed by John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Edsel B. Ford, an educational campaign against excessive drinking among the American people will be conducted by the recently organized Council for Moderation, Inc., it was announced today by Everett Colby, president of the organization.

Mr. Colby made public a letter from Mr. Rockefeller following a conference between Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Ford regarding the aims of the council. The letter read:

"We both feel that the approach of your organization to this educational program is wise, sound, and timely, and that it gives the best promise of any organization in the field of which we know."

FIVE MILLION FIRE DESTROYS SYDNEY MART

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 25.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—The greatest fire in the city's history raged in Darling harbor this morning, destroying the Goldsborough Mart wool stores with damage amounting to more than 1,000,000 pounds sterling [about 5 million dollars].

Plains, Mont., Sept. 24.—(AP)—E. C. Major of Perma, Mont., died early today. He was struck by sheep hurled through the air by a railroad locomotive. His flock that he had driven across the track last night became nervous and started back. The engine plowed into the flock. The flying bodies of several animals struck Major.

Lindy Inspects 700 Mile Per Hour Rocket

Roswell, N. M., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who mixes science with aviation, and Harry F. Guggenheim, the financier, today gave the outside world a hint of the importance of experiments which may send rockets into the stratosphere at super-speeds.

Tests at the desert laboratory of Dr. Robert H. Goddard brought Guggenheim's announcement that the Guggenheim foundation would pour more funds into the enterprise.

The "important" problem of automatic stabilization of rockets in vertical flight already has been solved, it was stated authoritatively, and projectiles have been fired in preliminary work at speeds approximating 700 miles an hour.

Maintains Vertical Flight.

Dr. Goddard explained the success of numerous tests in which vertical flight of the rocket had been maintained by a gyroscope.

Renewed aid of the foundation assured Dr. Goddard that now he may set out upon his prime objective: to send the rockets, propelled by liquid oxygen and gasoline, into the outer space with recording instruments for stratospheric data of significant value to aviation and meteorology.

With his rockets he hopes to pierce the stratosphere in regions more than 30 miles high, so imperative to science, where electrical phenomena including ionization and the reflection of radio waves occurs.

Astronomical photography without the interference of the earth's atmosphere would be another prized objective.

Museum Head Hails Work.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Dr. C. G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, today hailed the success of Dr. Robert H. Goddard's rocket flight tests at Roswell, N. M., as a significant advance for many fields of science.

WIFE FILES SUIT IN WEST AGAINST JOHN A. FARWELL

Mrs. Loretta E. Farwell of the Edgewater Beach hotel, who has had a separate maintenance suit on file in Circuit court here for sixteen years, yesterday instituted a new separate action against her husband, John Arthur Farwell, capitalist, sportsman, and member of an old Chicago family who now lives in Beverly Hills, Cal.

The new action was filed in Los Angeles, according to her attorney, O. John Rogge. This was done, he explained, because of the recent action of the Illinois legislature in outlawing separate maintenance after two years.

Mrs. Farwell's desire for separate maintenance rather than a divorce, Rogge said, is due to a provision in the will of her husband's mother, the late Mrs. Ava W. Farwell, giving the widow of John Arthur Farwell $5,000 a year. The mother's estate was left in trust to Farwell, who is now 60 years old.

A final hearing on Mrs. Loretta Farwell's Chicago suit is set for this fall. In this action Farwell is contesting her plea for an increase in support money from $350 to $1,200 a month. She charges that Farwell deserted her in 1915 and since then has associated with other women.

CONDITION OF SENATOR LEWIS STILL SERIOUS

MOSCOW, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Doctors attending United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois said tonight his condition is still very serious. A bulletin issued before midnight was less cheerful than a noon bulletin, which noted a slight improvement over yesterday in the condition of the senator, ill in a Moscow hotel of bronchial pneumonia.

"There has been no significant change in the senator's general condition during the day," said a bulletin signed by four physicians. "There is still considerable toxemia. The prognosis remains doubtful."

Lewis' heart action was said to be somewhat weaker tonight. The pneumonia is still confined to his right lung and the chief danger, doctors said, is that the illness would sap the patient's strength. Mrs. Lewis said the senator still is cheerful and is taking nourishment.

Neck Pains Him; Doctors Find 4-Inch Piece of File

James Perry, 52 years old, colored, 2200 Foster street, Evanston, complained of a pain in the neck yesterday and went to the Evanston hospital. There physicians discovered that a piece of a file, four inches long, was embedded in his flesh and decided to operate today to remove it.

Rogers Case Jury Returns Open Verdict

West Chester, Pa., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—A coroner's jury reported tonight after five hours of deliberation that Evelyn Hoey, musical comedy actress who was found shot to death in the summer home of Henry Huddleston Rogers, III, on the night of September 11, died "by the hands of a person or persons unknown to this jury."

Rogers, 31 year old Standard Oil heir, shook his head ruefully when the verdict was read. He and his attorneys, as well as many others in the court room, obviously had been expecting that the jurors would find that Miss Hoey had committed suicide and that the case would be ended.

"Awful" Says Companion.

"That's awful," remarked William J. Kelly, a Union City [N. J.], cameraman, who, as a personal friend of Rogers had been in the latter's home, Indian Run farm near Lyndell, the night of the shooting.

Rogers himself was ordered by his attorney, John J. Halpin of New York, not to discuss the verdict. Immediately afterward another member of his counsel, J. Hall Macelree of Westchester, moved that Rogers and Kelly be discharged from the bonds of $2,500 each under which they had been released the day after Miss Hoey's death.

Both men had been held on suspicion and District Attorney William E. Parke agreed that there was no evidence on which additional charges could be based. The deputy coroner thereupon granted the request of counsel and freed Rogers and Kelly, with the understanding that they should be produced at any time for further questioning.

Plans to Pursue Quiz.

Mr. Parke admitted in a statement that the commonwealth had presented all of its evidence at the inquest but said the investigation would be continued.

When the jurors retired at 3:45 this afternoon, after hearing medical and police testimony at the third session of the inquest, the threat of a grand jury investigation into their own conduct hung over their heads.

District Attorney Parke told reporters at that time that he would await the jury's verdict before deciding whether to request the grand jury to inquire not only into Miss Hoey's death but into the conduct of the jurors and Deputy Coroner Cox. His reference to the jurors was accepted as resulting from the reported "illness" of two of them last night following a prolonged drinking party, necessitating the postponing of the session.

Rogers' Story Supported.

The last testimony related before the retirement of the jury supported the contention of Rogers, made during his two hour appearance on the stand on Friday night, that Miss Hoey had ended her life. She had lost her voice, he said, and, fearing that her stage career was at an end, had fired a shot into her head while he and Kelly were in the living room downstairs.

The final witness was Charles B. Dunlap Jr., fingerprint expert of the Chester police department, who identified the prints found on the gun as those of Miss Hoey and scouted the suggestion that they could have been placed there after her death.

BOARD OF FIVE GIVES UP EFFORT TO AVERT WAR

Britain, France Split on Next Step.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 24.—That the Italo-Ethiopian drama is still far from a dénouement, although the league of nations council's committee of five this morning drafted a report to the council admitting that its efforts at conciliation had failed, was proved tonight when it was learned that France and England have not reached an agreement on the next step.

This next step is the application by the council, which has been convoked for Thursday, of the procedure laid down in one or the other of the articles of the league covenant dealing with disputes between members. In British circles it is thought that the council is most likely to proceed under paragraph 4 of article XV., the phase of conciliation specified in paragraph 3 having been exhausted by the committee of five [Great Britain, France, Poland, Spain, and Turkey].

Procedure Is Explained.

Paragraph 3 provides that the council shall try to effect a settlement of the dispute. Paragraph 4 sets forth that if a dispute is not settled under paragraph 3 the council may, unanimously or by majority vote, publish a report setting forth the facts of the dispute and the recommendations which are deemed just and proper.

In other words, the council must draft official recommendations for settlement of the dispute and submit them once more to both parties. If the Ethiopians accept and the Italians reject these recommendations, the latter are none the less bound by the council's decision and must be judged in violation of the covenant if they disregard them by employing force.

The application of article XV., therefore, is considered as near to an irrevocable step as anything can be in Geneva, which is why the French are trying to dodge it and the British to apply it—or at least threaten to apply it.

Eden and Laval Meet Today.

Tomorrow Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league of nations affairs, and Pierre Laval, French premier, will confer in a final attempt to agree on which procedure to adopt. Laval favors some more elastic procedure, such as that of article XI.

This article provides that in case of war or threat of war "the league shall take any action that may be deemed wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations."

The communique issued by the Italian cabinet at Rome today is considered here to be intended to warn the council against applying article XV. The British are determined to pay no attention to the warning.

Hope for Italian "Change."

If their point of view prevails, the procedure probably will be as follows:

The council will hold a public meeting Thursday to adopt the report of the committee of five and a private meeting Thursday afternoon or Friday to fix the procedure. A subcommittee will be named to draft recommendations and the council will doubtless adjourn for some period, possibly a week, while the report is being drafted.

In the meantime the assembly will either vote to remain in session continuously or adjourn without setting a fixed date to meet again, so that the moment fighting starts in Africa it can be reconvoked as the same assembly without having to proceed again to elect officers.

Naturally, if any indications of a change of heart on Premier Mussolini's part turn up at any time before hostilities break out, the negotiations for a peaceful settlement will be resumed by the committee of five or some other organism of the council.

Conciliation Becomes Harder.

This will be harder to do tomorrow after the record of the observations of Baron Pompeo Aloisi, chief Italian delegate, to Salvador de Madariaga, chairman of the committee of five, have been published than it would be today.

It will be still harder once the council formally invokes article XV., and next to impossible when the official recommendations are drafted by the council.

Therefore, some move from Premier Mussolini which would at least serve as a pretext for slowing down the procedure might possibly come before Thursday morning, though there are no signs of it on the horizon yet.

Laval Reported "Disillusioned."

PARIS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Premier Laval today decided to abandon as hopeless his long efforts to mediate the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel and concentrate on the strong stand taken by Great Britain, officials said.

The premier is "sadly disillusioned," his advisors said, over Mussolini's steadfast refusal to come to peaceful terms.

"If Mussolini is deaf to pacific reason," said one official, "the old fashioned strong arm method may be the language he understands."

He insisted, however, that France "at the present time" is considering only economic and financial sanctions if Il Duce tries to shoot his way into the Ethiopian empire.

Diplomatic circles viewed the Italian cabinet statement today as a further attempt on the part of Mussolini to "frighten the league" by veiled threats to leave Geneva if sanctions are taken. They expressed the opinion, however, that "The bluff will no longer work."

The general confederation of labor called on the league to "fulfil its mission" and condemned Italy's attitude.

PHYSICIAN SEES FEVER DELAYING WAR IN ETHIOPIA

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A Reuters [British] news agency dispatch from Addis Ababa quoted a prominent medical authority today as saying there would be no war in Ethiopia for at least a month, although the rainy season has virtually ended.

The authority explained, the dispatch said, that a virulent fever would break out in the Ogaden desert area and part of the Tigre area as soon as the rains ended, and would continue until the end of October.

"There is stagnant water in many places and a consequent increase in malaria germs, often coupled with cholera and other diseases," the dispatch quoted. "Only about the beginning of November does the fever begin to disappear."

BRITISH PLANES 'BOMB' MALTA IN SHAM AIR RAID

VALETTA, Malta, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A fleet of giant bombers and other "enemy" aircraft droned over Malta in a sham air raid tonight, with this tiny British island outpost plunged in darkness and silence.

Promptly at 9:30 p. m. every house, street, and trafic light blinked out. Simultaneously the twinkling lights of British battleships riding at anchor in the harbor went off. A few minutes later came the high hum of planes.

Thousands of citizens thronged the historic bastions of Valetta and the sea front.

Australian Senate Backs Government's War Policy

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The senate by a vote of 26 to 3 indorsed the government's policy regarding the Italo-Ethiopian dispute today. The vote rejected a motion to instruct Stanley Bruce, high commissioner in London, to oppose any action likely to involve Australia in war.

Vatican Agrees to Put Out Lights in Event of Air Raid

ROME, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Well informed sources said tonight an accord has been reached between the Vatican and the Italian government for extinction of lights and other defense measures ordered by the government in the event of an air raid on Rome.

BRITAIN BACKS UP THREAT TO STOP WAR BY FORCE

Cabinet Approves Hoare's Action at Geneva.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The British cabinet today backed the policy of full support of the league of nations covenant which has been pursued at Geneva by Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, and Capt. Anthony Eden, league minister.

All the acts of Hoare and Eden designed to prevent an Italo-Ethiopian war by the employment of collective force, if necessary, were approved. No disquietude was evidenced about anything they have done.

The cabinet also decided that the British answer to the French inquiry as to the attitude of the British toward their league obligations in other circumstances—meaning the possible coercion of Germany—would be made some time this week and published immediately.

Each Case on Merits.

This answer will be a carefully worded declaration that Britain is loyal to the league in all circumstances, but at the same time it will point out the right of every nation to consider each crisis on its merits.

It is confidently expected, however, that it will satisfy the French and make certain that France will support Britain and the league if Premier Mussolini should still prove recalcitrant and insist on war against Ethiopia.

The news from Rome and Geneva, however, indicates that a period of hard horse trading has begun and that Mussolini realizes he will have to take a lower price for peace than he sought at the first asking.

Tension Eased.

A considerable relaxation has been achieved between Britain and Italy and the relations between Italy and the league therefore are much eased. This was the good news in London tonight and hope was high for a peaceful settlement of the quarrel over Ethiopia which at one time seriously threatened, and still to some extent threatens, to involve all the European powers.

The improvement in Italo-British relations is the result of some high powered British diplomacy. The first move was the declaration to Italy that the concentration of the British fleet in the Mediterranean was in no way directed against Italy, but was only the ordinary precaution a prudent nation would take in disturbed times.

The second move was a call on Mussolini yesterday by the British ambassador to Rome, Sir Eric Drummond, with a personal message from Foreign Secretary Hoare, who is an old friend of Il Duce.

No Quarrel Desired by Hoare.

In this message Hoare assured Mussolini as one friend to another that Britain has no quarrel with Italy and desires none, and Mussolini accepted the assurance in the spirit in which it was given.

Now remain the relations between Italy and the league. It must be remembered that while Britain still holds herself bound to carry out all her obligations under the league covenant, her influence, if exercised on the side of moderation, must be powerful.

The league council, which meets Thursday in Geneva, will have before it the report of the committee of five [Great Britain, France, Poland, Spain, and Turkey], which has failed in its efforts at conciliation. It is then open to the council to decide to proceed under article 15 of the league covenant which leads inevitably to sanctions [penalties] and perhaps to war, or to adopt other means such as further efforts at conciliation, or appointment of a new committee.

Ethiopian Vets Scorn Trenches; Would Just Dash Into Battle

This is the sixth of a series of articles by Will Barber, Tribune correspondent, on Ethiopian preparations for war. Mr. Barber penetrated into the Ogaden desert to get a first hand view of the Ethiopian front lines. He is the only American correspondent who has been permitted to visit the Ethiopian front.

BY WILL BARBER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Sept. 24.—An old Amhara fighting man with a forty inch scimitar at his side looked disdainfully at a line of deep, stout trenches and said: "Damn trenches. Let us just wade in as we did at Adowa."

The colonel commanding the Ethiopian camp had just finished showing me the system of trenches in which Ethiopian soldiers will seek safety from Italian airplanes, tanks, and machine guns and the Adowa veteran's outburst was a sharp contradiction of the advanced Ethiopians' efforts to fight the Italians by modern methods.

The outburst was not unusual, for a majority of Ethiopians believe that they can lick the Italians any time and any place by fighting with swords, spears, and rifles.

Too Much Confidence.

It is entirely possible that army leaders will have great difficulty keeping their men from wasting their lives in futile charges. They will certainly have trouble restraining their men from wasting cartridges firing at airplanes. Even trained leaders have far too much faith in their ability to bring down airplanes with anti-aircraft machine guns, overlooking the fact that European generals long have been convinced that the only weapon capable of stopping an airplane is another airplane.

Without being a soldier, from what I saw of the Ogaden terrain and the preparations for war, I would say the Ethiopians stood a fighting chance to whip the Italians if it were solely infantry warfare. They are tireless soldiers and need daily only a handful of grain and couple of palmfuls of water scooped up from a ditch—the Somali soldiers drank out of the muddy ruts in front of my truck—and have the highest morale. They would have an excellent chance to beat the Italians under the same conditions if the European nations had not clamped down an arms embargo last spring.

Shortage of Rifles.

As it is there is a hopeless shortage of rifles and cartridges. Machine guns are extremely rare and modern artillery is totally absent. There are no tanks grenades, airplanes, or bombs and most of the rifles are very ancient. The latest figures say there are only a hundred thousand new rifles.

At one place I saw fifteen different types of rifles and it was pathetic when a commander showed me a couple of machine guns and said with satisfaction and pride: "The same bullets fit each gun." That is rare. Even the arrival of 7 million cartridges from Belgium, which reached Djibouti, French Somaliland, the other day after being held up since July, will not help much.

If the Italians can keep up their communications they ought to be able to use tanks effectively in Ogaden and their airplanes can smash the Ethiopian armed and entrenched camps without fear of similar reprisals.

Will Fight at Night.

The whole of Ogaden apparently is being honeycombed with entrenched camps, more or less completed, and that belies the accepted belief that the Ethiopians intend to concentrate solely on guerrilla warfare. To do that they will have to fight much at night, but they never have in history. The biggest factor in their favor is the "devilish way" they penetrate the enemies' communication as they did when fighting the Italians forty years ago. The chances of victory improve if the Italians once again get drawn from their base, as the Ethiopians hope and intend to try to make them do. The entrenched camps, then, seem likely to be used solely to break up the first attacks. Then can come the guerrilla warfare with skirmishes at every waterhole.

Thousands of soldiers were pouring into Ogaden when I turned north ward. Most of them were Dedjazmatch Hapte Mikael's men from the Kolo mountains of the west and the others were from Arussi and Galla under the command of Dedjazmatch Amda Mikael. They were coming through Harrar.

Here I saw a truckload squatting in the cold dawn around a fire cooking maize—they had been stalled all night by motor trouble—and there I saw others waiting in the blazing sun for new trucks to carry them southward. Other thousands were moving toward the frontier of Bali province, west of the Webbi Shebeili river.

The Spirit of Death.

Their spirit? "We go to die," they had said when leaving home and none of them expected to return.

The spirit of the Somali populace?

At Daggah Bur my escort had offered five shots as a salute to friends and on our return a brigadier general told me that Somali shepherds came rushing in with rifles and wanted to track down our truck because they thought war had started and the Italians had come.

These people?

We were stuck in the middle of a river and asked a Galla peasant to help push and he replied: "I am too old to push, but if you will give me a piaster [two cents] I will stand in the river and pray that you cross safely."

For five minutes he prayed to his pagan god and three hours later thirty men and an American motor got us through.

EDW. J. ARENDT, SHOT ON SUNDAY, DIES OF WOUNDS

Edward J. Arendt, 40 years old, Republican committeeman of the Fifteenth ward, who was shot by an unidentified assailant Sunday, died last night in the Holy Cross hospital.

Chicago Lawn police still are seeking George Downs, former south side beer runner, with whom Arendt previously had trouble. However, when questioned at the hospital, Arendt declared Downs was not the man who shot him.

Arendt had left his home at 5915 South Fairfield avenue to visit his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Treacy, at 6444 South Maplewood avenue. As he stepped from his car in front of Mrs. Treacy's home, another automobile containing men drove up. One of them fired, the shot striking Arendt in the abdomen.

NO PEACE UNLESS LEAGUE EXPELS ETHIOPIA! ITALY

Press Demands Mandate Over Africans.

ROME, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's report to his cabinet today on "the possibilities of development of the Italo-Ethiopian situation on the basis of some articles of the Geneva covenant" was followed tonight by a press campaign against Ethiopia's continuance in the league of nations.

Newspapers argued that Ethiopia had not fulfilled the conditions under which it was admitted to the league and that under article 22 of the covenant Ethiopia should be made a mandate state.

Article 22 refers to territories "inhabited by peoples not yet able to stand by themselves under the strenuous conditions of the modern world."

See Italy as "Civilizer."

It also refers to "the principle that the well-being and development of such peoples form a sacred trust of civilization" and adds that "the best method of giving practical effect to this principle is that the tutelage of such peoples should be intrusted to advanced nations who by reason of their resources and their experiences or geographical position can best undertake this responsibility." The nation popularly designated for this purpose, it was officially said, is Italy.

Unless Geneva adopts this solution, the Rome press asserted, the league will fail in its efforts to solve the conflict.

"It is not possible to find any league solution of the conflict if Geneva does not decide to go beyond the rigidity of the pact and the formalism of its articles," said the authoritative Giornale d'Italia.

"As long as Ethiopia shall be considered as any other member of the league of nations, despite its continuance of slavery and its own definition as a country more than barbarous and incapable, every effort regarding it will lack reality."

Cabinet Issues Communique.

The cabinet session was adjourned until Saturday after Mussolini had reported to his ministers.

The following communique was issued after the cabinet meeting:

"Premier Mussolini made a brief report on the political situation from Saturday until today. Mussolini said Italy had not presented counter proposals to Geneva but only verbally exposed his motives for finding the proposals of the committee of five inacceptable.

"All that has occurred from Saturday to today has proved that the attitude of the Italian government could not have been different.

"Premier Mussolini afterwards examined possible developments in the situation on the basis of certain articles of the [league] covenant and the attitude Italy would adopt under the circumstances."

See Hint at Solution.

Reference to the articles of the covenant was interpreted in diplomatic circles as foreshadowing a possibility of solution of the controversy within the covenant. Official circles hold that article ten is offset by, and must be interpreted by, article nineteen, which provides for the revision of treaties.

These circles also assert that Ethiopia has violated the conditions under which it was admitted to the league and consequently has renounced the rights and privileges of membership.

An appropriation of 1,000,000 lire [about $80,000] was made by the cabinet for construction of aircraft shelters in Messina.

The cabinet also decreed continued government assistance to the coal mines of Istria and Sardinia in an effort to make Italy less dependent on foreign countries for this product. straw stack.

Mobilization Is Postponed.

Mussolini's one-day mobilization of ten million men, expected for today, was postponed by the government, informed persons said, because of a sudden hopeful turn of events in the Ethiopian crisis.

These persons said the mobilization would be without purpose until a definite path either to conciliation or to a rupture between Italy and the league of nations became evident. The mobilization may be called Saturday, high placed Black Shirts said.

Ethiopia Spurns Mandate.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Italy's reported proposal at today's cabinet meeting to solve the Italo-Ethiopian dispute by making Ethiopia a mandate was denounced tonight by a close adviser of Emperor Haile Selassie, who said:

"Ethiopians are perfectly able to stand by themselves. They have done so for thousands of years and will continue to do so in the future without foreign tutelage. We will not tolerate any mandate."

OKLAHOMA IS VOTING AGAINST WOMEN IN CHIEF STATE OFFICES

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Early returns in a special election indicated tonight Oklahoma will continue to be the only state in the union to deny women the right to hold major state offices, but will pension its aged and exempt its homesteads from taxation.

Unofficial returns from 438 of the state's 3,375 precincts gave 16,012 for the office right amendment and 20,712 against.

The total vote cast against the women's rights amendment, on the basis of the unofficial returns from the 438 precincts, was greater than that against any of the other legislative-referred measures.

Unofficial returns from 437 precincts revealed the voters were favoring the measures they initiated themselves by substantial majorities, the old age pension measure receiving 25,582 to 12,522, and the homestead amendment 16,229 to 10,703.

FRONTIER FENCE KEEPS WAR HOSTS PENNED IN ITALY

Vigilant Machine Gunners Prevent Escape.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 10 [By Courier to Avoid Censor].—Il Duce's valiant legions cannot escape into Switzerland, France, Austria, or Jugo-Slavia to avoid fighting Emperor Haile Selassie's warriors. As in the early days of Fascism, when all frontiers were closely guarded by machine gun nests and powerful searchlights, Italy has become once more a vast prison restraining those who want to get out of the country.

This correspondent has just returned from a month's trip along the northern frontiers of Italy, visiting even the most out of the way places, and nowhere was he able to find a place one might have crossed over unobserved. Several years ago vigilance was slightly relaxed, today it is more alert than ever before.

Issue Few Passports.

Passports are being issued only to those who are sure of not being called to the colors, and then only in extreme cases of real necessity. The northern frontiers have armed Guardia di Finanza—a picked corps accustomed to frontier guarding by career—stationed for every fifty feet. A machine gun post surveys every two hundred feet with searchlights making the whole of the frontier at night light as day. In addition a stout wire netting, with barbed wire entanglement along the top, stretches from the northwesternmost corner of Italy along to Travis Pass at the northeasternmost corner of the country. The netting is fifteen feet high and is so stretched that the small bells which are attached to it along every two feet of its entire area, give the alarm to the nearby sentries at the slightest touch.

Such is the impossibility of getting through that smugglers of coffee, sugar, tobacco and cigaret lighters from Switzerland and Jugo-Slavia are finding it increasingly difficult to bring in their wares. All those places which hitherto were considered sufficiently safe without barriers, now are covered over with the fencing and bells. Smugglers have resorted to difficult mountain passes long since abandoned by them.

Draftees Poor Fighters.

That the soldiers who are being called up and sent to East Africa constitute poor fighting material is evident from their remarks and the look on their faces. They frankly admit not knowing what it is all about. Several who were asked their opinion about going down to fight the Ethiopians expressed sentiments summing up to this:

"All we want is to be left alone in peace to till our little plots of land and eat our poor soup at night. We want to be sent home, never mind getting into a war that need not take place."

Most pathetic of all, perhaps, are those in the class of 1912, third category, which was called to make up the full quota of 200,000 more men which Il Duce called the first of September. This category never had military training because they came under the exempt class such as only sons, or sons of widows, and breadwinners of their respective families. These go about with a dazed look on their faces, their discouragement evident.

That the population is generally against the Ethiopian adventure, appears from the discussions which take place among the women at the market places. They all seem to have a fear of the unknown dangers into which their loved ones are being sent. They also remember the last crushing defeat which Italy suffered at Adowa in 1896. No amount of reassurance in the Italian press, which points out that the Italy of today is a different nation from the Italy of 1896, and goes to East Africa better armed and in far greater numbers, seems to allay the fears of the populace.

In the large cities where considerable numbers of foreign citizens are employed as translators, stenographers and office help, officials of the Sindacati [government trades unions] are making preparations to cause the withdrawal of working permits from all British subjects holding such jobs. The excuse given is that there are unemployed Italians capable of filling these jobs.

Cost of Living Rises.

Meanwhile the cost of living is going up. Food prices have risen at least 40 per cent this summer, and sharper rises are foreseen for the winter, especially in coal and cotton textiles as well as food necessities.

The situation in that portion of the country which was Austrian before the world war is far from reassuring. It is a region populated by people of Germanic blood who have no sympathy for Fascist Italy. That they are only waiting for the day when they may be permitted to secede by peaceful referendum or be taken over by a German speaking nation, is an open secret.

The government is striving in every way to Italianize this conquered population by industrializing the Bolzano sector, by holding the grand maneuvers thereabouts to demonstrate Italy's strength, and by holding monster demonstrations clearly organized by imported Italian elements.

DRY SPELL BEGINS IN ETHIOPIA THREE DAYS AHEAD OF TIME

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Superstitious Ethiopians were unable to understand tonight why there had been no rain in Addis Ababa for 48 hours—something they called without precedent.

Some interpreted the advent of a dry spell three days before the great festival day of Mascal, which usually marks the end of summer rains with the accuracy of a clock, as a good omen for peace. Today the weather was like Indian summer in Chicago, and many Americans discarded their overcoats.

Tired of waiting for war, numerous would-be war correspondents who came equipped with tents, beds, mules, horses, radio sets, shotguns, bathtubs, and cook stoves, were offering to sell their equipment at half price. They found no takers because these things have become a drug on the market, even the army being overstocked.

BARUCH EXPECTS ITALY'S DEFEAT IF WAR COMES

Would Halt All Sales to Fighting Powers.

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—If Mussolini goes ahead with his plans to conquer Ethiopia he will get an awful licking, Bernard M. Baruch predicted today when he returned from Europe.

"He can't stand up against the whole world," Mr. Baruch said. "The French and the British look as if they mean business."

Nearly all the returning notables were full of war talk. Simon R. Guggenheim, president of the American Smelting and Refining company, said the chances were 50-50 for an Italian-Ethiopian war, but he foresaw no general European war.

Mr. Baruch, chairman of the U. S. war industries board in the world war and a close friend of President Roosevelt, was scornful of what he called "psalm singing neutrality." He favored strict neutrality which would prohibit any commerce with warring countries.

Might Stop All Sales.

Discussing the possibility of economic sanctions against Italy, he said:

"This is more than a test of the sincerity of the purpose of the nations involved in the dispute. Above all it is a test of the sincerity of the people within neutral nations. Will they withhold sales and purchases?

"You have to forego profits from the sale of lethal instruments, but if you really want to observe neutrality you've got to stop selling anything to nations at war. It's time to stop mouthing of what one is going to do."

Baruch was asked whether, under his definition of neutrality, there was any neutral nation in the world war and he replied promptly that there was not.

"Why not let neutral nations sell nonmilitary materials to countries at war?" he was asked.

"There ain't no such animal," he replied.

Mr. Baruch explained war meant not only the defeat of armies but also the destruction of a nation's internal economic system.

Talks About Civilians.

"I have a little idea that I know something about munitions," Mr. Baruch said, with a smile. "They tried to make out in the senate that I didn't, but I still have my idea. I think that national pride is a lot of nonsense, but if we go to war, we ought to be prepared to fight it and win it. We should take care of the soldiers, but it is just as important to take care of the civilians, the people at home, the mothers, the children and their future lives. That is something you don't hear people mention frequently in their war talk."

NATIONAL ARMS BOARD DEFINES ALL MUNITIONS

Prepares Classification for President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—With the threat of war in Europe increasing with each hour the newly created national munitions control board in its first meeting today prepared a definition of arms, munitions, and implements of war for President Roosevelt. The definition is to guide the President in proclaiming embargoes under the recent neutrality legislation.

At the meeting the board deliberated less than a half hour over a tentative list of war materials submitted by the new office of arms and munitions control of the state department. The board's recomendations are to be submitted to the White House tomorrow or Thursday.

Hull Declines Comment.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull declined to discuss the recommendations of the board. He said that inasmuch as the embargo proclamation is to come from the White House in the event of war, he could not release its definitions. He indicated that members of the board were unanimous in their conclusions.

"The first meeting of the national munitions control board created by recent action of congress was held this morning," Secretary Hull said in a formal statement. "The board met to organize and fulfill its duty of agreeing upon a list of arms and munitions and implements of war which it will recommend to the consideration of the President for use in a proclamation defining these articles for the purpose of section 2 of the act under which the board was created.

Manufacturers Must Register.

"When the board has fulfilled this function and the President has issued his proclamation the administration of the act evolves on the department of state. All manufacturers, exporters, and importers of arms and munitions and implements of war must register with the department and after Nov. 29 these articles may not be exported from or imported into this country without a license issued by the department to cover each shipment."

Secretary Hull refused to state whether the board had suggested that raw materials for munitions be included among implements of war.

He emphasized that the proclamation defining war materials to be issued by the President will involve only indirectly embargo provisions of section 1 of the neutrality act. The proclamation is to constitute a listing of materials which will be barred to belligerent countries in the event of war.

Officials at Conference.

Those who met with Secretary Hull were Maj. Gen. George S. Simmons, assistant chief of staff, representing Secretary of War Dern; Rear Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, representing Secretary of Navy Swanson; T. J. Jefferson Coolidge, undersecretary of the treasury, representing Secretary Morgenthau, and Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper.

In organizing under the neutrality act, which is designed to keep the United States out of war, Secretary Hull has created a new office in his department which is to have charge of regulations over arms and munitions. The munitions board is engaged in preparing the regulations.

CITY'S SCHOOLS WILL KEEP BOY SAFETY PATROLS

In answer to a campaign to do away with school boy safety patrols, launched last week by the board of directors of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in a meeting here, William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday that Chicago schools would continue to operate the patrols.

"We would be glad to replace the 10,000 boys on this duty with city policemen, but the city doesn't have 10,000 policemen available for that purpose," Mr. Bogan said.

The Parent-Teachers board opposed the patrols because many of the boys have been injured while on duty. A. H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education for Chicago schools, said that since 1932 only ten safety patrol boys have been injured on duty here, and none of them seriously.

Trans-Atlantic Flyer Uninjured as Plane Crashes

DECIDE PILOT IS CZAR OF PLANE WHILE IN FLIGHT

Fix Rules Following Koenecke Death.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—(AP)—A close study of the authority given the pilot of an airplane today convinced officials of the federal bureau of air commerce that he is czar over his speeding domain as long as it is in air.

The study grew out of the death of Len Koenecke, former player for the Brooklyn Dodgers, in a plane flying over Canada several days ago. Officials said the incident also established that the country or state over which a crime was committed had jurisdiction over it.

Charges of manslaughter against William Joseph Mulqueeny, pilot of the plane, and Irwin Davis, a parachute jumper, were dismissed after a coroner's jury found they killed Koenecke in self-defense when he started a fight with them.

Simply Given "Command."

Legal experts of the bureau said there was little in either law or regulations to define the extent of a pilot's authority. The regulations simply specify that he shall be "in command" of his ship.

One other section of the regulations specifies who shall enter the pilot's compartment—which amounts to virtually no one.

In the absence of any definition of the extent of the "command" the pilot should exert, officials expressed belief that his authority would be measurable by that of the master of an ocean liner.

They pointed out that there were certain differences which might require quicker decisions and more violent action on the part of an air pilot. With his plane moving at a high speed and land only a few thousand feet below, he could not indulge in debate before starting out to quell mutinous passengers.

No Marrying or Burying.

Marriage, burial and some of the duties that devolve upon a ship's captain, however, do not fall within the realm of an air pilot. The time in air is not comparable to that at sea and officials considered there was no necessity for the performance of those duties.

They look toward the establishment of the new airlines across the Pacific to add further precedents which will demonstrate just what it means to "command" an airplane. Most legal experts argued that in flights across the country, marriages would be governed by the laws of the state over which the plane was flying.

BRITAIN STARTS FIRST AIR MAIL PLANE ON NEW ROUTE TO CHINA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 24.—A further link in the chain of British empire air mail routes was forged today when the Imperial Airways air liner Horatius left Croyden airport with the first air mail for Hongkong. By 1937, according to present plans, all empire first class mail will be carried by air.

In the first six months this year there was an increase of 84 per cent in letters carried on empire air routes compared with the corresponding period in 1934. According to post-office officials, this increase will be maintained for the rest of the year. While 64 tons of letters were dispatched from Great Britain by air to empire destinations last year, the total at the end of the present year will considerably exceed 100 tons.

It was announced tonight that the Jugo-Slavian government has placed an order for airplane engines valued at nearly $1,250,000 with Rolls-Royce, Ltd. This is one of the largest foreign orders for aviation motors ever placed in this country. The engines will be used by the Jugo-Slavian air force.

RICHBERG FINDS NRA DEATH NOT BAD AFTER ALL

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Donald R. Richberg, in his first comment on public issues since retiring as chairman of the national recovery board, today conceded the abandonment of NRA had not brought the dire results he forecast.

Instead, Richberg said, the industrial chaos he warned would follow NRA's abandonment had been averted by business improvement and widespread adherence to code standards made possible by "collective thinking" taught business men under the recovery law.

These observations were made during an interview in Richberg's law office, overlooking the White House, where only three months ago he was one of President Roosevelt's closest advisors.

Richberg forecast the future would bring "a better organized relationship between government and business," but would not discuss in detail his views on what would follow NRA. Asked about a constitutional amendment to broaden the commerce clause of the constitution, he said there was need for "development of the legal concept" of that clause, but that did not necessarily mean revision or amendment of the constitution.

GERMAN AIRLINE PREPARES TO FLY NORTH ATLANTIC

Pioneer Trips Will Start Next Spring.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

The Deutsche Lufthansa, Germany's state subsidized airline, has completed plans for pioneering flights early next spring over the North Atlantic ocean, probably between Southampton, England, and New York City, preparatory to regular mail and passenger services. This became known yesterday. If the plans are carried through Germany will become the first nation to begin commercial flying across the most important ocean transport route in the world.

The German airline plans to use the two catapult ships which have been in service on its South Atlantic route between South America and Africa. The two vessels are to be anchored in the ocean and the Dornier Wal 10 ton flying boats which are to try out the North Atlantic route will use them as refueling stations.

Experience Ample, Line Says.

Pilots, engineers, and meteorological experts for the German airline have had ample experience in ocean flying to begin the North Atlantic service at this time, according to the company officials. The Lufthansa, in conjunction with the North German Lloyd Steamship company, has for three summers catapulted seaplanes carrying mail to shore from the ocean liners Bremen and Europa, speeding up mail delivery by 24 hours.

Experience gained from this service, during which more than 50 ship to shore flights have been completed on both east and west bound voyages with the loss of only one plane and pilot, will be utilized in flying the North Atlantic.

The catapult ships, Westfalen and Schwabenland, are already completely equipped for North Atlantic service. Spare planes, engines, fuel, and crews of mechanics are carried on the catapult ships at all times.

North Atlantic Flight Longer.

The oversea flight in the South Atlantic is only 1,900 miles as against 3,800 between Southampton and New York. In the South Atlantic flying boats were taken aboard the catapult ships at the shore and then were launched out over the sea only after the steamers had covered from 200 to 400 miles of the crossing.

In the North Atlantic it is planned to station the catapult ships at intervals which will make it possible to fly the entire route in stages of approximately 1,000 miles each. This is well within the range of the Dornier Wal craft which have been flying from 1,400 to 1,600 miles on each South Atlantic trip.

AMBULANCE WAITS AS ILL VET WATCHES 5TH REGIMENT GO BY

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The ambulance was waiting and Frank Devanney, 60, retired regular army top sergeant, desperately ill, bound for the veterans' hospital in Chelsea, was ready to go.

Someone said the fifth U. S. Infantry would pass that way soon.

Devanney, veteran of service in China, the Philippines, the Canal Zone and the world war, said "we'll wait."

Devanney peered at the long, brown files of regulars, marching from Fort Devens to Fort Williams.

The tramp of the marching feet died.

CATHOLIC RALLY HEARS AL SMITH HIT RED DOCTRIN

Lauds "Communionism," Flays Communism.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith told 43,000 pilgrims to the seventh national Eucharist congress tonight that the "way to unify society is by communionism, not communism."

The former governor of New York drew long applause from the huge crowd as he praised the American system. He spoke from a platform in the middle of Cleveland's lake front stadium.

"Communionism makes us brothers under the skin," he said, "but communism makes us brothers simply because we happen to be working together.

"My cathechism says I should know and love God and serve him to the end that I will be happy for all eternity in the world to come. If my cathechism is wrong, there is no use being a man. I'd rather be a horse."

Affirms Catholic Belief.

Ardently affirming his belief in the teachings of his church, Smith assured the gathering that "communism and the teachings that go with it, are about as wrong as anything could be in this world."

"I do not propose to deal with the economic features of communism for the simple reason that I do not understand them," he said. "I have met nobody who does. But there is one thing you can understand and that's the result of a trial of communism.

"The poorest worker in a capitalist state is infinitely better than any in a common state.

"Why is the communist state attacking religion? Why is it preaching a doctrin that there is no God? Time was when an atheist was one in a mob. Today atheism is organized. It is organized for the reason that there exists an arbitrary assumption that religion is the weapon of the capitalist class and, therefore, must be destroyed. The communist youth is being trained in an anti-Christian basis. He is being taught that man is made to the image and likeness of society and not the image of God."

Opens Religious Program.

Cardinal Patrick Hayes of New York, papal legate to the religious festival, celebrated a solemn pontifical mass to open formally the religious program of the gathering.

Fifty archbishops and bishops, wearing their brilliant robes, and hundreds of priests occupied places of honor near the altar.

The legate, his gem studded cross and jeweled ring flashing the reflected light, extended his hand in blessing over the multitude.

Cardinal Hayes was honored tonight at a dinner attended by 1,200 persons, including archbishops and bishops and many of the visiting clergy.

Responding to a toast, Bishop William O'Brien of Chicago pleaded for support of parochial schools, asserting he believed the time would come when Americans "will see the injustice of double taxation upon Catholics for primary education."

Mass for Children Today.

Thousands of children will attend a solemn pontifical mass tomorrow in the city's Lakeside stadium. Archbishop Francis J. I. Beckman of Dubuque, Ia., will be the celebrant.

A solemn pontifical mass in the oriental [Greek] rite will follow the children's mass. Bishop Basil Takach of the Pittsburgh Greek diocese will be the celebrant.

DRIVER OF AUTO FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

CRIMINAL COURT.
Francis H. Mathews, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge John C. Lewe.

Corlis Isabell, 33 years old, colored, 4833 Langley avenue, was found guilty of manslaughter last night by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Joseph Burke. Sentence was deferred pending hearing Oct. 4 on a motion for a new trial.

Witnesses testified that Isabell, under the influence of liquor, drove his automobile into a group of women and children waiting for a street car at 64th street and Cottage Grove avenue on Sept. 1, killing Mrs. Anna Johnston, 41 years old, 632 East 88th place, and her daughter, Annabelle, 12 years old. Norma Johnston, 9 years old, another daughter, appeared in court carrying her left arm in a sling. She escaped death when her mother pushed her to safety.

Isabell testified he had been poisoned by swallowing snuff a short while before the accident. Policeman Edward Mullaney said, however, that Isabell was in a drunken stupor when taken to the station.

COUNTY JUDGE JARECKI HEARS 1ST TRAFIC CASE

County Judge Jarecki yesterday heard his first case as a trafic judge since the new Illinois trafic code deprived justices of the peace and police magistrates of jurisdiction. He fined C. B. Harnden, 40 years old, a school janitor, $100 and costs for drunken driving.

Harnden has an artificial foot and a crippled arm. He drives with the assistance of a device he calls an "electric hand" and he told the judge he had never had an accident previous to the one on Sept. 2, when his car collided at 168th street and Cicero avenue with one driven by Frank Fennell, 8631 South Ashland avenue, the crash which brought him into court.

George P. Lacker, 6947 South Park avenue, was fined $100 and costs and Louis Tuckinsky, 1152 North Kedzie avenue, $10 and costs for reckless driving.

Howard Williams was fined $5 and costs for driving a laundry truck 52 miles an hour in 159th street.

TWO DISCHARGED FERNEKES GUARDS WANT JOBS BACK

Warden Frank D. Whipp of the Joliet penitentiary was summoned yesterday to attend a session in Springfield today of the state civil service commission which will hear a request for reinstatement of two of the four guards discharged for permitting Henry J. [Midget] Fernekes, murderer and bank robber, to escape from the prison on Aug. 3.

The two are Frank Friend and Robert Shaw. Capt. Michael Leonard and James Nolan, the other two discharged guards, did not join in the petition.

MOONEY, BILLINGS FRIENDS AGAIN AFTER 19 YEARS

Freedom Fight Renewed in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Warren K. Billings and Thomas J. Mooney, convicted 1916 Preparedness day parade bombers who had not seen each other for 19 years, met today at the hall of justice, scene of Mooney's habeas corpus hearing.

Billings, brought here from Folsom prison to testify, was taken to a cell occupied by Mooney.

The men seemed overcome momentarily by emotion. Then they exchanged sudden greetings, "Hello, Tom," "Hello, Warren," and embraced.

They're Friends Again.

"After 19 years, Warren, we've come together," Mooney said. "We've had differences, it's true, and we've had hard words, too, but we're still friends, aren't we, boy?"

Billings, who had regained his composure, replied: "Yes, and the whole truth of the 'frameup' will be proved."

Mooney's hearing, halted while Billings was en route from Folsom prison in custody of Warden Court Smith on an order of the state Supreme court, was resumed before Referee A. E. Shaw.

Renew Perjury Claim.

Mooney returned to the witness stand in his efforts to prove he was convicted and sent to prison through perjured testimony. Billings sat at the counsel table.

Mooney identified telegrams to W. D. Mahon of Detroit, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Car Employés, regarding his correspondence with Mooney concerning organization of street car employés.

Assistant Attorney General William Cleary again attempted to impeach Mooney's testimony concerning dates.

"Without the benefit of having the correspondence which the authorities stole from my home and kept from me 19 years," Mooney exclaimed, "I answered to the best of my ability. Now that I have read some of the letters, I admit I was mistaken about the date last week."

EDITOR OF ILLINI GUARDS NAME OF EXPOSE WRITER

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Elbert L. Herron, managing editor of the Daily Illini, student newspaper at the University of Illinois, said tonight he would refuse to reveal to Mayor James Flynn of Champaign the name of the Illini reporter who wrote a gambling exposé.

Herron said Mayor Flynn told him he would be brought before the grand jury and forced to reveal the name of the writer, who told in detail of a visit to an alleged local handbook after the mayor had issued a statement that gambling in Champaign had been suppressed.

The mayor also threatened to bring pressure on Herron through the president of the university and the dean of men, the editor said.

"President A. C. Willard said tonight," Herron stated "that no pressure would be brought, as far as he was concerned through university officials."

NAZIS CALL FIRST CONSCRIPT CLASS TO COLORS NOV. 1

Men Born in 1914 Must Serve Year in Army.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—"Germany's military conscription machine again is beginning to run at full blast," the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung announced today.

The newspaper disclosed that the first annual class of recruits has been called to the colors for Nov. 1. It is the 1914 class, members of which are now 21. They will serve one year with the fighting services after having completed a term with the national labor corps.

Medical examinations have been reported highly satisfactory, and only a small percentage was found unable to do military duty.

Most of the 180,000 men who have finished their labor service will be among the recruits of the new army.

Report March on Memel Ready.

With Reichsfuehrer Hitler building up a conscription army, some circles insist that the Nazis are preparing to march into Memel if the Lithuanians continue "oppressive measures against the Germans" in the Memel district.

There is a slight possibility that Memel people of German blood will suddenly unite in Memel, start goose stepping, and proclaim themselves part of Germany if they feel the pressure unbearable, prominent Germans believe.

Diplomatic agents who have been traveling between Moscow, London, Berlin, and Kaunas [the capital of Lithuania] assert that if the Germans rose in Memel and turned to Germany, none of the big powers would interfere, because they would be too busy with the Ethiopian conflict.

Rebel Pastors Rebuked.

A spokesman for Hans Kerrl, Nazi church minister, told members of the Confessional church here today that Kerrl considers the "Confessional church superfluous." The synod, which has fought to retain its freedom from Nazi dictation, is meeting at Steglitz, a Berlin suburb. "The only reason the Confessional synod has not been forbidden," the spokesman said, "is that Minister Kerrl does not want to weaken the chances of a compromise. He regards himself as a trustee of the church. The finances of the church have been taken over by the ministry only temporarily."

Kerrl's envoy requested the ninety pastors and laymen present to submit the resolutions they plan to adopt to the church ministry before publishing them.

LITHUANIA DEFIES NAZIS

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Sept. 24.—Lithuania will make no further concession to German inhabitants of the Memel [Klaipeda] district and refused to be intimidated by threats coming from Germany, high Lithuanian officials asserted today.

"If Germany has decided to get back the Memel district, then this means war and Lithuania is doing what she can to prepare for this eventuality," he declared. "We are not afraid. Although we have no secret agreement with Russia we feel we can reckon on her support since she has repeatedly stated that once our frontiers have been crossed she considers herself threatened.

"We do not believe, however, that a war danger exists at present or that the propaganda the German government is making about the recovery of Memel is serious. We believe it is chiefly to influence the vote in next Sunday's election.

"Lithuania is ready to submit her conflict with Germany to the league of nations or to The Hague tribunal."

1 Killed in Peasant Uprising.

Reports of disorders in the Mariampol district south of Kaunas were confirmed tonight by the official Lithuanian Telegraphic agency which said one peasant was killed and two others were seriously wounded in a battle with police yesterday at Grauziskai.

The uprising began Sunday when police attempted to arrest three agitators who were inciting the peasants to organize a strike against the government and to refuse to pay taxes or sell their produce to the towns. This is the second outbreak in this district recently. The increasing dissatisfaction among the peasants is blamed by the government on alleged intrigues by Germany.

BLAST IN GARAGE KILLS BOY 6, AND INJURES SEVERAL

A small boy was killed and several other persons were injured, one boy seriously, in an explosion of unknown origin yesterday in the Gold Coast garage at 1623 North Park avenue. The blast shattered windows several hundred feet away.

The boy killed was Frank De Vuono, 6 years old, 1536 Wieland street. The one seriously injured is Charles Otte, 8 years old, 1821 Cleveland street, who was take to the Evangelical Deaconness hospital.

Several workmen for the Automatic Tank Instalation works putting in two large gasoline tanks for the Checker Cab company, which had rented part of the garage, incurred minor injuries as fumes in the excavation ignited with a dull roar, scattering débris and wrecking the garage wall on the Park avenue side. The boys were playing near by.

Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan began an inquiry to determine the cause of the blast. Fire Lieutenant Richard Cull estimated the damage at $10,000.

Merchants and bankers who interviewed Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, author of the deflation order, were said to have precipitated the riots. Chiang's troops dispersed the rioters and reopened banks and shops.

7 SURVIVE OCEAN SHIPWRECK; TELL OF FIVE WHO DIED

Vessel Hurry On Sinks During Gale.

JUDIQUE, Nova Scotia, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Seven half-dead seamen were washed ashore near here today with the news that five other companions on the Halifax motor vessel Hurry On had died in a storm which capsized their little ship 12 hours earlier.

Six of the survivors reached shore in a battered and oarless lifeboat after a night that had seen death pick off their five companions one by one. One of the dead was still in the boat.

A seventh living but unconscious member of the crew was cast ashore by the rollers. They abandoned ship off Henry Island, 28 miles from here.

Five of the six men alive in the boat were unconscious when it beached, and only one was able to crawl to a fisherman's home to bring help.

Captain a Victim.

Hours before they landed Capt. A. H. Gardner, 54 year old Yorkshireman, died.

The Hurry On, owned by the Unus Shipping company, was bound for Montreal from Halifax when the storm swept down yesterday. As she heeled before the northeaster her cargo of corn shifted, forcing her down on one side. Oil poured on the water failed to help, and finally the men had to take to the boat at 6:30 p. m.

Through the long night, then, the shivering seamen watched as one after another, Alex Wait of Victoria, B. C.; Capt. Gardner, Third Engineer J. E. Macaulay of River Denys, N. S., and Seaman Fraser Maclean of Pictou Island, N. S., died of exposure.

Hard to Keep Boat Upright.

Seaman G. Carmichael of St. Ann, N. S., told how his shipmates died.

"The lifeboat capsized," he said. "We all crawled back aboard, but we had lost everything.

"Shortly after that the boat upset again. First Mate Alex Mackenzie never came back. He was drowned.

"Alex Wait died two hours later of exposure. Before long he was washed overboard. Those still alive had all they could do to keep in the boat themselves.

"In another two hours Capt. Gardner died. He died of exposure like Wait. His body was washed over, too.

"Macauley died soon after the captain, and we couldn't keep his body in the boat either.

"We were just an hour away from land when Fraser Maclean died. His body was brought ashore.

Drifts Alive to Shore.

Chief Engineer Herman Scade of Hamburg, Germany, said: "The waves were mountainous and it was absolutely impossible to keep the bodies of the dead men in the boat.

"It was filled with water. There was nothing to bail with, and, even if there had been, we wouldn't have been able to use it.

"When we left the ship the boat was fully equipped, but we lost everything the first time it turned over."

Somewhere in the long drift to land Second Engineer Albert Boudreau of Halifax was washed overboard with the dead men. But he kept afloat and, unconscious, drifted ashore down the beach from the lifeboat.

The other survivors were: Cook, L. Cockspardo, Halifax, and Seamen H. Baker, Halifax; Gilbert Boyd, Truro, and J. F. Evans, Newfoundland.

Bomb Wrecks Front of Tavern in Forest Park

A dynamite bomb, set off in the doorway of the Franklin Grill, a café and tavern at 7201-03 Franklin street, Forest Park, blew the front doorway out of the one-story frame structure, shattered windows in the building, and in other nearby places. The place had been closed for the night at the time of the blast. Robert Wright, owner, who estimated the damage at between $500 and $1,000, declared he knew of no reason for the attack.

FINDS 'THE ROD' CHIEF FACTOR IN URCHIN HONESTY

Inquiry Shows Older Boys More Noble.

BY KAY HALL.

Theft and most other offenses against property are known to boys under the general term of "swiping."

So through questions phrased in terms of "swiping" Dr. John C. Eberhart of the psychology department of Northwestern university recently sought to learn exactly from boys themselves how, where and when they acquire respect for the property rights of others.

Fear of punishment was the frankly ignoble reason given by boys too young to be conscious of the social disapproval of such a viewpoint. From the first to third grades Dr. Eberhart found rapid progress in boys' judgment of the seriousness of theft and a gradual emergence of idealistic reasons for refraining from stealing, indicating a fixation of the pattern of social opinion as a whole.

Wide Range of Subjects.

In making his tests the investigator put 20 questions to 982 subjects including boys from grade and high schools, delinquent boys and adults in classes for the unemployed.

"To swipe your mother's wrist watch and pawn it" was generally voted the most serious offense which Dr. Eberhart put up to the boys, most of whom were taken from schools on the near west side. "To borrow your brother's baseball without asking" was ranked as the least serious of the 20.

Older boys regarded more seriously than younger boys such misdemeanors as "to take a wheel from a wagon you find in the alley, to swipe flowers from a park, to swipe a rubber ball from a dime store counter."

Elements of Heinousness.

The group as a whole thought that to "lift" a dollar from father's trousers' pocket was more reprehensible than to steal a dollar from the boss' desk or a dollar from brother's bank.

"To keep a dollar you see a man drop from his pocket" was considered worse than to take a wagon from a boy's back yard.

When Dr. Eberhart pinned delinquent boys down on their reasons for saying one offense was worse than another, he said he frequently received such answers as "There might be a cop standing there," or "I might get six months in jail for that, but only three months for this." This fear of consequence was expressed by very young boys, too, in terms of "I might get whipped."

"I would be a worse boy later on for doing it" was the reason of the average normally developing boy for refraining.

NAZIS PLAN TO FILE FOUR PHOTOGRAPHS OF EVERY CITIZEN

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—Germany is considering a project for national photographic archives containing four different pictures of every German.

The first photograph, according to the plan, would be taken at the age of 6, the second at 16, the third at about 20, following military or labor service, and the fourth at the age of 30.

One copy of each photograph would be placed in national and district photographic archives, and another would be sent to a "racial research institute," charged with the protection of the race against foreign racial elements. The project is presented in the official journal of the ministry of education but has not yet been officially adopted.

INTENSIFY RAPIST ROUNDUP; 2 MORE WOMEN PERILED

Grecco Is Found; Austin Victims Absolve Him.

Recurrence of attacks on women in the city yesterday caused police to order a general roundup of all known sex-criminals and men who have escaped or been freed from insane asylums, in an effort to find the whipper-rapist of Austin.

Supervising Captain John Stege and Capt. William Malone of the Austin station had thirty detectives at work on this one case, although, of course, every man in the police department is expected to coöperate.

Ralph Greeco, 30 years old, an escaped inmate of the Chicago state hospital for the insane at Dunning, who had been sought for two days, was captured and taken to the detective bureau for questioning.

Captive Cleared in 2 Cases.

There he was viewed by Mrs. Orlando James and Mrs. Fletcher Madison, both of 148 North Mayfield avenue. Mrs. James and Mrs. Madison said Greeco was not the sadist who flogged them with a lead-tipped whip as he raped them.

The latest victims of attempted attacks are Mrs. Patricia Allen, 38 years old, and her daughter, Marie, 18 years old, who were set upon near their home, 732 Bittersweet place. The women screamed and fought off their attacker, who tried to drag Mrs. Allen into an areaway of the building. When their cries attracted aid the assailant fled.

Study Asylum Records.

Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed force, directed the roundup of former asylum inmates, and recalled an attack in 1932 similar to that on Mrs. James.

"Probably he was placed in an asylum shortly afterward," he said, "because we had no more such complaints. It must be the same man now. I am having lists searched for all persons confined in institutions during the last three years."

William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, promulgated yesterday a warning that pupils and teachers refuse automobile rides with strangers.

NAZI CHURCH CHIEF CALLS REBEL PASTORS' SYNOD 'SUPERFLUOUS'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—A spokesman for Hans Kerrl, Nazi church minister, told members of the Confessional church here today that Herrl considers the Confessional church "superfluous." The synod, which has fought to retain its freedom from Nazi dictation, is meeting at Steglitz, a Berlin suburb.

"The only reason the Confessional synod has not been forbidden," the spokesman said, "is that Minister Kerrl does not want to weaken the chances of a compromise. He regards himself as a trustee of the church. The finances of the church have been taken over by the ministry only temporarily."

Kerrl's envoy requested the ninety pastors and laymen present to submit the resolutions they plan to adopt to the church ministry before publishing them.

PROTEST GRADE LEVEL STREET IMPROVEMENT

Protests against the county's $6,500,000 paving program, financed by federal "easy money," came yesterday from property owners who pointed out that improved and widened streets at grade level would make for more speed and greater danger to life and limb.

The formal protest came from owners in Irving Park boulevard between Western and Crawford avenues, who organized under the leadership of Ald. H. L. Brody against the boulevard project.

"The present pavement is satisfactory for local service," the alderman said. "A widened street would be costly in the loss of lives. A heavy stream of through trafic would be detrimental, also, to neighborhood business districts, since they would be split by a dangerous river of vehicles."

This protest, it was pointed out by George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, constitutes another argument for elevated highways. The county had planned to widen and repave Irving Park boulevard between Western and Crawford avenues and between the Outer drive and Ashland avenue.

SWALLOWS HORSHOE NAIL, DIES.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—An emergency operation here today failed to save the life of John Hart, 21, who swallowed a two and one-half inch horshoe nail.

MOTHER LOSES CUSTODY FIGHT AND COLLAPSES

Mrs. Helen Burr, 25 years old, 1100 West 63d street, collapsed yesterday in the court of Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan after the judge awarded custody of her daughter, Grace, 5 years old, to an aunt. The court denied Mrs. Burr's plea for her daughter after hearing testimony that she had taken the girl to a walkathon on several occasions and was allegedly an unfit mother.

Mrs. Burr was quieted by bailiffs in an anteroom. Her brother, Fred Di Boisi, 19 years old, was ordered into custody after Judge Finnegan was informed that he had threatened Attorney A. G. Rosenbaum, who represents Mrs. Burr's husband, Clifford, in her pending divorce suit.

Mrs. Burr alleges desertion and cruelty in her divorce suit. Her husband has filed a cross-bill charging adultery.

Mrs. Frank A. Baker Jr. Divorces Insurance Broker

Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort granted an uncontested divorce yesterday to Mrs. Beatrice Ripley Baker, 29 Indian Hill road, Winnetka, from Frank Allen Baker Jr., a Kansas City insurance broker. Mrs. Baker charged desertion. She was awarded the custody of her daughter, Janice, 3 years old. Mrs. Baker waived alimony.

BYSTANDER SHOT AS RIVAL YOUTHS FIGHT OVER GIRL

Edward Wayer, 38 years old, 1910 West 17th street, was shot last night by a stray bullet, fired during a street fight between a group of young men over the companionship of a 16 year old girl.

Wayer was wounded in the abdomen as he stood on the porch of his home. Marquette police took six men into custody and are seeking three others. According to the story told police, a group of young men in the neighborhood were angry because of the attentions paid Miss Frances Janick, 17 years old, 1940 West 17th street, by Stanley Alleluyka, 1917 West 17th street, and John Golden, 1824 South East avenue, Berwyn.

When these two were to meet the girl near Wayer's home, seven young men appeared, riding in the car of John Solkowski, 1819 West 17th street. One of the seven, Joseph Cios, 21 years old, 3221 Cortez street, began beating Alleluyka with a whip, then the shooting began. Cios is being sought as one of those who fired shots.

GEO. VANDERBILT IS 21; GETS HIS SEVEN MILLIONS

Mother Gives Dance for Him and Bride.

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—George Vanderbilt, son of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who went down with the Lusitania, became 21 years old today and the possessor of 7½ million dollars, one-half of his inheritance.

In honor of his coming of age, his mother, Mrs. Margaret Emerson, held a dance for him and his bride, the former Lucille Parsons of West Orange, N. J., last night at Cedar Knoll, her country estate near Sands Point, L. I.

The Vanderbilts will sail soon for a wedding cruise around the world, stopping in Africa and Indo-China for big-game hunting, a field in which young Vanderbilt has acquired considerable reputation. They returned yesterday from a short trip to Bermuda.

While they are gone Mrs. Emerson will complete a new home for them near her own country estate.

Vanderbilt's elder brother, Alfred Gwynne, like George, was bequeathed 15 millions, or one-half of the estate left by their father. George will receive the other half of his inheritance when he is 35 years old.

MINNESOTA EDITOR ASKS $5,600 DAMAGES FROM EX-OFFICIALS

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Arthur Kasherman, publisher of a tabloid appearing periodically, today filed suit in Hennepin county district court against former Mayor A. G. Bainbridge and Michael J. Johannes, former superintendent of police, asking $5,600 damages for confiscation by police of the May 25 issue of "The Public Press."

Kasherman on June 12, was refused an order restraining the mayor and police chief from interfering with publication of his paper. Later in his hearing before Judge W. C. Leary, he charged that the confiscation was in violation of constitutional assurances of a free press.

Judge Leary at that time sustained the plea of the city attorney's office that "The Public Press," being devoted entirely to information concerning crime, was contrary to law.

Another Minnesota editor, Walter W. Liggett, in tomorrow's issue of his paper, Midwest America, will protest against what he charges to be an effort to silence him. In an open letter to President Roosevelt, Liggett will protest against the restoration last Saturday of the rights of citizenship to Charles A. Ward, St. Paul, millionaire, whom Liggett regards as his enemy. Ward had served a prison term.

MOTOR SHIP OF POLAND ARRIVES 5 HOURS EARLY

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Flying the white and red flag of the young Polish republic, the new 15,000 ton motor liner Pilsudski reached quarantine on its first voyage from Gdynia at 9:41 a. m. today, five hours ahead of schedule.

As the liner, first commercial vessel built for the Polish merchant marine, dropped anchor, two airplanes circled over the ship.

A delegation of city and federal officials and a group of Polish diplomats, as well as representatives of Polish-American organizations, boarded the liner at quarantine.

Among the 795 passengers of the Pilsudski was Col. Adam Koc, Polish undersecretary of finance, who brought greetings from President Ignaz Moscicki to President Roosevelt. Other Polish visitors were Mayor Stefan Starzynsk of Warsaw and Bishop Okoniewski of Gdynia. They will be received at the White House tomorrow.

Rushkiewicz formerly lived at 1038 North Hoyne avenue. He was committed to Elgin last November.

GENERAL MOTORS
announces
FOUR OUTSTANDING CARS
by Buick for 1936

Twenty-seven years ago this September, General Motors Corporation was formed.

The foundation of our organization, the firm base upon which General Motors has grown to be the largest producer of motor cars in the world, was Buick Motor Company.

Down through the crowded years since, no other automobile anywhere has more solidly or deservedly held the allegiance of its substantial public than Buick.

The very name has become symbol of a soundness and integrity of character that neither time nor circumstance has been allowed to impair.

Buick now brings to an expectant market, for 1936, four notable series of new and remarkable cars.

In developing these advanced automobiles, Buick has relied as always upon the mature competence and experienced progressiveness of its own engineering staff.

But in addition it has been advantaged by full and free access to the incomparable engineering, scientific and technical resources of General Motors.

The resulting automobiles are thrillingly new and are unmistakably outstanding, advanced in ability as they are exciting to the eye.

We are proud to share sponsorship with Buick of what we know to be a satisfying expression of modern motor car utility and beauty.

We bespeak your examination of these cars, at any Buick showroom, as being representative of American enterprise in a measure calculated to lead the world.

ONE VICTIM OF BEHEADER STILL IS UNIDENTIFIED

Find Fluid to Preserve the Body Nearby.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The murderer who beheaded two men to present Cleveland with its most bizarre double killing in years, today was the object of feverish police search. The nude bodies of his victims were discovered Monday night in a wasteland ravine.

Detectives were hindered by their inability to identify one of the mutilated men and by the lack of clews left by the person who dumped the bodies in the brush where they were found and who buried the heads in loose sand nearby.

Names scribbled on newspaper margins by Edward A. Andrassy, 28, identified through finger prints as one of the victims, a few blood stained clothes and an old bucket containing a preservative fluid and an old brush are the chief clews to date.

Hold Brother's Slayer.

Police are holding a man who killed a brother of Andrassy three years ago and are seeking a 50 year old man seen bending over bloody clothes in the ravine last Saturday.

They also are checking underworld acquaintances of Andrassy and are looking for a man who appeared at Andrassy's home recently and threatened to kill Andrassy, who was single, if "he doesn't leave my wife alone." It is believed Andrassy was lured to his death about five days ago. The other victim, a stockily-built man of about 40 years of age, was killed two weeks ago, according to Coroner A. J. Pearse.

Hold It Passion Crime.

Because of the nature of the mutilation practiced on the bodies police are inclined to characterize the crime as one of passion rather than gang vengeance.

The stocky body of the older man was turned a dark oak color by a chemical poured over it. The wrists of the body of Andrassy showed rope burns.

Police held that at least one of the men had been killed while dressed and that the body had been stripped after being brought to the ravine. A pair of black cotton socks were on Andrassy's feet.

MYRTLE RETURNS TO JAIL TODAY IN LOST LOVE SUIT

Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue, who has waged a year long legal battle to avoid serving six months in the county jail for her failure to pay a $7,500 judgment, will be surrendered this morning by her attorney, Herbert Wetzel, before Federal Judge William H. Holly. She then will be taken to the county jail, while her attorney makes another effort in the Cook county Superior court to obtain her release.

The judgment was obtained a year and a half ago in the Superior court by Mrs. Suzanne Nottingham, who alleged that Mrs. Blacklidge had stolen the love of her husband, Policeman Norman Nottingham. Mrs. Blacklidge already has served 31 days of the six months' sentence imposed for her failure to pay, but has been at liberty recently on $2,500 bond.

Several months ago she filed a petition before Judge Holly for a writ of habeas corpus, asserting that her bankruptcy is a bar to the jail sentence. Judge Holly dismissed the petition and was sustained by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which last week denied Attorney Wetzel's petition for a rehearing. The formal mandate for Mrs. Blacklidge's arrest was signed yesterday by Judge Holly and was given to Sherif Toman.

CHOIR LEADER ON STAND IN TRIAL AS WIFE SLAYER

Insists He Never Made Any Confession.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Stocky Newell P. Sherman, 26 year old choir leader and scoutmaster, on trial for his life as the murderer of his wife, Alice, swore today he had never confessed the crime.

Sherman's call to the stand was a dramatic interlude in the presentation of the state's case. The jury had been excused for the balance of the day as attorneys wrangled over admissability of the confession the state says he freely made. His own counsel placed the hefty defendant on the stand to relate what he told detectives and how he told it.

Insists It Was Accident.

Declared by the state to have admitted tipping over the canoe in which he and his wife were paddling on Lake Singletary that he might be free to marry pretty, 18 year old Esther Magill, Sherman stuck to his story that his wife's drowning was an accident.

Sherman said the state police questioning him imputed improper relations to him with Miss Magill, but he denied this.

At another point, telling how his wife, the mother of their two children, was thrown into the water after they had been "loving each other" on the shore, Sherman said:

"It was a case of both of us going down if we stuck together.

"I broke away. I'm ashamed to admit it. I waited to see if her body would rise, but it didn't."

Tells of Rides with Girl.

Opening the prosecution's case, District Attorney Owen A. Hoban told the jury in the presence of the parents of Sherman and his dead wife, that the Magill girl first went riding with the defendant in 1933.

Hoban said Sherman parked his car and that he and the girl moved into the back seat where Sherman "attempted familiarities."

Two weeks later, the district attorney continued, they went out again.

Hoban said Miss Magill attempted to break off the affair but that Sherman told her he "loved her more than anyone else" and asked if she would marry him if "if he got rid of his wife." The prosecutor said the girl refused and that Sherman later consulted a lawyer regarding a divorce.

McAdoo Law Partner Sues Jean Paul Getty and Wife

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Col. William Neblett, law partner of U. S. Senator McAdoo today filed suit for $87,000 against Jean Paul Getty, oil magnate, and the latter's estranged wife, the former Ann Rork of the movies, claiming the sum for legal services in representing Mrs. Getty in their divorce arrangements.

CUT ON FINGER IS FATAL.

James L. Day, 28 years old, 1500 Victoria street, died at the County hospital yesterday of blood poisoning resulting from an infected cut on the index finger of his right hand.

SUICIDE AT SEA BARS TESTIMONY IN MALONE CASE

George R. Wolf, former Mount Prospect coal dealer who was missing from a steamer when it landed at Providence, R. I., last Sunday, was to have been a minor witness in the government's income tax case against William H. Malone, former chairman of the state tax commission, who is in Germany, it was learned yesterday in the United States courthouse.

Wolf, who left Cook county several years ago, was the head of the Arlon Cosmetic company of New York. A suicide note was found in his steamer stateroom. His wife, who lives in East Greenwich, R. I., informed Providence police that her husband had been "highly nervous" for some time.

Wolf was questioned here by government agents when the Malone indictment was pending concerning certain business transactions he was alleged to have had with Malone, whose home was in Park Ridge. Horace R. George, acting chief of the intelligence unit here, indicated that the loss of Wolf's testimony would not seriously damage the government's case.

THREE KILLED AS COPING OF BUILDING FALLS

A woman passerby and a man employed as a tuckpointer were killed and another tuckpointer was fatally injured yesterday when the coping gave way on the roof of a building at 6947 South Peoria street where the two men were working. Those killed were Mrs. Thomas Corcoran, 40 years old, 1008 West 70th street, and Nels Nelson, 60 years old, 207 South Troy street. The injured man, Patrick Halloran, 60 years old, 3926 Arthington street, died later in St. Bernard's hospital.

Nelson and Halloran were seated on a scaffold lowered from the coping to the third floor level. When the coping crumbled one of the dislodged stones struck Mrs. Corcoran in the street below. The scaffold fell at the same time, dropping Nelson and Halloran to the ground.

Two other men were injured yesterday in a similar accident on a building at 738 West 60th place. They are Charles Volz, 42 years old, 2121 West 69th place, and Paul Hester, 38 years old, 738 Belden avenue, who were repairing the building roof when the scaffold broke, dropping them twenty-five feet to the ground. At St. Bernard's hospital it was said they would recover.

Buys Victim Drink; Gives Him Gun and Money Back

Shelbyville, Ill., Sept. 24.—(AP)—G. C. Cunningham of Ramsey, a truck driver, today reported to the sherif that he picked up a hitch-hiker in daylight. The passenger, inebriated, robbed him of 75 cents and then forced him to stop at a tavern and accept a drink. Then to make it good, he gave his victim back the 75 cents and the revolver used in the holdup. He got away.

Which is more likely to read your advertising—and Act?

Which? Mrs. Charles Winthrop Peele whose larders are stocked from the ultra shops, and who last dropped in at a grocer's to purchase milk for the Orphans' Fete a dozen years ago? Or . . .

Mrs. John Henry Jones whose family of four are gilt-edge prospects for every grocer, butcher and baker for blocks around?

Which? Mr. J. Wiley Puyster whose suits and shoes are custom-made, and who couldn't name you the brand of gas that powers his twelve-cylinder car? Or . . .

Mr. Joe Andrew Smith who reads the ads that tell about tires, spark plugs and gasoline, and is proud of his car that he chauffeurs himself?

Manufacturers cannot profitably forget that the world is not peopled exclusively with men and women who live on Easy Street and who are perennial patrons of the opera. For whether we like it or not, popular taste for art, literature and science runs to fairly simple and colorful expression. "The Psychology of the Emotions" would be pretty dry brain fare for the average person, but the story of "Four Widowed Cinderellas All Sitting Pretty," as it appeared in The American Weekly, is certain to win an enthusiastic reading.

The man in the street isn't interested in the "Etiological Factors of Hemophilia," but if you tell him that the Royal Family of Spain has a strange disease—that their blood doesn't clot . . . the prick of a pin may cause bleeding to death—even the sport page won't lure him away.

In The American Weekly the great abstractions of science, philosophy, religion and sociology are given form and substance . . . are made to live and breathe under an editorial style that is unique in magazines.

You may not like your culture dispensed with so colorful a hand, but over five and a half million substantial American families each week prove that they do. You won't find their names in Dun & Bradstreet's, but in 1934 only 320,000 people filed U. S. Government tax returns on incomes of $5,000 or more. Contrast this startling minority with the combined buying power of the more than 5,500,000 families who read The American Weekly—most of them with individual incomes ranging from $1,200 to $5,000 a year.

THE LEGION AND THE CONSCRIPTION FALLACY.

The American Legion delegates at St. Louis will receive the usual reports on the commendable work of the Legion, through its Americanization program, to combat communism in the United States. It is typical of the contradictory thought processes of this day that the delegates probably will be asked also to give their approval to a program which, as a potential agency for setting up a communistic state in America, relegates the efforts of all the present agents of the third international to the boondoggling class.

We refer to the so-called war profits or conscription of industry bills, the principles of which have already been indorsed by some leaders of the Legion. It is difficult to sketch the details of those proposals, for the failure of their assorted sponsors to agree on fundamentals, let alone details, was the principal reason for their failure of passage in the last congress.

In its broadest scope, however, the program would give the President power to fix prices, to conscript man power, to commandeer factories and resources, and to put all of the affairs of the country under license and control in the event of war. During the last discussion in congress the draft of civilian labor was knocked out, but that was a mere matter of expediency. Labor need not expect any immunity once the commissars get their hands on the rest of the country.

Under such a measure the communization of America, as completely as Lenin communized Russia, would await only a war. Any war would do. It would be unnecessary to pick a quarrel with Japan, or to join the Ethiopian broil. For the purpose of the Washington plotters it would be sufficient that we intervene in Mexico on behalf of the church, or invade Cuba as collecting agents for the bondholding clients of those stalwart foes of war, Senators Nye and Wheeler.

The communistic war bill must be read in connection with the avowed purpose of the New Dealers who are among its sponsors to create a new society under a new form of government. Their impatience at the obstacles they encounter in the present laws of the country and their interpretation by the courts has been freely expressed by the leader of the movement and by his subordinates. Frustrated in time of peace, they now hope to accomplish their objectives under the cloak of national defense.

The interest of the Legion in such a proposal naturally flows from much higher motives. Its members form that portion of our civilian population which is most familiar with the realities of war. Their experiences move them first of all to demand that the United States remain at peace so long as peace is honorable, and that if we are forced into war that war be waged efficiently, with the full resources of the nation, and with the burden distributed equitably over the whole population.

The aircraft and shipping board scandals of the last war should demonstrate to the Legionnaires just how efficient government control of all industry will be in the next war. Government has never been efficient in business in time of peace. By what transmutation of qualities, what sudden accession of genius, can it be hoped that it will prove competent to administer all industry in a great modern war?

The abstract idea of the conscription of industry has a natural appeal to fighting forces raised by conscription. If they are drafted for the trenches why should not the nation also conscript the plant of the munitions maker, who made millions in profits, and the workers in that plant, who in the last war sometimes made in a day what the doughboy was paid for two or three weeks' service at the front?

But this is attacking the problem of conscription from the wrong end. Every development of military science since the world war indicates that instead of extending conscription from the army to industry we should abolish it in the army, save perhaps as a last resort when invasion threatens the very existence of the nation.

Man power is the most expensive material of warfare, even of the highly mechanized warfare which is visioned in the future, for the reasons that it is irreplaceable and that its losses extend beyond the war period on through the decades of peace which follow. Napoleon demonstrated that, but the generals who worshiped his strategy chose to forget the extent to which his sacrifice of the magnificent armies of Carnot contributed to his final downfall.

Warfare between huge conscript armies will always be the most wasteful of man power. Such vast resources tend to make any general nigger-rich, especially if he has a few half assimilated doses of Clausewitz under his belt. Tricked by the false gospel that blood is the price of victory, the generals of the world war piled up their holocaust of millions in the trench deadlock. They got the blood, but not the victory.

A huge conscript war machine such as Germany wheeled through Belgium is today as out of date as the Macedonian phalanx. Speed of maneuver, concentration of fire, and protection of man power form the essence of the army of tomorrow. Whether that army reaches the extreme conception of Liddell Hart, with its new cavalry of speedy light tanks, or only the more moderate mechanization toward which Gen. MacArthur has been guiding the American army, it has little use for millions of conscripts.

Even the vast industrial machine of the United States would fall short of maintaining on a mechanized basis the millions of men we raised for the world war. In that war we had approximately ten men on the home front to every one in the army. The war of the future will demand that that ratio be raised to twenty to one, perhaps fifty to one. What government has ever displayed ability to administer such a vast industrial war machine?

After the last war the fighting forces came home to find that the prohibitionists had moved in behind their backs. Let those veterans beware a scheme which will enable the commissars to move in behind the backs of our next army.

BACK TO AMERICAN RELIEF.

The campaign to raise money for the Chicago Community Fund is now under way. The objective is $3,200,000, an increase of $200,000 over last year, justified by the addition of seventeen agencies and by the increase of demands throughout the broad field of the fund's relief activity. Every major charity of the community is assisted from this central resource, Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish, and the fund announces that none of the 147 charities represented will make additional appeals. The importance of raising the sum needed by this central reservoir is therefore or should be obvious to every one who recognizes a duty or a privilege in contributing to the aid of their needy fellow beings.

Contributions to this ably administered fund will be distributed throughout the whole field of welfare service, to child care agencies, neighborhood agencies, health agencies, family service, and protective agencies. The Community Fund represents a marked advance in the organization and administration of private relief, reducing its cost and thereby increasing the amount of every contribution which goes direct to the beneficiary. It also has the advantage of providing the contributor with a means of making his gift, however modest, go where it is most needed or of distributing it among different kinds of welfare work according to their needs as understood by a central agency able to see the whole field. This means economy, removal of waste, and maximum results for the needy and for the community.

The fund was established only five years ago, but it has proved its value. Many conscientious men and women, able and willing to help their neighbors who are in need, no doubt feel that the enormous expenditures of government for which they are and will be taxed ought to constitute their contribution to charity, but unfortunately it does not meet the real situation. Government charity is highly inefficient and wasteful. It notoriously is perverted by political influence, and while deserving cases are neglected, undeserving are rewarded for nothing but pull.

But even if this were not scandalously prevalent and were reduced to the minimum, still government charity would not and could not be as efficient as private. It has to proceed on rigid general rules to meet the bare necessities of living, while local private welfare service is able to deal with human needs hardly less urgent than food and shelter. Private local charity can and does serve social needs of great importance to the peace and happiness not only of the individual but of the community, and it must always be maintained.

In short, the huge expenditure of political-governmental relief, the centralization and standardization it involves, as well as the perversion of its uses to the ends of political power, make it all the more necessary that private welfare should be preserved and made more efficient and effective. For it should be the determined purpose of the American people to get rid, as fast as conditions, political and economic, permit, of the juggernaut of federal relief and to take over again the local responsibilities which they can so much more efficiently fulfill. This restoration is conditioned upon the continued support of the established private agencies which the Chicago Community Fund resists.

Donations, large or small, according to individual means, are sought, and we hope response to the appeal of this very important and admirably conducted organization will be prompt and generous. The Community Fund represents the American spirit of intelligent charity, of neighborly responsibility, directed by disinterestedness which cannot be turned to ulterior ends.

Editorial of the Day

A REASONABLE TIME.

[Memphis Commercial-Appeal.]

Rejection by the Alabama legislature of the child labor amendment recalls that this amendment has been before the people now for 11 years. In spite of vigorous campaigns in various parts of the country, it is pretty generally admitted that it will not be ratified by 36 states. That it will not be ratified is reasonable to assume if for no other reason than that it should not be ratified.

No amendment giving congress power to regulate the habits of boys and girls under 18 years of age has any business in the constitution. Now that there is a general opposition to amendments of any sort, it is highly probable that the child labor amendment is dead and doomed.

However, in the absence of any provision to the contrary, it may continue to be the subject of agitation for a long while. Constitutional experts agree that an amendment that is pending for a number of years must become dead after a reasonable time. But what is a reasonable time? It would seem that 11 years is. The last 11 years have taken the country through varying moods and degrees of political and economic thought. During these years the country has been conservative and liberal. If the child labor amendment did not possess enough merit to receive the assent of 36 states during the period there is extreme doubt that it ever will.

It would, therefore, be quite proper for the Supreme court of the United States to be asked to declare that a reasonable time has passed and that the country should no longer be bothered by the continual suggestion that the states ratify the amendment.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

His Greatest Moment.

Of course we all loved to hear De Wolf Hopper recite "Casey at the Bat," but that wasn't the best thing he ever did on the stage. It was immensely popular and audiences cried for it, but the finest thing Wolfie ever did was his Mark Antony speech at Cæsar's funeral. Wolfie never wanted to be a clown; his ambition was to play heavy tragedy and do all the great rôles in Shakespeare's plays, but nature was against him; he was too tall. "Think of you playing Romeo," they told him; "why, you'd be as tall as Juliet when she was standing on the balcony and the house would roar. Or Hamlet, or Othello, or any Shakespearean rôle. No, Wolfie, you're too funny looking ever to play tragedy; it's comedy for you, my lad; good, hilarious laughing stuff." And so Wolfie became a comedian and a great comedian; there never was a better one on the stage. But down in his heart he mourned all his life because he couldn't wear the mantle of Macready, McCullough, Booth, and Barrett.

But his moment came to do a great Shakespearean rôle and to do it twice, once in New York and once in Chicago. It was at a Lambs' Gambie a good many years ago. At Wolfie's almost tearful plea to be permitted to play Antony in the mob scene from "Julius Cæsar" the good natured Lambs said yes—"It'll be a scream," they told him. But Wolfie was determined. I saw him play the part in Chicago. I have seen many great Antonys, but none so good as Wolfie. He was simply tremendous in the part. The crowd snickered when he began. He was the queerest looking Antony they had ever seen. People from various corners of the house began shouting for "Casey at the Bat." But Wolfie plunged boldly into his opening lines:

"Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears;
I came to bury Cæsar, not to praise him . . ."

"Casey, Casey, Casey," roared the gallery. But Wofie continued his speech. And gradually the audience subsided, grew silent, and then gazed at him in wonder and astonishment. It was a new De Wolf Hopper, one they had never seen before. And as the fervor and richness of his performance in that magnificent scene mounted the audience was thrilled as I've scarcely ever seen one to be in my life.

And none of us can ever forget how wonderfully he handled the tag lines of his speech. He had wept tears and made his audience weep as he stood over the body of Cæsar and drew away the mantle and spoke the part of the funeral oration beginning:

"If you have tears, prepare to shed them now."

Then his voice ran the gamut of emotions as he read Cæsar's will and told of his devotion to the Roman people. And after Antony had inflamed the mob and sent them scampering in every direction to kill and burn in the maddest fury, a cunning came into his face as he sank down exhausted on a bench and said in a half whisper full of malice and hate and satanic gloating over the way he had tricked Brutus and driven the mob into a frenzy:

"Now let it work. Mischief, thou art afoot, Take thou what course thou wilt."

And next day De Wolfe Hopper went back to clowning. But those who heard his speech as Antony can say with the nurse in "Romeo and Juliet":

"An I should live a thousand years

POEM FOR A BUTTERFLY.

(Twice Seen Above North Michigan Boulevard.)

From what far country have you flown to me,
Oh purple petal falling through a dream?
You dip and flutter in uncertainty,
Intrepid one, above the traffic stream.

Where thought and action tremble in the street
You swing above in some blue diaphane,
Spectator-look of giant buildings, sweet,
Know nothing of your elastic strain.

Could I direct you, Ariadne's thread
Would not engage so tender a design;
From what far tomb . . . and from what ancient dead
Do you appear each evening at nine?

Though time compels and business will not wait—
You have precedence, dear and silent thing!
Beyond the world of treason and of hate
Are alphabets of beauty in a wing.

Reveal to me your theory of space
When you were born Democritus in Thrace.

LOUIS AND BAER probably settled their little argument last night (I'm writing this several hours before the affair takes place), and as soon as the Cubs win those two games with St. Louis I'm going to look around and see what's happened in the world. Let's see, wasn't Mussolini going to make war on Mexico or Tasmania or some place or other? What became of that war, anyhow? But don't tell me now; I can't pay attention to things like that until the Cubs win those two games.

BOWLEGS AND KNOCKKNEES.

RICKETS is an ancient disease, known to the Alexandrian school and described by Roman physicians. Years ago its geographical distribution was found to be definitly related to the number of sunny days. Only in recent years, however, has the true character of the disease been discovered and the methods of prevention clearly pointed out. There is today no excuse for its existence. Nevertheless, we have among growing children many cases and tens of thousands of adults are living with its deforming effects.

Two conditions—bowlegs and knockknees—owe their origin to rickets, yet each presents a totally different appearance. In nearly 13,000 orthopedic patients applying for care at the Boston Children's hospital there were 1,000 cases of bowlegs and 750 of knockknees. A trained observer stood on a street corner and counted the persons with either type of deformity. Among 2,000 adult males there were 400.

Bowlegs are due to the outward bending of the bones of the legs because the weight of the upper part of the body is too great for the disease softened bones. The condition does not occur in healthy children as a result of walking too soon. Rickets, as we now know, prevents the growth of firm normal bone.

Every healthy individual on standing erect can touch the knees and the ankles together without effort. Bowlegged persons cannot do this. Sometimes the curve is confined almost entirely to the large bones of the lower legs, although both the thigh and the leg bones are usually involved. As a result of the outward bend of the leg there is nearly always an inward twist of the ankle and the child is inclined to "toe in" when walking. Furthermore, he usually walks with his legs wide apart. If the deformity is severe the stride may be a perceptible waddle or a ducklike gait.

Sometimes young mothers are disturbed because the infant will appear to curve his legs. If rickets is not present there is rarely a permanent deformity. Young men or young women particularly will often request a physical examination because they believe the deformity acquired in childhood is increasing. This is not the case, although as growth proceeds the curve will appear wider.

Under direction the mother can accomplish much in straightening the child's legs, particularly if the disease [rickets] has been arrested. The best type of manipulation consists of pressing the legs together with the knees held straight; that is, not bent. Strong pressure should not be used, as in a growing child too much strain may be put on that portion of the bone where growth occurs [the epiphysis] and a fracture or separation may result. There are numerous braces that have been devised by orthopedic surgeons that function satisfactorily.

Knockknees is just the opposite condition. There is an inward prominence of the knee that is so great that the lower legs spread apart at a wide angle. This again is largely due to rickets and is occasioned by an abnormally rapid growth of the inner aspect of the knee. The peculiar gait of the knockkneed person is quite characteristic. If he walks normally his knees will interfere. As a result he also "toes in" in order to separate the knees. Furthermore, on standing on one leg, he has a tendency to bend the body to one side. Stumbling and frequent falls are common in knockkneed children.

It is important to recognize both bowlegs and knockknees at an early date so that manipulations and exercises may be instituted. Plaster of Paris bandages are valuable in bringing the legs back to normal and fixing them in a more nearly correct alignment. After the return to a fair degree of normalcy the plaster bandages should be removed and protective splints substituted.

Whenever the deformity has reached the point where the bone is firm and unyielding surgical methods may be required.

Prevention is all important, and children, regardless of diet, should receive cod liver oil, sunshine, and open air exercise.

VACCINATION.

A. J. T. writes: Does a successful vaccination against smallpox confer immunity throughout life or must one be revaccinated? If so, how often?

REPLY.

William Jenner, who discovered vaccination against smallpox, believed that a single successful vaccination conferred lifelong immunity. The occurrence of smallpox in previously vaccinated persons became so frequent, however, in the later years of his life that the one vaccination theory was thrown into popular disrepute.

Immunity wears off in time and there are reports of individuals who have been vaccinated every four or five years and who show good "takes" each time. In most cases one vaccination every eight to ten years is all that is required. Even this is a precautionary measure rather than a necessity, as "takes" following a successful vaccination are rare, even after twenty years.

STIFFNESS IN KNEE.

M. G. G. writes: For twenty months I had a 10 pound extension weight on my left leg, due to tuberculosis of the hip joint. Since the extension was removed the knee joint has become very stiff. Why is this? What muscles and ligaments are involved? Will the condition yield to treatment? What procedure should I follow to get movement back to the knee?

REPLY.

The stiffness in the knee joint is due to the strain on the lateral and crucial ligaments of the knee. When the extension was used the major pull was probably transmitted through the knee, necessarily subjecting the ligaments of the knee to undue and abnormal tension. Local applications of hot, wet compresses, gentle massage, and limited exercise should improve the condition. It is largely a question of time.

JOINT TENANCY ONE WAY.

Mason City, Ia., Sept. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I own a piece of property in my name. We have no children and I want this property to go to my husband in case of my death. 1. What would be the cheapest and safest way to do this? 2. Should a will be made deeding the property to him [3] or should I sign a deed, deeding the property to him, to be put on record after my death? 4. Would this method have to be probated and would my husband have to pay inheritance tax? I understand Iowa law requires a year before probate can take place and then held up another year. In other words, the property would be tied up for two years. 5. If I changed this record to read husband and wife and put on record before my death, and in the event either one passed away, would his share go to me, or would his father and mother and brothers and sisters, who are living, become heirs to his one-half share of the property?

M. J.

1. A joint tenancy would save the expense of probate, but it might not suit your wishes to give your husband a present interest.

2. This would be the proper course if you do not wish to give him a present interest.

3. Since a deed is not valid unless delivered during the life of the grantor, the course which you suggest would invite litigation as to the validity of the deed.

4. In case of joint tenancy there would be a tax on one-half. In the case of a will, a tax on the full amount. We advise against the unrecorded deed.

5. If you place the title in joint tenancy the survivor would take to the exclusion of heirs. We advise you to employ an attorney.

INTEREST.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a loan on my life insurance policy. The interest is paid to July 15, 1935. The insurance company requests payment of interest one year in advance. They advise that if interest is not paid in advance it will be added to the principal and bear interest. Can they legally do this?

A. B. R.

In general, an agreement to pay interest on interest to accrue in future would amount to compound interest which would not be permissible. It seems probable, however, that there are additional facts involved which avoid this defense. We suggest that you ask the insurance company to explain how they avoid this difficulty.

GUARDIAN AND WARD.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have been left an amount of money by my grandfather who lived in Iowa. As I am not of age, can my mother be appointed my legal guardian? If so what legal steps must be taken? If my mother cannot be appointed and the amount were $50, what would a lawyer charge to become my guardian?

L. J.

The Probate court has jurisdiction to appoint a guardian for the person or the property of minors, lunatics, idiots, people of unsound minds, drunkards, and spendthrifts. Or a guardian may be appointed for the person or property of any other person upon his own application [cc. 539-42].

A guardian has control of the property or person, or both, as the case may be, subject to the control of the court, and has the authority, with the approval of the court, to sell the property of the ward for any purpose which may be deemed conducive to his interest.

He is required to give bond and to make annual reports of receipts and disbursements, etc., during the continuance of the disability, and upon its removal to make a final report. He can be exonerated from responsibility only upon the filing of such final report and notice to the ward of the time and place of hearing thereon [c 539]. [Revised statutes.]

THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS ABSOLUTE CERTAINTY OF GUILT IN COURT
BILL VENN

No court was ever absolutely certain that any man was guilty or that he was innocent. Even the testimony of witnesses is very likely to be in error, for it has been demonstrated many times that a person cannot always believe his own eyes and that no two persons see the same thing when witnessing a tragedy. All that any court can obtain regarding any prisoner is a high degree of probability that he is guilty. Even when this "probability" is held rigidly to a high standard some innocent persons are convicted.

AN EXPANDED LOOP.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—The proposed razing of the loop was no doubt inspired by a similar razing planned in New York City. While the antiquated New York elevated, due to its limited coverage and subservience to the subways and other forms of transportation, might conveniently be dispensed with, the Chicago Rapid Transit, including the ingenious routing of all trains into and around the loop, could not be removed without seriously impairing Chicago's transportation system and further affecting its already tangled traction problem. The Chicago L, in its way, is as much an indispensable mode of modern urban transportation as the subway is in New York City.

The loop may prove a deterrent to the development of downtown Chicago, but the remedy surely does not lie in the complete razing of the loop structure. The loop might be expanded beyond its present limits to embrace a loop defined by Harrison, Wabash, Lake and the east bank of the Chicago river. The present elevated stub on Wacker drive might then be moved to Canal street, Wacker drive extended to Congress, and another boulevard loop for vehicular trafic provided bounded by Congress street, Michigan avenue, and Wacker drive.

Chicago's past development has been characterized by its disregard for barriers—natural or otherwise—but, without a subway, it is not quite ready to abandon its elevated system. Instead, having completed its first century, or ring of growth as epitomized by the present loop structure, a new ring should be provided to accommodate the further growth and expansion entertained for the second century of this ambitious and enterprising young American metropolis.

THOUGHTS ON THE CONSTITUTION.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—The strong, clear mandate of the constitution of the United States to every elected and appointed official from the chief executive down all the way to the least is: "You mind your own business and let alone all the business not specifically delegated to you."

That constitution gives only carefully defined and carefully limited powers and authority. Any act or attempted act by any officer of the federal government, from the highest to the least, which exceeds the authority thus explicitly given to him thereby engages in rebellion against the constitution of the United States, against the several states which comprise our Union, and against the personal liberties of all our citizens.

So vital is this to the welfare of each of us that all our officials are required to support and protect the constitution.

Self-serving professions of good intentions and "breathing spells" cannot give the assurance to careful business men of stabilized conditions which must precede great investments in heavy, permanent industries, and thus provide the only sure foundation for complete, lasting recovery.

By amendment the constitution is, by its own terms, made almost infinitely flexible, but this can only be done under conditions which provide for deliberation, discussion, and nation-wide information for every citizen. This is no place for hasty experiment. We have had something too much of that already.

DEMANDS HALT IN REVISION OF CONSTITUTION

Mining Congress Warned of Dictator Danger.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"Save the Constitution for the sake of human progress."

This should be the war cry of men of good will in the present national political crisis, according to Ralph E. Flanders, president of Jones & Lamson Machine company, who spoke at yesterday's session of the American Mining congress at the Palmer house.

He presented a program of progress for the operation and control of our machine civilization and then referred to the Constitution, under which he said every element of the program could be carried out.

"Those who contend that social progress requires a change in that document are following false doctrins," he said. "They seek to arm the federal government with new powers of control which we have seen to be fatal to the ends sought, and which in practice will be destructive to government as we have known it.

Must Be Halted in Time.

"It does not matter that the legislative branch has no intention of surrendering its functions. It does not matter if the executive abhors the idea of dictatorship. The course of events is an irreversible one when once entered upon. No nation has yet made a return ascent to liberty, democracy and plenty.

"For us the fatal step will be a constitutional revision which makes the federal government arbiter of the details of the daily business of farmer, worker and employer. That step must not be taken.

"The danger is that we who are intent on freedom may permit ourselves to be maneuvered into the position of defending the constitution as against human needs. The contest already is shaping in those terms. It would be incredibly calamitious for us to be drawn further into that absurdity. As we have seen, the constitution stands hand in hand with and supports the program which will serve human needs and preserve human rights."

Urges Stable Money.

Mr. Flanders in his program proposed a continuing trust in machinery and organization as the only source of increased production of goods and services at lower cost, development of new monetary policies as a basis of stability, gradual removal of artificial support of agriculture, labor and industry, and general encouragement of the production of wealth.

He would make "provision of simple subsistence for the entire population at all times, to be given only in return for honest, useful labor for those able to work, by direct support in case of disability by reason of youth, age or ill health; this policy becoming practical for the first time as the preceding policies reduce human need and multiply national resources."

Briton Suggests "Wages Board."

A "wages board," which would decree rises in all wages and salaries in the lower brackets until the 1928 general price level was restored, or until labor and capital become comfortably employed was proposed by A. G. McGregor, a London engineer.

"I have journeyed 4,000 miles from a country which has been in depression 15 years," he said, "to tell you that things now being done in the hope of restoring prosperity in this country will serve only to hold it firmly in depression.

"The government has a most important obligation to industry, but to interfere with economic liberty and supply and demand brings an avalanche of duties, not one of which can be satisfactorily discharged by the government.

"The government should discharge a basic and vital duty, a duty which only the government is fitted to perform. I refer to the government's obligation to the dollar.

Pleads for 1928 Price Level.

"The control of the buying power of the dollar is surely a governmental responsibility. Its buying power, or the general price level, if you like, should be put back to the 1928 level promptly and kept there. When the government seriously considers discharging that duty by the only possible means economic liberty dominated by supply and demand will rout depression over night, never to return."

McGregor would have a national wages board and state boards, with control of wages and salaries under $4,000 a year and such wages and salaries paid on a scale "that will keep consuming power in step with productive power for the best interests of employers as well as employed."

(Other news o the mining congress will be fund in the financial section.)

CHURCHES OUT OF WPA WELFARE PLAN; NYA TO FATHER THE IDEA

Ralph H. Burke, deputy administrator of the Federal Works Progress administration for Illinois, announced yesterday that a proposed recreational and welfare program for churches in Chicago would be placed in its entirety under the National Youth administration on a non-sectarian basis. As originally set up the program had been divided with $427,100 for Jewish synagogues, $1,769,000 for Catholic churches and $1,300,675 for Protestant churches.

After Burke's announcement, details were given out by William J. Campbell, state director of the youth administration.

"There will be no allotments to religious groups," said Campbell. "We will survey churches, institutions and playgrounds for recreational facilities and furnish personnel to be under our supervision for the program."

The three projects were sponsored by the Chicago recreational commission. They were approved by the local WPA office and are pending in Washington.

COMMUNITY FUND WILL FIGHT CHAOS AMONG CHILDREN

Drive to Benefit Seven Day Nurseries.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Trying to build normal children out of the emotionally-chaotic families of the depression is the principal concern this fall of the Mary Crane Nursery school, 818 Gilpin place, one of the seven day nurseries among the 147 welfare agencies participating in the Community Fund of Chicago.

Located in Hull house, in the heart of a foreign population that has been fiercely hit by the recent lean years, the school was established in 1925 under the joint auspices of the National College of Education and Hull house, but now relies on the Community fund for fully half its budget. This budget, and those of 146 other agencies, will be determined by the success of the $3,200,000 drive—the fund's fifth annual appeal—which opens on Sept. 30.

Face Toughest Problem.

"We have been operating for ten years," Miss Nina M. Kenagy, director, explained, "and yet this year we face the greatest problem of all, for we are having to teach them, in school, to forget the sense of insecurity, the emotional strain and the complete loss of morale in their depression, stricken homes.

The school has a capacity of only 50 children [between the ages of 2 and 6 years] and Miss Kenagy says that hundreds are on the application list.

"Our work is only a drop in the bucket compared to the need in the community," she said. "We feel that now there is a greater need than ever because of the emotional stress and strain in the home and its effect on the children.

"And that strain," she added, "is becoming more intense daily, as the parental mind becomes more and more oppressed with unemployment, fear and poverty. Most of our families are on relief. Sometimes a mother has work, sometimes a father, but never both."

25c Fee Seldom Paid.

For this reason, although the school has a fee of 25 cents a day, it is a sliding scale—"from 25 cents to nothing"—with emphasis on the nothing. In addition the children are supplied with clothing, medical care and social service through affiliated agencies known as the Mary Crane Unit for Pre-School children. During the summer they are given two-week outings at the Waukegan Country club.

A tiptoed tour through the school at 2:30 yesterday afternoon substantiated Miss Kenagy's contention that its children are having a "normal childhood." In their little cots the children were sleeping soundly except one from which two brown eyes peeped mischievously to see what the others were doing.

W-G-N HAS 1,000 GUESTS AN HOUR AT OPEN HOUSE

Visitors at the rate of more than 1,000 an hour continued their influx into the new studios of W-G-N yesterday during the third open house period arranged for the public. Today's final preview will begin at 10 a. m. and close at 2 p. m. Added to the Sunday preview crowd of 4,368 and the Monday crowd of 4,022, yesterday's four hour stream of guests brought the total to 12,705. Meantime applications for tickets to the free public broadcasts poured in at a volume which studio officials considered "astonishing." The first visible broadcasts have not yet been scheduled. Applications will be honored in the order of their receipt.

WORK PROJECTS IN JAM; RELIEF LOAD PILES UP

5,000 More Families Will Go on October Rolls.

Preliminary studies disclosed yesterday that the Illinois relief load will be increased by 5,000 families next month because of the failure of the federal government to speed up the Works Progress administration program. Last week Washington shut off further relief funds for this month, leaving the Illinois Emergency Relief commission $1,000,000 short, and officials predicted similar action by the government in October.

Estimates on the relief load will be submitted to members of the commission at a meeting Friday afternoon. The estimated number of families on relief in Illinois this month is 285,000, which was an increase of 7,000 over the load for August.

Delays Mark Works Program.

The administration's aim, as enunciated by President Roosevelt in his message to congress last Jan. 3, was to shift "employables" from relief to work projects. Congress voted four billion dollars for the works program and 880 millions for direct relief until the shift was made. After several postponements it was announced that on Nov. 1 the goal of transferring 3,500,000 persons from relief to employment would be reached.

If the situation in Illinois is any indication the date will have to be shoved ahead again, officials here said. There are only 6,000 persons at work under WPA here and the state goal, according to federal edict, is the employment of 166,000.

Ralph H. Burke, deputy WPA administrator for Illinois, reported to the relief commission that by Oct. 15 he hoped there would be 42,700 employed.

Projects Caught in Jam.

The records show that the state WPA office has not caused the delay. Although the Illinois officials have sent 3,941 projects to Washington, calling for 451 million dollars' worth of projects in the state, the proposals have run into the jam of federal machinery.

One large project was approved. This was an outright grant of $32,543,000 for improving and resurfacing nearly 1,000 miles of streets in Chicago. Presidential approval was announced on July 31. On Sept. 12 Controler General J. R. McCarl approved the proposal. The money was deposited by the treasury department in Chicago and made available on Sept. 16.

On the following day, Sept. 17, the first men went to work grading unimproved streets and now there are 2,000 employed on the program. Further employment has been held up, however, by the treasury office here, which must advertise for bids and award contracts for materials, equipment and services. Specifications were given to the treasury department a week ago by Oscar Hewitt, city commissioner of public works.

50 MILLION U. S. TRAVELERS BEAT RECORD OF 1934

Spend $5,350,000,000 in Their Wanderings.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

Fifty million Americans traveled in their own and foreign countries during the summer and in doing so spent something like $5,350,000,000. Their total number was 30 per cent greater than last year's, and their expenditures were $400,000,000 greater. In the course of their ramblings they gave the transportation industry—railroads, steamship lines, bus lines, air lines, and automobiles—a big push in its steady climb toward the top rank in world industries.

Following the astronomical end of summer Monday evening, Chicago travel experts spent yesterday in counting up the totals, both in people and money. While the exact figures won't be available for some time, there were enough approximate figures to show the trend travel had taken in the season just closed. That trend, as far as this country was concerned, was unmistakably western.

National Parks Set Records.

Yellowstone and Glacier, for instance, broke their all-time attendance records. More than 3,500,000 persons visited the national parks in the Rockies, the Sierras, and the southwest. Nearly 4,000,000 have taken in the San Diego fair. The average trafic increase on the major railroads running westward out of Chicago was 25 per cent. The eastern roads also gained, but to a lesser extent. The bus lines had an increase of about 15 per cent.

King George's silver jubilee attracted more visitors from this country to England than had been there in ten years. Egypt, Austria, Hungary, Russia, Czechoslovakia, and the Scandinavian countries showed increases of from 30 to 40 per cent over last year's totals.

Canada had a gain of 25 per cent. The expenditures of visitors in Mexico were estimated at $70,000,000, as compared with $41,000,000 for 1934 and $33,000,000 for 1933. The South American countries had increases all the way up to 100 per cent.

Along travel row in Chicago these figures divided interest yesterday with that in two new ocean liners, the motorship Pilsudski, due to make its first appearance in New York last evening, and the giant Queen Mary, now being rushed to completion.

Built As Tourist Ship.

The Pilsudski is the first trans-Atlantic liner to be built by Poland since that nation regained its independence. It is the first to be built as a tourist ship, with tourist class accommodations as the best available on board. It is the first in maritime history to be built on a barter basis. Together with its sister ship, the Batory, it is being paid for in 31,000,000 zlotys' worth of coal, to be shipped from Poland to Italian railways over a five-year period. At its normal speed of 18 knots it will cut down the traveling time from New York to Gdynia, on the Baltic, from 12 to 8½ days. As the flagship of the young Polish fleet it will operate between New York and Gdynia by way of Halifax and Copenhagen.

After having left Poland on its maiden voyage Sept. 15, the Pilsudski was slated for an elaborate welcome in New York. M. S. Szymczak, Chicago's representative on the federal reserve board, was chairman of the reception committee. Other Chicagoans on the committee, as announced by the Gdynia-America line, were Mayor Kelly, Congressmen Leo Kocialkowski and Leonard W. Schuetz, Walter J. Cummings, Charles S. Dewey, Chauncey McCormick, Col. A. A. Sprague, and James Simpson.

Tomorrow will mark the first anniversary of the launching of the Queen Mary in the River Clyde in Scotland. The hull and upper decks of the liner now are virtually completed, and the vast interior is ready for the army of craftsmen who will take care of the decorating and equipment. Two of the funnels have been erected in recent weeks, and the third and last is being finished in the shipyard workshop. Miles of teak have been used in laying down the planking on the twelve decks, the total area of which will approximate 20 acres. The name, 55 feet long, has been fastened in brass on the bows of the ship.

Trial runs of the Queen Mary will be held around May 21 of next year, and it will be placed in the trans-Atlantic service about a month later.

WINTER VACATION CRUISES OFFERED TO SPANISH MAIN

Pages of History Opened for Travelers.

Ice cream-colored houses, the scarlet hibiscus, the hidden chambers of ancient castles, the haunting beauty of Andalusia, the stark simplicity of native life in unkempt huts—all these in the sunlit setting of the American tropics—are a few of the attractions for those northerners who escape winter, or a part of it, by cruising the Caribbean.

One of the steamship lines operating out of New York will send its flagship this winter to such ports as St. Thomas, St. Lucia, Port-of-Spain, La Guaira, Nassau, Cartagena, Colon, Kingston, Port-au-Prince, and Havana. There will be seven cruises, starting with one over the Christmas holidays and ending with one over Easter. The minimum rates will vary from $97.50 for a trip lasting 8 days to $210 for those lasting 18 days.

The trips are designed to take the winter vacationists back through the pages of history to the time when the Spanish Main was a parade ground for conquistadores, for galleons filled with chests of gold, and for hijackers and pirate chiefs.

Havana, left off such cruises in previous years because of the unrest down there, this year will be included in each of the 7 itineraries. Now that conditions have become more or less settled in the Cuban capital, it promises to recapture its former popularity with Americans. Jai alai, the races, and the cock fights, along with the foreign section and the night life, will gather them in.

Cartagena, Colombia, to be visited by those taking the midwinter cruises, was built by Philip II. of Spain in the days of the gold fleets. The narrow, tortuous streets lead to the Church of San Pedro, dating back to the 16th century.

Colon, the objective of nearly all tourists to the southlands, is known both for its exotic night clubs and as the gateway to the Gatun locks. Few visitors to Panama fail to go out to the locks to see the electric "mules" pulling the gigantic liners on their way through the canal.

For the name of the steamship line operating these cruises, or any further information concerning them, call the Tribune Travel bureau, Superior 0100, local 707 or 734, or write the bureau at 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Veritable Jungle

September 24, 1935.

ALTHOUGH some of the hemp on the Wheaton experimental farm of THE TRIBUNE has been cut and stacked wigwam style, there is enough of this tall plant still standing to lend a "jungle" atmosphere to one corner to the test plot. When I was walking around the planted area the other day I was amazed at the height of the hemp. Some of the stalks still standing are easily ten feet high.

But the peanuts growing in the test plot caught my eye. I scraped some of the dirt away from the roots. They are there, all right, so well developed that the inclination is to dig up a few and put them in a peanut roaster.

The sheep that are in the big, big open field south of the plot where the peanuts, hemp, and other crops are growing apparently are taking no chances on getting sunburned on warm, mellow September days. When I was slowly walking around the place the other day [around 4 o'clock in the afternoon], I was surprised to find the sheep curled up in the shade on the banks of the drainage ditch that divides their field from the test plots.

This deep ditch in which there is a small stream has a line of trees and shrubs on each bank. This vegetation provides plenty of shade. In fact, between the shade and the cooling stream of water the banks are just about ideal for an afternoon siesta. The sheep have learned this, so they leave the open sun drenched fields in the afternoon and sleep in this shady retreat, apparently oblivious to all the talk and activity in the test plots just across the stream from them.

Fall plowing has started on the Wheaton farm. I saw the tractor and the plow in action the other day when I hiked over the farm to look at the birds on the big pond. Rawlings had told me that about 20 teal were on the pond in the morning, so I hurried over to see them.

When I walked through the heavy stand of wild asters and sunflowers around the pond I could see some of the swans and geese on the water—all with their heads up watching me. The geese sounded a few warning "awnks" when they saw me coming toward the water and then slowly cruised around to see what was going to happen next. Not a sign of a duck did I see—at first.

Then the mallard squad started to quack away over to the left where the wild flowers shut off my view. Soon the ducks came steaming round the corner. But nary a teal was in sight.

Then, looking closer, I saw one. It was a little blue winged teal—bringing up the rear. He looked mighty small next to the husky mallards. Although I got within 75 feet of the birds the teal didn't fly. He just crowded in closer to the big mallards and kept right on swimming.

135 JAP WARSHIPS BEGIN MIMIC WAR IN NORTH PACIFIC

Maneuvers of 3 Fleets Marked by Secrecy.

TOKIO, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Prince Hiroyasu Fushimi, admiral of the Japanese fleet, today commanded it for the climatic maneuvers of the secret war games in the northwest Pacific. The combined first, second, and fourth fleets, with about 135 warships, were participating.

Departure of Prince Fushimi from Tokio was not mentioned in the press in keeping with the attitude of complete secrecy which has been maintained throughout the last ten days regarding the fleet's defense maneuvers.

Defense Planned Against U. S.

The ships are engaged in problems understood to aim at a defense against an invading "enemy" which could come only from the direction of American territory. A high naval authority disavowed, however, that the plans were in any way related to the summer war games of the United States fleet in the California-Hawaii-Alaska triangle.

The navy office flatly declined to disclose the whereabouts of the war games, merely saying they would end about Oct. 1 and the fleet return to Tokio bay Oct. 4.

But the close-mouthed officialdom failed to keep secret the navy's tests of numerous ports in the northern islands for naval defense. Units were reported to have visited anchorages around the Gulf of Mutsu, Northern Honshu, Hakodate, Muroran, Nemuro, and Otaru in Hokkaido province.

Limited by Funds.

High Japanese naval authorities said the appropriation of only about $1,800,000 limited the scope of the maneuvers, a statement in which naval experts of other powers concurred. Another authority said the games were not extraordinary.

"In 1933 we tested the navy's performance under tropical conditions," he said. "In 1934 we tested the defense of the main islands. In 1935 we wanted to see how the ships and men carried out their functions in northern waters."

Aviation forces also engaged in defense tactics on the Hakkaido coast, it was learned, assuming the approach of enemy air fighters from the northeast and northwest.

Helen Morgan, the Singer, in Hospital with Flu

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Helen Morgan, singer, was in the Park East hospital today, an influenza victim. Dr. Otto Broones, her physician, said she was "quite ill," and that she probably would be at the hospital two weeks. Miss Morgan's secretary said she had been slightly ill a month.

FARLEY PUTS ON HIS DUAL ROLE ACT IN CHICAGO

He's Postmaster and Boss All in a Half Hour.

BY PARKE BROWN.

James A. Farley played both his rôles in the same half hour public appearance in Chicago yesterday. In addressing the national convention of postmasters at the Hotel Sherman he spoke both as postmaster general and as chairman of the Democratic national committee. Many of those in attendance will be delegates to the Democratic national convention next summer.

Mr. Farley expects to manage the Roosevelt campaign for renomination and reëlection. Thus there was little surprise that, before he took up postoffice questions in his speech, he stepped over into the field of politics, and then, after discussing operation of the mails, he jumped back into campaigning for the windup of his address.

His View of Outlook.

Also, in his interviews, National Chairman Farley talked with unusual freedom concerning the political outlook. The constitutional issue, he said, will be a minor one in 1936. He insisted that the recent vote in Pennsylvania against constitutional changes was not a slap at the New Deal. He predicted that President Roosevelt will carry Pennsylvania and will be reëlected.

"His popular vote," he said, "will be as big as it was in 1932. The Republicans haven't a candidate."

Farley said that the proposal of the Republican national chairman, Henry P. Fletcher, that the G. O. P. delay its convention next year until the Democratic convention has been held called for no comment.

"They can do as they please," he said. "We shall hold our convention at the time and the place we deem best without any regard to what they do."

He said he had no opinion concerning the place for the Democratic convention.

Addresses the Postmasters.

In his opening remarks to the postmasters, said to number nearly 2,000, Farley extended the personal greetings of President Roosevelt, adding that history will record Mr. Roosevelt as "one of the most humane and most understanding of all our Presidents."

After discussing postoffices finances and other matters concerning his cabinet department, he cited other facts he said were evidence of a recovery of the nation.

"I know a good many of our critics," he continued, "will suggest that the increase in receipts by business, the billion dollar accretion in bank deposits, etc., were in a measure accounted for by the emergency government expenditures in the form of relief. I think it would be rather difficult, however, to ascribe to that source the increase in the sales of cigarets and cigars, or the circumstance that Americans this year spent 400 million dollars more on vacations than last year.

Discusses the New Deal.

"I have no doubt that you all have been reading a great deal about the alleged breaking down of the New Deal and the alleged unconstitutional characteristics of the legislation passed by the congress just adjourned. You will read a great deal more of that sort of stuff between now and election day a year hence. That sort of matter is just politics.

"You know that when the present administration came in, our country was almost a derelict ship. Factories were idle from the Pacific to the Atlantic, farms were being lost under foreclosure proceedings in huge numbers in every state, banks were tumbling at the rate of fifteen a day, credit had almost ceased to exist, and nobody saw anything but further calamity ahead.

Praise for Roosevelt.

"President Roosevelt took command of the derelict craft and pulled us off the reef. Things are looking so fine that the old crew, in business and in politics, that led us into the shipwreck are now straining every nerve to get back in power. That is the real meaning of all the assaults on the New Deal."

The postmasters were welcomed to the city by Mayor Kelly, Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen, and Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, who spoke in place of Gov. Horner. Business sessions of the convention will begin today.

G. O. P. TIMBER IN ILLINOIS

This is the seventh of a series of sketches of Illinois Republicans who have been mentioned for party nominations for state offices in next year's election.

ELMER J. SCHNACKENBERG.

The name of Elmer J. Schnackenberg, state representative from the 13th or South Chicago district, was brought definitly into the discussion of Republican material for the state election next year by a demonstration in his behalf at the close of the recent regular session of the general assembly.

He was presented with a plea that he consider running for executive office next year, the plea being accompanied by an indorsement of his qualifications and record. It was supported by twenty-eight of the forty-seven downstate Republican members of the house and was declared an unprecedented compliment.

In Demand as Speaker.

Since that time, Schnackenberg has been sought out frequently as a speaker and has appeared before a number of nonpartisan as well as political organizations. As an example of the demands on him, he is to speak at a Republican rally tonight in Vienna, in Johnson county, almost at the southernmost tip of the state.

Representative Schnackenberg also has been urged to run for congress in the second district, which now, for the first time in many years is represented by a Democrat, Raymond S. McKeough. Schnackenberg's reply to such suggestions has been that for personal reasons he cannot run. Privately stated, they are that he has too large a family to move to Washington and maintain on a congressman's salary. He has six children.

It is also believed that Schnackenberg would not run for any state executive office except that of governor.

Serving Eighth Term.

This possible candidate is now serving his eighth term in the general assembly. As a youngster just out of school, he ran for representative in 1912 as a Theodore Roosevelt enthusiast and was elected. He stuck by the Progressive ship at the next election and went down with it. But he went back to Springfield in 1922 and has been reëlected six times.

When the Democrats came into power in 1933 Schnackenberg was chosen as minority leader of the house. That post was taken from him this year by downstaters.

In spite of the lack of title, the Chicagoan continued to show the qualities of leadership accredited to him year after year by the Legislative Voters' league. He fought the Hopkins-Horner bill which increased the sales tax. He showed the same spirit in opposing the state NRA bill known as the "tyranny law."

ELGIN'S CENTURY OF METHODISM TO BE OBSERVED

Conference to Launch Program Today.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Elgin's centennial of Methodism will be marked next week by the sessions of the ninety-sixth annual Rock river conference, which begin Tuesday in the First Methodist church, with Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, head of the Chicago area, presiding. Announcements of the centennial point out that the first Methodist sermon was heard in Elgin in 1835 and that a congregation was organized three years later.

The Rev. Dr. Blair S. Latshaw, pastor of the Elgin church and chairman of the conference program committee, said yesterday that the coming conference will be unique in several ways. First, he said, a session on Wednesday will be devoted to fraternal relations between denominations involved in the proposed merger of greater American Methodist bodies.

Cordell Hull to Send Greeting.

Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, Mo., will represent the Southern Methodist church; Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of Washington, D. C., the northern church, and the Rev. Frank Hanna of Wakeford, the Methodist Protestant church.

The interest of the Methodist church in world affairs will be signalized Thursday when greetings from Cordell Hull, secretary of state, will be read. Chicago consuls from various nations are scheduled to appear on this program. The principal address will be made by Dean James A. James, of Northwestern university.

Youth Session Planned.

Dr. Latshaw emphasized the youth session on Saturday afternoon and night when controversial objectives set up at Evanston recently will be under discussion. Charles O. Loucks, 10 South La Salle street, president of the Rock river laymen's conference, will represent conservative views on this program.

Other speakers during the week will include the Rev. Dr. Thomas M. Pender, of St. James church, 4600 Ellis avenue; Bishop Ralph S. Cushman, of Denver; Bishop Charles L. Mead, of Kansas City, Mo.; Prof. Arthur E. Holt, of the Chicago Theological seminary, and the Rev. Dr. Richard C. Raines, of Minneapolis, Minn.

MRS. ROOSEVELT ASSAILS WAR AS RACE DESTROYER

Warns of Horrors in Next Conflict.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt spoke out against war today—her first public expression on that subject since war clouds rolled up over Africa and the Mediterranean.

At a press conference she gave her views with feeling and rapidity.

"From my point of view it has been clearly proven force never did settle anything," she said. "Why do we insist as individuals, and as nations, going on to ultimate destruction of our civilization, which we have seen happen time after time in the past? Why do we insist on blindly keeping to the idea force settles things?

"It never does. It simply destroys and destroys until there is nothing left to destroy. And only then can we begin to build again. I cannot see why women, the conservers of the race, don't see this and exert more real practical pressure against that way of settling difficulties.

"We had better decide whether we wish to preserve our civilization, or whether we think so little of it that it is not worth preserving, because that's what war amounts to."

JAILED BY 3 WIVES AND ALL ARE STILL BEAUTIES TO HIM

Edwin Born, 31 years old, who claims to have been a Lutheran parochial school teacher, was held at the Central police station last night on a charge of bigamy. Three women, a blond, a brunette and a redhead, claim him as husband. He said he married the blond, Mrs. Byrdella Born, eight years ago in Austin, Minn. They have a daughter, now 7 years old. In 1932, Born said he came to Chicago to take a teaching job and married the brunette, Mrs. Jean Born, 2600 North Kedzie boulevard. Last Labor day he met the redhead, the former Avis May Chapin of Harvard, Ill., and made her the third Mrs. Born, without her knowledge of any predecessors.

The first Mrs. Born began divorce proceedings in Austin, Minn., and the second wife, learning of the action, obtained a bigamy warant against Born. He was arrested on that charge yesterday in his apartment at the Astor hotel, 176 North Clark street.

"Well, they are pretty girls—all of them," Born told police.

G. O. P. CHIEFS TO MEET TODAY ON FINANCE, POLICY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The question of a standard bearer for the 1936 campaign will be subordinated to general policies, finances and reorganization of state committees when the executive committee of the Republican national committee meets here tomorrow. According to advance reports reaching the national headquarters, G. O. P. leaders feel there are plenty of potential candidates who could beat President Roosevelt if the present swing away from the New Deal continues, but that it is too early to determine the best man for the job.

Because of the Baer-Louis prize fight in New York tonight, to which George F. Getz of Chicago, treasurer of the national committee, took most of the members of the executive committee, there was little preliminary discussion in Washington today. Former Senator Lawrence C. Phipps of Colorado, Earl S. Kinsley of Vermont, and George Keim of New Jersey, national secretary, were the only members here, but a full attendance is expected tomorrow.

Mr. Keim, who has just returned from Chicago, and Mr. Phipps both exuded optimism as they discussed the situation in the middle western and western states. Even the farmers in the sections where the New Deal is pouring out millions in bounties for crop reductions are asking how long this can keep up and who will pay for it in the end, the committeemen report. As things are going now, with the wildest spending orgy in history, further drastic taxes seemingly inevitable, business men generally hostile, and the work relief program demoralized, the party leaders declare, President Roosevelt will defeat himself.

"Any candidate we put up will beat Roosevelt," was the way former Senator Phipps put it.

"New England states have felt most distressingly the effects of the New Deal," said Mr. Kinsley. "The textile industry is on the flat of its back as a result of the NRA and the processing taxes. The reciprocal tarif treaty permitting the influx of textiles from Japan also has worked against American producers in that center, which, for generations, has given employment to many thousands of men.

"My travels through New England and the middle Atlantic states convince me that the substantial taxpayers, who are in the majority, are opposed to the economic policies and the financial somersaults of the Roosevelt administration. The east surely can be carried by the Republicans next year. The battleground is in the west. I believe that the Republican party can produce a candidate and a farm program which will satisfy the agricultural states and make sure the defeat of Roosevelt."

TEMPLARS ESCORT 33D DEGREE MASONS IN OHIO CONVENTION

Cleveland, O., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Three hundred Knights Templar, representing the York rite, in colorful procession today paid honor to the other principal branch of Masonry—the Scottish rite.

The occasion was the second day of meeting here of the supreme council of the Scottish rite's 33d degree members in the northern jurisdiction of the United States.

Led by a Commandery band, playing the marching hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," the Knights Templar escorted the 33d degree men through downtown Cleveland to the Masonic auditorium.

DIES AFTER FALL IN HOME.

Samuel Treadwell, 79 years old, 2249 West Adams street, died in the County hospital of injuries incurred in a fall in his home on Monday.

Significant indeed is his choice

It makes no difference how big the job—he is still a stickler for details. He has to be in his profession—where precision is so vitally important. Naturally enough he is equally precise on the subject of whiskey. The mere description "straight" or "Bottled in Bond" is far too unrevealing for him. That's why he chooses U.D.L. "Pre-judged" whiskey—he knows, in advance, on all nine points that concern complete enjoyment and satisfaction!

"Pre-judged" on all nine points!

The Ekroth Laboratories, Inc., an independent, recognized expert authority, regularly and frequently tests and judges U.D.L. Products which they buy at retail stores without guidance from anyone! This "Pre-judging" is personally supervised by C. V. Ekroth (former chief chemist, Food & Drug Bureau of New York City Health Dept.) who authorizes the Ekroth symbol shown on the tag affixed to every U.D.L. bottle. Look for that tag. It lists all nine vital points on which U.D.L. Products are "Pre-judged"—certainly the most conclusive assurance of all-round merit ever given by any distiller!

TRIED TO BURN GAS BUT PLUMBING FROZE TWICE

(At Top) Hall Hemingway, who writes us about her disastrous experience with gas. (Below) The well-built Hemingway home at 600 N. Kenilworth Ave., Oak Park—gas couldn't heat it.

Gas Burner Required Constant Nursing Because Pilot Light Went Out Continually

GAS COST $220.01 for 3 Months COAL ONLY $150 for a Year

"We Ordered Gas Burner Taken Out and Are Rejoicing in Reliable Coal Heat"

The Hemingways go away for a few days now and then in the winter and that was why they thought the gas experiment might be worth trying. All they'd have to do was turn the gas low to keep pipes from freezing. No need to give the furnace man the keys to the house any more.

But it seems there was a trick in it. The pilot light went out—not only on one occasion, but many times. Pipes had frozen, property had been damaged, there was the Dickens to pay and heavy bills too, when the family came home.

HALL HEMINGWAY'S LETTER

Chicago Coal Merchants Association

Gentlemen: We have a large well-built English house, fourteen rooms, three baths, two lavatories. For the last six years Pocahontas mine run coal has heated this house, at an average cost of $150 a year.

Last fall the advertisements for gas were so attractive that I allowed the local company to install a burner in my good red jacket boiler. It sounded so delightful, to think of being able to turn the heat down, and close the house for a period, with no fear of plumbing freezing; however - we found that the burner required constant nursing, as the pilot light went out continually. Many cold winter nights we went down cellar repeatedly to light it.

Our plumbing froze twice.

The first month of heat, November, a bill was rendered for $44.49; December $84.81; January $100.71.*

We ordered the burner taken out; and are again rejoicing in good reliable coal heat.

(Signed) Hall Hemingway

COAL OR COKE BEST FUEL HERE

Don't attempt to battle the north wind with ineffectual gas heat. It's too dangerous to health and purse. On the other hand, Chicagoans have found that solid fuel gives ample protection against the hardest winter.

EVEN HEAT—Coal or coke gives constant, full flow of warmth. No sudden stopping and starting of the furnace, which is so bad for the health.

CLEAN HEAT—Coal or coke gives normal, clean, healthful heat. A natural fuel that you use in the way nature intended.

GENEROUS WARMTH—Coal or coke gives more heat than you can possibly endure; yet it's a comfort to know the excess is there when a Chicago winter is doing its worst.

COSTS MUCH LESS—Coal or coke bills run only about half of gas or oil bills as Hall Hemingway (see letter) and hundreds who write to us clearly testify. See book of letters "True Experiences" at your coal dealer's.

AUTOMATIC COAL HEATING IF DESIRED—There is no required investment in essential equipment as with gas and oil. However, if automatic heat is desired, regulators are available as low as $18.50. If self-feeding service is desired, an automatic coal or coke stoker provides this convenience at much less cost than for any other fuel.

TRUE EXPERIENCES

In the office of every coal dealer is the book of evidence: "True Experiences." Ask your dealer to show it to you—page after page of letters proving that coal and coke are the most satisfactory and least expensive fuels.

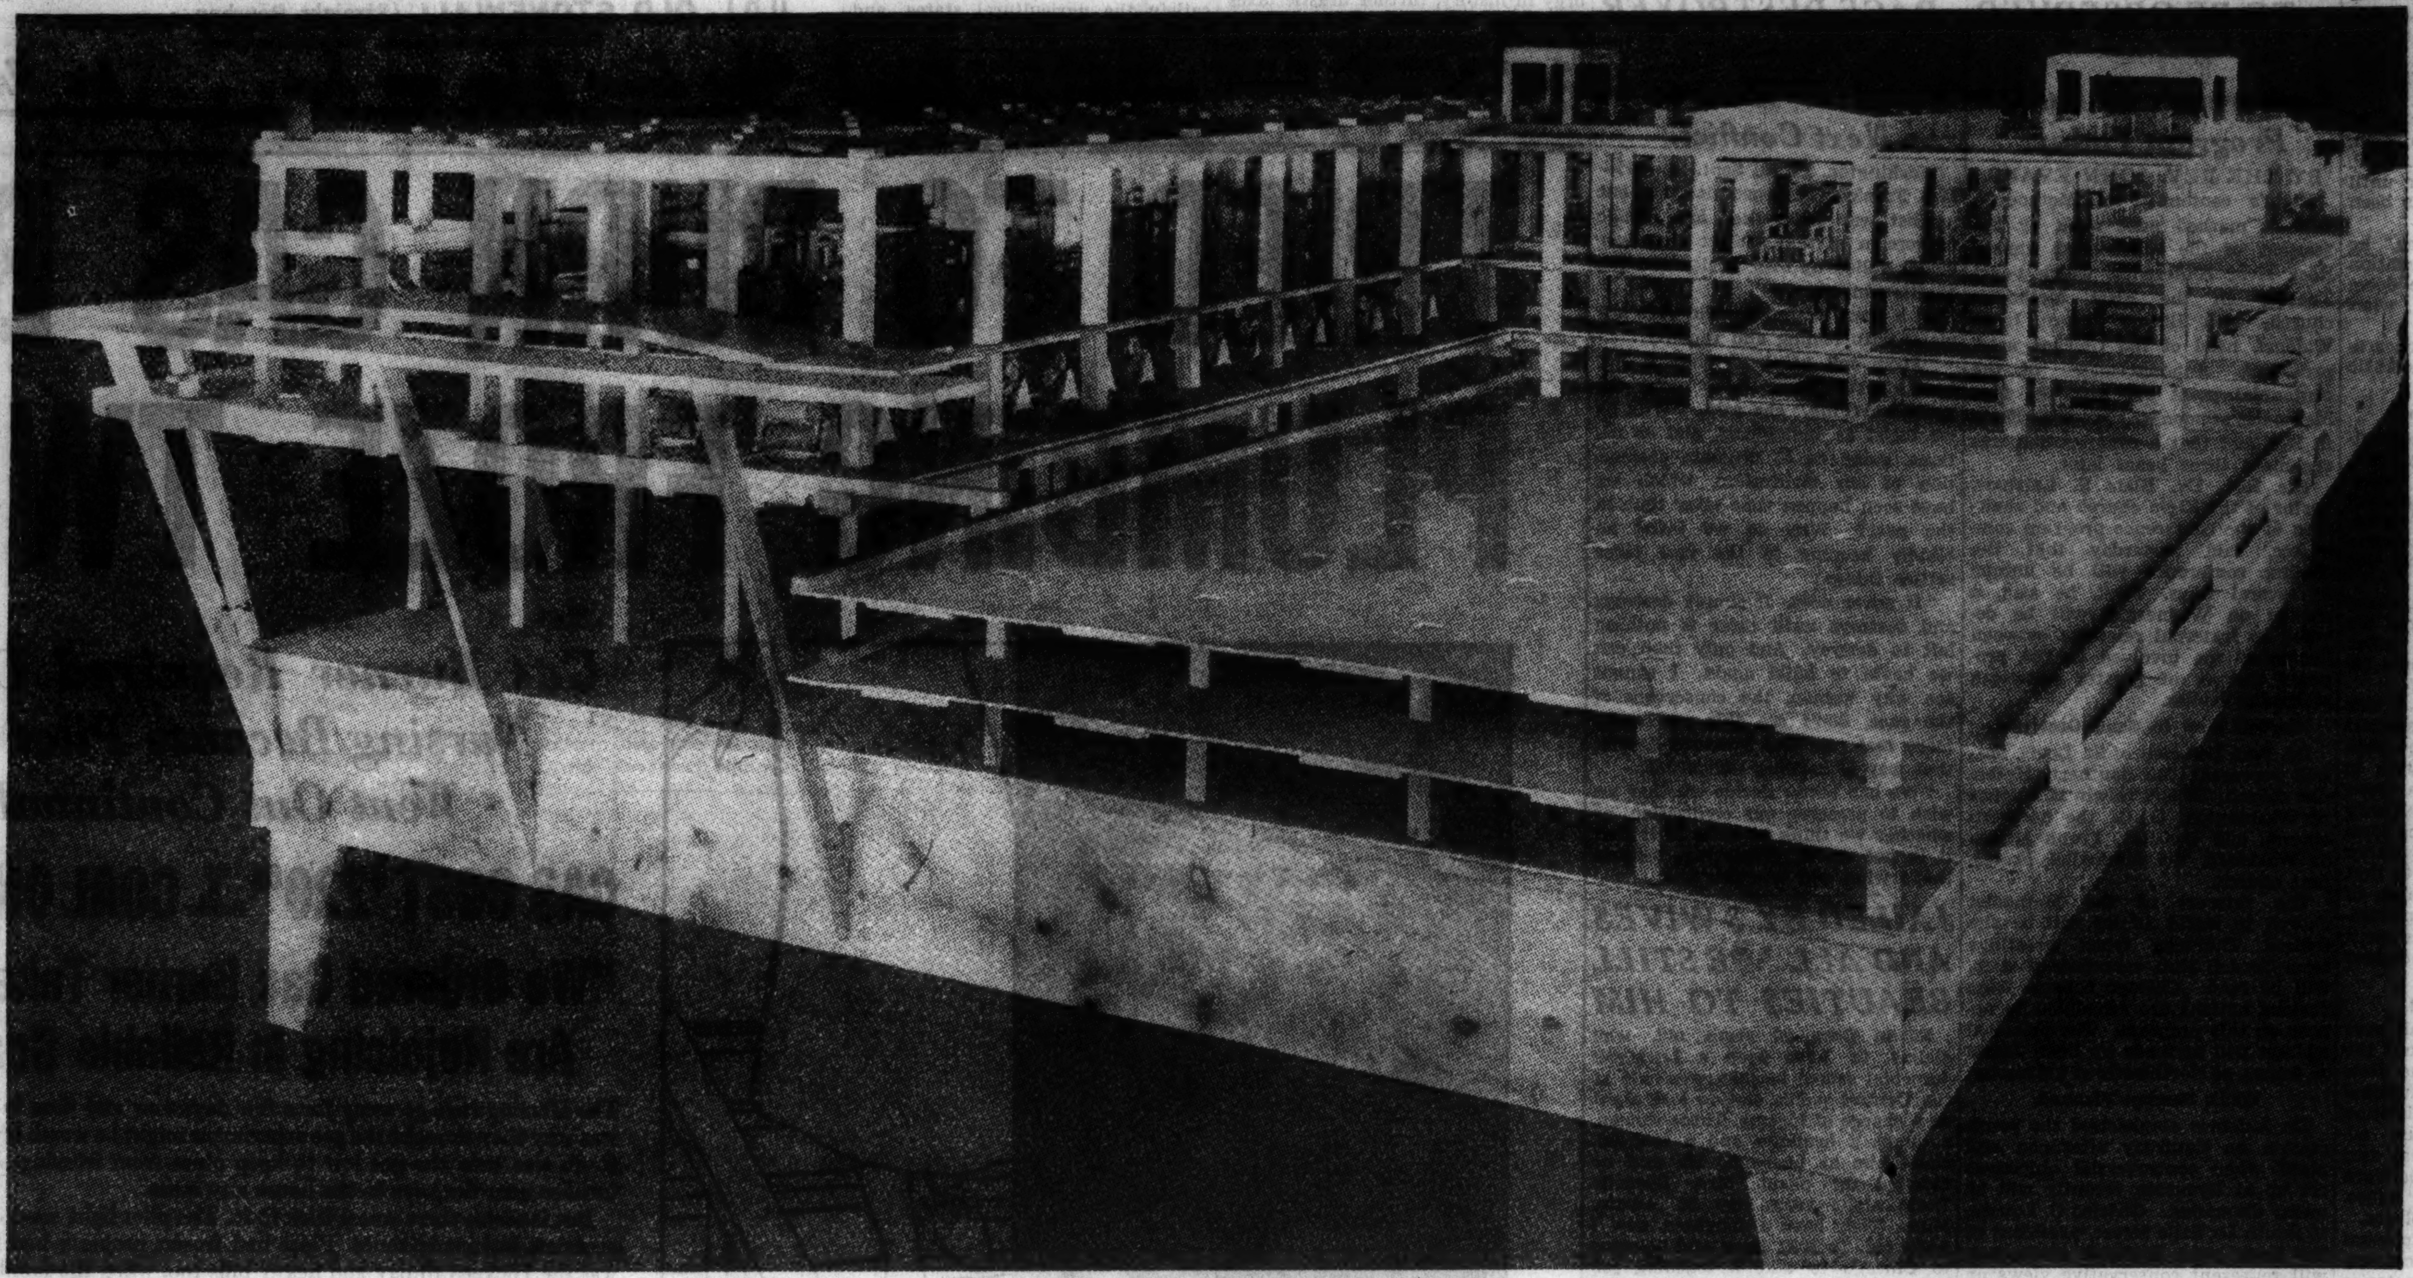
How THE TRIBUNE CAN PAY THE HIGHEST WAGES AND YET CHARGE THE LOWEST ADVERTISING RATES!



THE ABOVE MODEL OF THE LOWER FLOORS OF THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE PLANT was built to scale in advance of the construction of the plant itself in order to check up on the locations of departments and operations. In it were installed small-scale models of mechanical equipment—presses, linotypes, stereotype equipment—practically every piece of machinery used in producing the Tribune. The principle of straightline production was tested at every step and adjustments made so as to speed up the movement of materials, to simplify operations, and to eliminate waste. When the plant was actually built it was right to the last detail—and the most efficient newspaper plant in the world.

WHEN, in 1919, the pressure of increasing circulation and advertising volume forced the expansion of plant facilities the Chicago Tribune did not remodel an existing structure nor take larger quarters in an office building.

Instead, it selected a strategic site and erected on it a model newspaper plant especially designed to produce newspapers in huge volume at low cost.

The principle of straightline factory production was utilized to maximum extent. The plant was erected adjacent to adequate railroad facilities and to the Chicago river so as to be able to receive paper direct by boat from Tribune mills.

ONCE delivered by rail or at the dock and transferred to the plant with minimum handling, paper now moves in a smooth flow through reelroom, pressroom, and circulation departments.

The same method controls the continuous routing of editorial and news manuscript, photographs and drawings, type and engravings, matrices and stereotypes.

The entire production process, from the time newsprint paper enters the plant and a bulletin enters the newsroom until printed copies pour into waiting delivery trucks, was worked out in detail on a scale model to demonstrate in advance how the actual plant would work.

The new plant was built, put into operation, but never finished—and probably never will be. For as new methods are developed by Tribune inventive genius or by mechanical genius anywhere in the world the Tribune adopts them in order to give its customers an improved product.

BECAUSE it has the most efficient newspaper plant in the world, the Chicago Tribune not only can pay the highest wages but also deliver to advertisers as much as 56% more daily circulation per dollar than any other Chicago newspaper.

Kisses None But Husband; Film Changed

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The only person Jane Froman, New York radio entertainer, ever kissed during her four years of marriage to Donald Ross, also of radio, was her husband. So she could see no reason why she should kiss James Melton for a scene in "Stars Over Broadway" at Warner studio.

She won her point even though Ross backed up her director, William Keighley, in ordering the kiss scene. Keighley finally figured a camera angle so that Melton's head hid Miss Froman's and she didn't need to make lip contact.

Betty Grable's father talked Betty and Jackie Coogan out of eloping to Yuma, Ariz., one day last week. The youngsters agreed to "wait six months" and see how they feel then. Miss Grable wouldn't "date" Jackie until Toby Wing gave out a statement three weeks ago that Toby and Jackie no longer considered themselves engaged.

Eric Linden, youthful leading man, is building a new home at Laguna Beach, Cal., and in order to conserve the beach view from his cliffside place has his dining room built wholly of glass bricks. Looking at the seascape through the floor is like sitting in a glass bottom boat.

Further developments on Stepin Fetchit's walkout from the Shirley Temple picture, "The Littlest Rebel" at Twentieth Century-Fox include the signing of a new colored actor who is an exponent of the drawl and lazy shuffle in the person of Willie Best, better known here as "Sleep'n Eat." Only Willie is working for $40 a week. "Step" was drawing $750 on contract.

A studio spokesman insists that the reported salary of $2,500 paid "Step" was not for a week but for a month of work. When the studio phoned Willie Best, living in the Central avenue district of Los Angeles, instructing him to show up within 30 minutes if he wanted Stepin Fetchits' job, Willie expostulated, "But I can't get there in thirty minutes."

"Hop into a cab," directed the studio man.

"But none of these cabs in Central avenue will take my I. O. U.", Willie yelled excitedly.

The studio thereupon sent a limousine roaring down for Willie, to the latter's gratification.

Electricians reported 122 degrees in their perches among the rafters on the Warner sound stage where West Indies sugar cane plantation sequences were being shot for "Captain Blood."

When J. Walter Ruben, director for Jean Harlow and Spencer Tracy's "Riff Raff" was looking for a child to portray a little girl in a poverty stricken wharfside family, Baby Jane Quigley was brought to him.

"No, she's too pretty," the director told her mother.

"I'll show you if I'm pretty," the 4 year old brunette responded excitedly. She jumped upon a chair, pulled her brunette bob into disorder, pulled at the muscles under her eyes until she had assumed an altogether different expression and then screamed at him: "Am I pretty now?"

She wasn't and she got the part.

Mrs. Munson Is Winner of Golf Powwow

The prize that Mrs. Curtis B. Munson of Alberta, Canada, and New York won yesterday at the women's powwow at the Onwentsia club was not the first she has won at that club, for as Edith Cummings of Chicago and Lake Forest she often took home prizes in golfing events not only at the Onwentsia, her home club, but at other clubs all over the country. In 1923 she was the winner of the United States championship and a year later she became western champion.

Mrs. Munson had the low gross in the 18 hole match that was a feature of the morning and Mrs. Robert S. Pirie had the low gross in the 9 hole event. Among other prize winners in the golfing events were Mrs. Press Hodgkins, Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr., Mrs. Julian Soames, Mrs. Hampden Winston, Mrs. Morris Bent, Mrs. Stanley Keith, Mrs. Taylor Strawn, and Mrs. Wesley Dixon.

Mrs. Charles Dennehy was reelected chairman of the golf committee and Mrs. Pirie Jr. was elected vice chairman. Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin II. is the secretary-treasurer for the next year.

Mrs. William Freer and Mrs. Franklin Clement won the tennis doubles in the morning and they won again in the afternoon, and so walked off with first prize. Mrs. John Prosser and Mrs. Russell Kelley won second in the tennis doubles.

David Landau's Will Calls on 'Widow' to Prove Prior Divorce

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 24.—(AP)—David Landau, 56, stage and screen actor who died here last Friday, left his estate to Delight Howell of Hollywood, whom he described as "the best friend I ever had," in his will filed for probate today.

"Should law provide for any other person so far as this document is concerned, I bequeath the smallest legal amount and in the case of one known as Sarah Frances Landau, she must prove she was legally divorced from one Edwin T. Emery to make her a legal contestant."

At the time of Landau's death Miss Howell was identified as his widow. From Danville, N. J., yesterday, however, Mrs. Frances Landau, 66, was quoted as saying she is the actor's legal widow, and that she will "make no fuss" unless Landau had left property and Miss Howell tried to claim it.

Albert Farwell Home Will Be Concert Scene

Anne Tullis and Mrs. Heath to Give Recital.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT FARWELL are opening their home in South Stone Gate road in Lake Forest tonight for a benefit musical that doubtless will be well attended, for the artists are Anne Wood Tullis and Elizabeth Heath, popular north shore residents.

It is the first time Mrs. Tullis, the wife of Edwin E. Tullis and one of Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood's attractive daughters, has played the piano publicly, so her relatives and friends are certain to turn out in numbers to hear her perform.

She and Mrs. Heath and Mrs. Clyde M. Carr and Mrs. James R. Addington [Sarah Wood] have been playing eight hand compositions on two pianos for four summers, meeting every Friday afternoon to do this. Tonight Mrs. Tullis, who lives in Highland Park, and Mrs. Heath, who lives in Lake Forest and is a professional concert pianist, will give a two-piano recital, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

The north shore charity that will benefit from the recital also will receive help this year from the Community Fund, so it cannot be named on the tickets or announcements of the recital.

Mrs. Addington and her little son, Keene, will remain with the Woods in Highland Park for several more weeks, for tiny Whitney Wood Addington is not ready yet to travel as far as Los Angeles, where the Addingtons are living now.

Mr. Addington flew east when Whitney was born about a month ago, but he has returned to California. Whitney is named for his uncle, Robert Whitney Wood, who was graduated from West Point in June and who has resigned his commission in the United States army to go into the oil business. He leaves on Friday of this week for Houston, Tex., where he will engage in business.

Mrs. Robert Woodhead Will Give Recital.

Another talented amateur musician whose friends will have a chance to hear her perform this week is Mrs. Robert Chadwick Woodhead, who will give a recital at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the Barrington Hills Country club. Mrs. Woodhead plays the violin and was one of the most applauded artists at the amateur night entertainment at the Barrington club early in this month. Tomorrow night she will give a joint recital with Milton Treshansky, pianist.

Young Mrs. Woodhead is the former Martha Boyer of San Diego and since her marriage a year ago she and her husband have lived in Barrington, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Woodhead, also live. The junior Daniel Woodheads, who are living in Philadelphia, were here recently for the silver wedding of his parents.

Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. [Harriet Lowden], another of society's talented pianists, is just back from a summer at Lake Geneva, where she doesn't keep up her practicing as she does in town in the winters, so she isn't planning to play publicly for a while.

Mrs. Royden Keith, who uses her maiden name, Marie Morrisey, when she sings, will give a program at a reception that the Woman's City club will give next Monday afternoon as its first affair of the year. Mrs. Carl Snyder will be at the piano.

Mrs. Mark P. Mears, president, will head the receiving line and Mrs. Thomas O. Baxter, social chairman, and her committee will be hostesses.

Mrs. Keith has a beautiful contralto voice and often sings at club or charitable affairs.

HE was young, and enthusiastic, and determined to sell bonds to Edgar Nelson, president of the Chicago Conservatory of Music.

Salesman—Discernment—
Title—
Letter.

"But I don't want any more bonds," objected Mr. Nelson. "Even if I wanted any more I couldn't afford them just now."

The bond salesman went on with his talk, unwilling or unable to check it. He extoled the virtue of the bonds, struck impressive poses, transfixed his prospect with eagle eye, and congratulated him on being one of the fortunate few to whom this marvelous opportunity was offered. At the end of five minutes, during which time Mr. Nelson listened admiringly, he whipped out order blanks and a pen and dramatically inquired how many and what kinds he wanted.

"But I've told you—I don't want any," repeated Mr. Nelson firmly, firmly for the fourth time.

The young man looked dismayed.

"You know—I've made that talk to a dozen prospects in the last two days and I haven't sold a bond yet," he confided. "There must be something wrong with the talk."

"No, it's a fine talk," the musical college head assured the young salesman. "I just can't buy any more bonds."

"There's something wrong. Perhaps its my voice. My voice must be bad," the young man insisted. And, although Mr. Nelson assured him his voice was all right, he suddenly inquired:

"Do you fellows here give voice lessons?"

Startled, Mr. Nelson assured him they did.

"Well, get out your contract and I'll sign up for a course. I know it's my voice," the salesman concluded.

He departed a few moments later, after writing a check in payment, and Mr. Nelson was still sitting in contemplation of the bond salesman who sold himself a course of voice lessons when the next pupil was announced.

Miss Barrett Will Be Bride at Rites Today

Of interest today is the wedding of Miss Marion Julie Barrett, daughter of Mrs. Charles V. Barrett and the late Mr. Barrett, to John J. Bertrand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Bertrand, which will take place at 10:30 o'clock this morning at Our Lady of Mount Carmel church. A breakfast will follow in the home of the bride's mother at 541 Hawthorne place.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Stephen P. Glennon, has come from New York to act as matron of honor, and Mr. Glennon will be among the ushers. The bride's other sisters, Gertrude and Ruth, will be bridesmaids, as will the bridegroom's sister, Miss Catherine Bertrand. Charles V. Barrett Jr. will give his sister in marriage.

Edward J. Bertrand Jr. will serve his brother as best man, and the ushers will include Bernard Bertrand, William Horan, Daniel Buckley, William Griffin, and Clarke Baker. After a wedding trip through Canada and New England Mr. Bertrand and his bride will make their home on Oakdale avenue.

The marriage of Miss Sylvia Allen Beckman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard C. Beckman of Naperville, to Norman Bartlett Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Wright, 227 East Delaware place, took place yesterday noon at her parents' home in the presence of relatives and close friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stranahan Doty of Church street, Evanston, today are announcing the marriage on Sept. 14 of their daughter, Jane Gray, to Charles Marshall Hope, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore S. Hope of Katonah, N. Y. The wedding took place in Katonah, where the former Miss Doty had been visiting Mr. Hope and his family since July. The young couple will return to Chicago next week for a visit with the Dotys.

Mrs. Hope attended Columbia university and is a graduate of the Chicago School of Dramatic Art. She has been a member of the Pilgrim Players and of the North Shore Circuit Guild. Mr. Hope, who is a nephew of Mrs. A. Starr Best of Evanston, is a lawyer, and he and his bride will make their home in New York City, where he is practicing.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Speaking of eyes, as we were yesterday, we're reminded of a new lotion that refreshes and soothes. We tried it out a month or more ago but it's just recently come into the shops so we couldn't let you know about it until now.

Because it's absolutely odorless we haven't a clue as to what it's made of but we do know that it's remarkably soothing when the eyes are weary and downright miraculous when they're blood shot. One of the hay fever sufferers in this office finds that it makes her eyes look and feel immensely better on those days when the sneezing and the desire to claw her own eyes out are worse than usual.

We're a great believer in eye cleansing not only for comfort but for beauty. You can't look either soulful or sparkling when the eyes are dull and full of dust, even if the dust is the very fine grime of which you're not even aware.

Because it's so completely soothing this lotion helps when your eyes are just plain tired. It's not in any sense to be thought of as an eye strengthener; if the eyes are weak see the best oculist you can find and get yourself some specs. But when you've been so indiscreet as to wade through a 400 page novel at one swoop, or to spend an evening in a smoke filled room and mebbe have one cocktail or more a drop or two of this in the eyes helps a lot on the morning after.

Some women believe you should never, never let any one see you cry; others believe you should never, never miss an opportunity, especially if the audience is masculine. The first group will like this lotion; a drop in each eye removes every trace of the sorrowful spell.

Good Morning!

By Mae Tinée.

"Calm Yourself" has a plot that's like a crazy dream. But it's an amusing dream, so all is forgiven.

The story has it that there was a Nice Young Man who was fired by a Mean Old Man for daring to be in love with the M. O. M.'s daughter.

"Calm Yourself!" adjures the N. Y. M. to the raging old one as the former picks up his doll rags and prepares to go away from there. No sooner said than he—N. Y. M.—jumps allee samee he'd touched a live wire while singing in the bathtub. Because, you see—those two words, "Calm Yourself!" have given him an idea . . . !

The idea is—to start a "Calm Yourself" agency—object of agency being to be all things to all men and women. I. e.—do for them the things they hate to do for themselves.

While engaged in following his hunch our N. Y. M. becomes all tangled up with dogs, fur robbers, chiselers, bankers, the police, and a charming maid whose papa doesn't want her.

Does N. Y. M. want her?

Well, suppose you let the picture answer that question for you?

If you like Madge Evans, Betty Furness and Robert Young—as who could help doing!—you'll agree that the film has all it needs in the way of romantic principals.

I am here to assure you that other rôles are well taken, that direction was apt, and that the action is speedy and pepful.

"Calm Yourself" isn't anything to take seriously, but it really is fun.

See you soon!

First 3d Generation Student Enrolls as U. of C. Freshman

The 750 members of this year's freshman class at the University of Chicago will be welcomed today at a ceremony in Mandel hall on the campus. President Robert M. Hutchins will deliver the address of greeting. Students from 28 states are included in this year's class. There is also a student from Palestine and one from Cuba.

Miss Betty Thomas, 18 years old, 5630 Kimbark avenue, a freshman, is the first third generation student to enter the university. Her grandfather, who died several years ago, was W. R. Thomas, sociologist and former professor at the university. He obtained his degree on the midway in 1893. Miss Thomas' father, Dr. William A. Thomas, a member of the Rush Medical college faculty, was graduated from the university in 1912.

Dramatic in Black Velvet

Fall Footwear Available in Many Colors

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Footwear this fall promises to be just as important as anything you buy. Colors to match every outfit you own can be found easily. The clever dark green numbers are going out with tweeds in beige, brown, green mixtures and gray.

Wine red is another fascinating footnote for gray, as well as for plaids stressing reds and all the mixtures with tones of red. Brown and black are staging the big excitement, and are used to dramatize every high fashion color.

There are plenty of high heels left for the shoppers who pass by the fashionable flats. Street oxfords have straps. Interesting suedes have clever contrasting trim of gleaming patent lether, bow ties and straight slim heels. And these come in all colors as well as black and brown. It's easy to match or contrast any dress you own.

The newest flats are the young looking models called "fauntleroys," or English flats. The heels are about an inch high and the toes rounded. The newest bow is flat, neat and tailored and of grosgrain ribbon and attached flatly on the instep. These flats will remind you of the dancing school pumps of your childhood Saturday mornings and now you wear them from one end of the week to the other with tweeds, with silks and with velvets. The tall shoppers are buying the flats as fast as they can be wrapped up.

You'll see some extraordinarily good looking red kidskins in these new "fauntleroys" as well as green and brown. And the same youthful footwear comes in suedes too.

Fashion photograph. . . . the picture dress of clinging, gleaming black velvet designed with dropped shoulders outlined in dusky gold lace. Full puff sleeves are pushed well above the elbows and the bodice fits tight and ends at a natural waistline. The dress swirls at ankle length. It is available in a Chicago shop.

BORDER BREED

By William MacLeod Raine

SYNOPSIS.

Young Dan Clifford is driving a mule team carrying freight when he meets and befriends 17 year old Milly Sutherland. She and a young brother and sister are en route to Los Pinos, wild border town of the untamed west. Their father died on the way. In Los Pinos Dan has a run-in at The Last Chance with Jasper Ford, gambler and killer. Through Polly Doble, Dan gets Milly work washing, and Ah Sin, a Chinaman, to help her. Jasper Ford orders Dan to leave town. Dan knows it is wise to obey. Dan's friend, Sam Jones of the Rangers, appeals to Ford without effect. When Ford forces his attentions on Milly, Dan knocks him into the creek, then forces him to accompany him to The Last Chance for a drink for his chill. The public humiliation infuriates Ford. He challenges Dan to a duel. Dan can't shoot. Sam Jones advises Dan to choose bowie knives as weapons and he'll circulate reports of his prowess at slashing.

INSTALMENT IX.

RANGER JONES SCORES.

Sam rose. "Got to go and fix things up. You stay right here, boy. Don't leave the house. I'll be back after a while."

"What you got to fix up?" Dan asked.

"Lots of things. Got to hire a Mexican to dig a grave. Going to buy two bowie knives. Want to show them to Jas Ford and see how he likes them."

Jones departed, apparently in a cheerful mood. Dan reflected that after all he was not the one who was likely to be shot. Sam was certainly taking another man's troubles jauntily.

Sam Jones carried the problem to Polly Doble. He told the story, then made the suggestion that was in his mind.

"The boy has sure enough got his tail in a crack," he said. "Just one thing to do, and that is to line this town up solid as we can behind him. Ford has been making his play at this Sutherland girl. We've got to make it look like Dan is in this difficulty because he protected the girl against Ford. If we can get that across to folks public sentiment won't let this killer murder Dan."

"What does Dan say?" asked Polly.

"He says no. He won't have Miss Sutherland brought into it. Question is, will the girl back our play if any one comes to her."

"She'll do anything I tell her to do if she thinks it will help Dan."

"Good. Well, we've got to get busy as a hive of swarming bees."

They discussed the best way to get Dan's side of the story to the town. Polly undertook to take charge of the publicity.

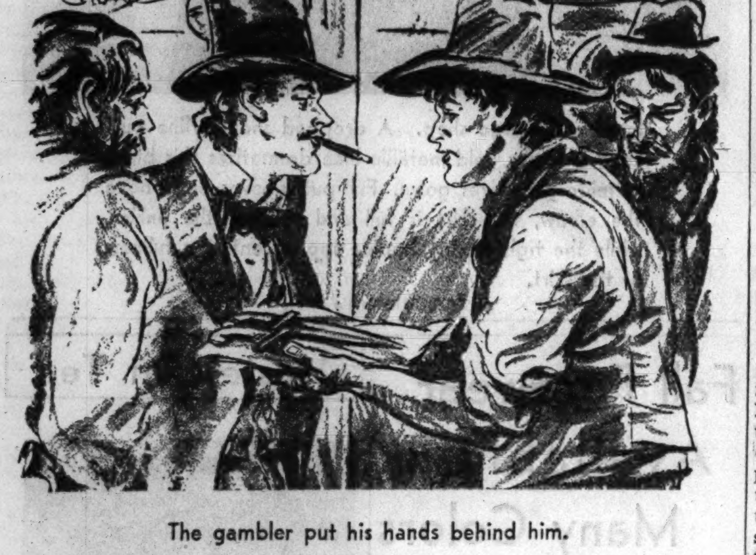
She called first on Milly.

The girl listened silently and began to weep. "It's all on account of me," she wailed. "That man will kill him, and he's only a boy."

"We've got to save him," Polly said flatly. "You must help. I'm going to give it out that Jasper Ford was pestering you and Dan wouldn't let him. Will you stand by that?"

Milly promised that she would.

Mrs. Doble called on half a dozen friends and sent them into saloons and gambling halls with the story. Inside of two hours everybody in Los Pinos had been told that Dan Clifford was going to be killed by Ford because he had tried to help an innocent girl the gambler was pursuing.



The gambler put his hands behind him.

In the telling the tale grew. Ford had a bad reputation as a hunter of women, and those on the street were ready to believe anything against him. He became the villain and Dan the hero of the story.

As soon as Le Page got wind of what was afoot he went to Ford. The gambling clique tried to stem the tide of public opinion by a denial, but few gave this credence. While the friends of the killer were still busy explaining, word came to them of the terms upon which the mule skinner had accepted the challenge.

Ford blew up in anger. He could see his prey slipping away from him and he swore not to be balked.

Into The Last Chance walked Sam Jones. Jasper Ford strode across the room to him.

"You're one of this scalawag's friends," he said, white with rage. "Tell him I'm going to rub him out as sure as hell's hot. He can't get away on a trick like this."

"Fine, Mr. Ford," the ranger said, purposely misunderstanding him. "He'll be waiting for you at the grave. I've bought two brand new bowies. Like you to look at them and see if you think they'll do. I've had them ground till they are sharp as razors."

He opened a paper package and showed two knives. One of them he held out for Ford to inspect.

The gambler put his hands behind him. "I'm going to kill him with a revolver—on sight—just as I said," he announced harshly.

The ranger shook his head. "I don't reckon so, Mr. Ford. I'm not aiming to annoy you, but I don't reckon Los Pinos would like that. A fair fight is one thing, but this boy wouldn't have a dead man's chance against you with pistols. We all know that. Now with knives, you two tied together, it would be an even steven break."

A dozen men were listening. None of them said anything.

"I'm a white man and a gentleman," Ford said coldly. "I don't fight like a greaser. I have been insulted, and I intend to kill this fellow in a civilized way."

"All right," assented the ranger. "Knives are out, since you don't think that a Christian way to kill yore man. Clifford is willing to make it double-barreled shotguns loaded with buckshot at ten paces. Anything that is reasonable will suit him."

"No," Ford declined curtly. "He's trying to duck out. It don't go. I'm going to rub him out today."

Sam helped himself deliberately to a chew of tobacco. "Is it yore idea of a civilized Christian killing that it has got to be a lead pipe cinch for you, Mr. Ford?" he drawled.

"He'll have a gun in his hand," the gambler answered angrily.

The ranger decided it was time to submit the question to public opinion. "Would it look to you like an even break, Mr. Stevens?" he asked a bronzed blue-eyed cattleman.

Lon Stevens was a man of courage. He had fought the Comanches and the Kiowas. It was a tenet of his creed not to interfere in other men's difficulties. Yesterday he might have kept silent, but now it seemed to him that the issue was drawn and a good citizen ought to speak.

For an instant he hesitated, to find words not too offensive, then decided to speak the blunt truth.

"For all the chance he'd have you might just as well hogtie the boy and shoot him between the eyes," he said, looking straight at Ford.

Jones had picked the right man of whom to ask his question. None of the others present would have dared say as much, but they backed Stevens with a murmur of assent.

Furiously Ford glared at them.

The man Stone was seated at a table playing solitaire. He lifted cold eyes to ask a sneering question: "This mule skinner is grown stuff, isn't he?"

"That's what he claims," the ranger answered. "Says he is willing to prove it with a sawed-off shotgun if yore friend is afraid of a knife."

"What's the idea in you-all getting into a sweat to protect this bird Clifford?" Stone asked, playing a jack of diamonds on his queen of spades. "He was big enough to beat up Jas and insult him, but he isn't big enough to stand behind a gun and take his medicine."

"There's a story about some trouble over a girl," Stevens ventured. "I don't claim it is true, because I don't know. But if it is, the insult did not start from Clifford."

"The story is a lie," Ford cried, pallid with fury.

"If it is, all you have to do is to get the young lady to say so," the ranger mentioned.

Stone played a card to the center. "Men always have fought about women," he said. "They always will. Nothing in that to kick up a dust about."

"Story is that this isn't a woman but a girl, a decent one trying to support her little family," Stevens said noncommitally.

"I didn't do the girl any harm," Ford burst out in exasperation.

"Maybe it would be a good idea to find out how the young lady feels about it," some one said.

Ford slammed his fist down on a card table. "I'm going to kill this cuss today. That's short and sweet."

"Wish you would come out to Boot Hill with me and see the grave, Mr. Ford," said Sam. "I want to make sure we're having it made long enough." His gaze ranged up and down the gambler, as if he was mentally measuring his height.

Ford turned abruptly and walked away.

Adequate Fund Is Necessity in Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Again the common problem of the day appears! Two young people wanting to get married without income sufficient for their needs.

He is 23 and she is 21. He makes $18 a week and she earns $12 a week. While both are eager for marriage, the man says it cannot be until he is making at least $35 a week. She argues that their combined incomes measure nearly that. But he will not be persuaded.

"As I see it," the girl figures," it will be years before he can attain the necessary income. One doesn't get promoted fast these days. And my dad says it will be years before he will be making the named amount. This means that I won't be able to go out with any one else for years, and there will be little fun for us because he is hell bent on saving every penny he can. He wants me to save $2 a week, too. If I didn't live at home I couldn't get by on my present $12 a week. My parents are kind, but they're not well off. They have all they can do to take care of themselves and my younger brother and sister. MARIE."

Perhaps it would be better for you two young people to break off, for a while, anyway! Your income as a breadwinning wife wouldn't be worth a nickel to the young husband. It would take that much to provide you with clothes, carfare, and luncheons. So that leaves you only the $18 of the young man's to face. And it must take that much to keep him afloat as a person who has to appear at work daily.

It would be an unwise financial beginning for marriage. But you're young, the pair of you. By 26 and 24, respectively, your combined incomes probably will be substantial for the marriage venture.

But if you are beginning to chafe under the present entertainment restrictions, Marie, your combined incomes at the later age won't be of interest to you.

Modern Quilt Gets Title of Older Block

BY NANCY CABOT.

Names of old quilt patterns frequently are given to new quilts which have no names of their own. "Eight Pointed Star," illustrated today, is completely unlike the original "Star" which was made in Maine about 1810. The new "Eight Pointed Star" may be made of printed or plain materials, or a combination of both. All three groups make a good looking finished quilt.

Beautiful Hair Is a Product of Daily Care of the Scalp

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A noted scalp specialist pointed out to the feminine world, in a recent address delivered before a beauty school class, that beautiful hair isn't wished upon one's head by the proverbial good fairy hovering over cradles.

Beautiful hair, we are reminded by the scalp specialist, is dependent upon a healthy scalp and cleanliness.

Among the rules which the specialist urged hair stylists and beauty operators to pass on to patrons are:

"Brush and comb the hair four or five times daily with a medium sized brush and comb. Fine combs and stiff brushes tear the hair and scratch the scalp.

"Shampoo and massage the scalp once or twice weekly, especially in cities, where it is exposed daily to industrial impurities in the air.

"Don't wet the hair when combing.

"Shun cure-all remedies and tonics and hair cutters who suggest singeing.

"Don't scratch your head. This is a frequent cause of infection.

"Include milk and vegetables in your diet.

"Combat dandruff promptly. It is the greatest single cause of unattractive and thinning hair.

Bargain permanent waves meet with our authority's hearty disapproval. Indulging in the platinum blonde and redhead dye fads likewise is not contributory, in our authority's judgment, to a handsome head of hair.

According to CULBERTSON

THE HEAT WAVES.

I have yet to meet a bridge expert who is not devastatingly conceited. Our bridge prima donnas have not even the redeeming feature of being temperamental. Most of them are simply and tremendously conceited in a cold, mathematical, clammy way. Now, conceit in bridge is a dangerous thing. I have made a profound study of conceit both in theory and in practice. There are only a few exceptional individuals who can survive the heat waves of conceit without serious damage to themselves or to those around them.

In bridge it is easy to become conceited, even for a moron, because many of its mental operations are of the perfect but picayune type. It is an obvious, petty kind of perfection. If you add two and two correctly there can be no argument about the result. It is not only good but perfect. In bridge, especially in the play of the hand, a player who correctly counts up to thirteen, draws some obvious inferences as to the position and number of cards in opponents' hands, or takes an occasional peek, is quick to acquire a sense of perfection. Such people have no right to be conceited, especially considering that most of our experts have no sense of humor whatsoever, and can laugh only at others [usually at me]. Only those who are humble have the right to be conceited. And the greater their conceit the greater must be their humility of spirit.

That is why I am so profoundly humble.

If I compare myself to most of the so-called champions or experts, I know I am hot stuff, but when I recollect all the atrocious bids and plays I have made, I enjoy eating a big chunk of humble pie as a steady diet.

Some of my friends complain about the changes in the new Culbertson system, model 1935, as compared with my ideas of several years ago. They admit that these changes are a great improvement, both from the standpoint of expert play and simplicity but, they say, why didn't Ely think about them before? Now, that is a funny question. I wish I had had some of these new, brilliant ideas long ago. I would then not have to admit, before millions of players, my abject limitations. Alas, I myself have to learn every day, and the reason I so often falter in my steps toward the goal of perfection is that I am naturally stupid. In fact, the one consolation that keeps me from committing suicide on the grounds of abysmal stupidity is the thought that the other experts also are stupid. They are perfect, and being perfect they have nothing to learn, nor can they change, for a change is an admission of previous failure.

Experts at Their Worst.

Experts are supposed to know to unblock—that is, play an unnecessarily high card so that later their partner will have a chance to win a trick and get the lead. But in a tournament in New York, recently, two experts were too greedy.

South played the hand at six no trump, and West opened the 4 of hearts. Had South paused to make a plan before playing, he would have seen that to make six no trump he needed a favorable break in spades. North must lose one spade trick, but all his other cards are winners, since his small diamond will go on South's good clubs. But South, trying to pick up an easy trick in hearts, played North's 7 of hearts on West's opening 4 of hearts, instead of the ace of hearts. Thus, he knocked out his one reëntry. He had to lose a spade and a diamond trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

QUESTION—If you have two biddable suits in your hand, which should you bid first?

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Peroxide Dries the Hair.

Worried: The continued use of peroxide on the hair is drying. In time the hair becomes brittle and strawlike. You may offset some of the damage done along these lines by having oil treatments. If you're interested in knowing how to give yourself an oil shampoo, send stamped, addressed envelope for details.

Albert Farwell Home Will Be Concert Scene

Anne Tullis and Mrs. Heath to Give Recital.

dings, will be the guest at three parties being given for her today.

Miss Nancy Avery will entertain at luncheon in her family's apartment on Lake Shore drive, and this evening Mr. and Mrs. C. Daggett Harvey [Jean Wilhelm] will entertain at cocktails in their new apartment at 200 East Pearson street for Mr. Fairbank and his fiancée preceding a dinner Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Harvey are giving in their Schiller street apartment.

Mrs. Stewart Harvey and the bride-to-be are sisters. Tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell are giving a dinner for their nephew and Miss Cornell in their Hubbard Woods home.

Mr. Fairbank and his bride will go to Banff, Lake Louise and Vancouver Island on their wedding trip, and also will stop by Portland and San Francisco before returning to Chicago.

The Christmas Windows, a charity sale which proved so popular and so successful last fall for St. Chrysostom's church, will be given again this year on Dec. 4 and 5 at the church, according to Mrs. Harold Eldridge and Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, who ran the affair for the Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's last year.

Mrs. Eldridge's daughter, Miss Barbara Eldridge, who will take some responsibility for the sale's success on her capable shoulders, left yesterday for Hartford and Albany, N. Y., to be away a week. She is going east to be maid of honor for her former roommate at Farmington, Miss Cornelia Sage, who is being married Saturday in Albany to John Walcott of Boston.

Mrs. Russell Lord and her children, Betty and Kathleen, who used to call Lake Forest home but who have not spent much time here for several years, sailed last Wednesday on the President Harding for England to spend the winter abroad.

Mrs. Lord had planned to put the girls in school in Italy, but just before she sailed she changed her plans and will put them in school in another country, possibly France. The trio spent just about an hour in Chicago en route from a summer in Alaska to New York, so their relatives here did not have much of a visit with them.

Edward H. Hageys to Lake Forest.

The young Edward H. Hageys and their two children moved Saturday to Lake Forest. They will occupy the house that the junior A. D. Plamondons have had for five years. Mr. and Mrs. Plamondon have taken an apartment at the Ambassador hotel for the winter.

The young Richard Fletcher Baldwins will arrive at home from a trip through the Panama canal, from east to west, about Oct. 1. Their plans for the winter are indefinite, but it is probable they again will be at the Ambassador East for the winter.

Mrs. Baldwin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Mather-Smith, who returned several weeks ago from a trip abroad, are with another daughter, Mrs. James Allen Turner, and Mr. Turner in Winnetka for a few weeks before going to their Oakland, Fla., home for the winter.

Mrs. Clyde M. Carr has had as her guest for the last week her sister, Mrs. Alexander Smith of New York. A former Chicagoan, Mrs. Smith came west with Mr. Smith to lease their house in Astor street and ship their furniture east. Mrs. Smith will return to New York in a few days.

The George Bates Harringtons' daughters, Mary and Ann, arrived home Saturday from the E Bar L ranch in Montana, where they have been since the middle of June.

Cuthberts Stay in London.

Mrs. Hambleton Kirk has received word from Capt. and Mrs. C. Ross Cuthbert that they have returned to London after a salmon fishing and grouse shooting expedition to Scotland and that they will linger on at least another fortnight before sailing for home.

Radcliffe Kirk left Saturday to resume his studies at Harvard, where he is a sophomore. Mrs. Kirk will remain at her Lake Forest home until November, when she will come in town to the Drake hotel. In January she will go to California for her usual visit with her mother, Mrs. Emma Hambleton, at her Hollywood home.

Leif Buch, who as Norwegian vice consul in Chicago was a popular young bachelor here, now is representing his country in Marseilles, France.

A Lake Forest boy, George S. Burrows, son of Mrs. Swigart Burrows and Arthur A. Burrows, won the highest scholastic honor in the Hill school at Pottstown, Pa., when he was named head of the school at the junior prize day exercises last Saturday.

Other boys from this neighborhood who were awarded prizes or honorable mention were Mark S. Willing Jr., Thomas W. Mather, son of Mrs. Edward F. Swift Jr.; Charles C. Renshaw Jr., and George S. Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius B. Watson of Winnetka.

Charles H. Conrads Will Leave Today.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Conrad are leaving today for Tryon, N. C., where they will move into their new home, Four Acres. Mr. and Mrs. Conrad will spend several weeks in Chicago every three or four months.

Mrs. Frederick D. Montgomery is arriving by motor today from Ogonquit, Me., where she has spent the summer. Accompanying her is Mrs. Mabel Cheney, who also has been staying at Ogonquit. Last week-end Mrs. Montgomery went to Wellesley to enter her daughter, Carol, in the freshman class.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Dorsey Montgomery Jr. are back in Lake Forest after a visit with the Burford L. Porters at Fish Creek, Wis. Mr. and Mrs. James R. Montgomery and their two children returned last week to their Lake Shore drive apartment from Lakeside, Mich., where they had a cottage this summer.

Home Rich in Play Materials for Small Child

Mere Details of Existence Fascinate Him.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

At 14 she reads the paper while her shoes are being shined.

At 4 she climbs way up into the big chair in the "shoe shine parlor" and watches with absorption every move of the bootblack. Nothing escapes her. The next day she's polishing your shoes with an astonishing and clever copy of his movements, though the first few results may be a bit molasses-like to your footwear!

At 14 he goes to the kitchen door and says to the grocery delivery boy, "Put 'em here on the table. And mom says wait, she wants to give you an order," and dashes back to his book.

At 4 he stands fascinated as the white aproned boy takes a pencil from behind his ear [what magic!], a book from his pocket, and writes the good things down, "apples, butter, nuts, sugar, and a can of salmon for kitty," as mother thinks them up. The next day he perches an old cap on his curls, puts on a coat too large for him, and with a stub and pad becomes Jim from the store and takes an order. And delivers it.

Almost every detail of ordinary, everyday living is grist to the mill that is a small child's mind and imagination. Given a little interest by his mother, some easily bought imitations of real things, some "playing up" to him on her part, and he's an amused and entertained and contented child.

This is one whole field of play that keeps the small child from the aimlessness we've been talking about and want to avoid. Any ordinary home supplies the materials for countless hours of self-activity—of creative, imaginative play and occupation, derived from his interest in the activities of everyday living. The animals at the zoo, wash day at home, cleaning day, baking, cleaning the silver, telephoning have an intense appeal for them, and can be played out by a child without a single so-called "toy."

All children love to be the bear in his cave, to wash beside you, to help you measure or mix, or even break eggs as a thrilling favor. And how your child acquires deftness and bigger muscular controls and confidence when he's allowed to be free at home with an interested mother!

So in planning to supply materials with which your child can express himself, remember that the average home is rich in them.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Seek Other Companionship.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a boy of 19. I used to go with a 16 year old girl. I then became angry at her, for no reason at all. He brother is one of my best friends. Do you think I should make up with her? TOMMY."

It might be well to go out with other girls for a while. See if you miss her companionship. Then you'll be able to decide for yourself.

A tender, delightfully flavored cheese noodle ring provides an excellent highlight for the simple fall luncheon plate and is fully as decorative as it is delicious.

Cheese Noodle Ring Ideal for Fall Luncheon

BY MARY MEADE.

To make that first fall committee luncheon the simple and delightful affair it should be—simple enough to offer no distractions to the efficient handling of weighty business and delightful enough to charm languid committee members who aren't exactly pleased at getting back to work—a cheese noodle ring!

Decorative as a marigold, light, tempting, satisfying, the luncheon plate which features it is a triumph of hostessing art. It may be used as a background for delicious fall vegetables to form a luncheon with all the freshness of the fall garden and yet substantial and nourishing enough to sustain your guests through a busy afternoon of motions and recommendations, or of bridge.

Cheese Noodle Rings.

- 1 cup egg noodles
- 1⅓ cups hot milk
- 1 cup soft bread crums
- ¼ cup melted butter
- 1 pimiento, chopped
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- 1⅓ cups grated American cheese
- Salt, pepper, paprika
- 3 eggs

Cook the broken noodles in boiling salted water until tender, blanch in cold water, and drain. Add the hot milk to the crums, butter, pimiento, parsley, onion, cheese, and seasonings. Add the beaten eggs, then fold in the cooked noodles. Fill well buttered individual ring molds and bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees F., until firm.

Unmold a noodle ring on each plate and fill the center with hot creamed peas and mushrooms or any other hot creamed vegetable. To each plate add a portion of hot buttered green beans and a broiled half tomato, garnish with a bit of greenery (parsley or watercress), and serve immediately.

Gland Control May Prove Aid in Cancer War

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—While some women in the future are being rejuvenated to retain their youth, others may go deliberately in the opposite direction and be unsexed as a means to fight against cancer.

This was one of the striking discoveries discussed today at the 38th annual meeting of the American Roentgen Ray society. In a paper presented by Dr. Charles L. Martin of Dallas, Tex., and discussion led by Dr. Richard Dresser of Boston, it was brought out that the endocrine glands of the human body have a strong influence on tumors and cancers through their regulation of normal cell growth.

Dr. Martin cited evidence to show that the spleen, thymus, thyroid and adrenal glands "tend to inhibit the growth of malignant tumors while the ovary, on the other hand, seems to have an opposite effect."

He rehersed clinical studies to show that abnormal growths in the female breast "are due to prolonged stimulation" by certain ovarian secretions and that "cancer has been produced in the breasts of mice of both sexes by the regular injection of estrin." Estrin is one of the normal elements secreted by the ovaries.

COUNTY PLANS 7½% PAY RAISE FOR EMPLOYES

Board Prepares to Cancel Half of 15% Cut.

It was learned yesterday that the county board has decided, informally, to increase the pay of 4,000 county employés by 7½ per cent in the 1936 budget, thus eliminating half of the 15 per cent cut of 1933.

Members of the board said that this plan follows the action of the city which recently canceled half of a 15 per cent pay cut. Maurice F. Kavanagh, chairman of the county board's finance committee, said, however, that the increase, which will amount to $400,000, must be made through savings effected by cutting out jobs and revising salaries.

Last spring the board adopted resolutions ordering a complete reclassification of job titles and a readjustment of all salaries. This was after the discovery that the 1935 budget contained numerous newly created jobs and granted pay raises ranging from 10 to 60 per cent for favored employés.

Pay Revisions in Dispute.

Yesterday, however, Albert J. Flynn, president of the county civil service commission, and Lee J. Howard, county auditor, said that pay revisions would affect only new employés, not the present ones. They said also that the salary changes and title simplifications could not be completed in time for the 1936 budget.

Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, disclaimed knowledge of the pronouncements of Mr. Flynn and Mr. Howard. He said it was his intention to have the salary revision effective in the 1936 budget and to have them affect also present workers.

As to complete job title reclassification, Smith said, one difficulty is due to the fact that the Circuit court judges fix the titles of 2,000 jobs in the county fee offices, although the board fixes the salaries.

CITY ASKS ESTIMATES

City Controler Robert B. Upham yesterday instructed heads of all city departments to submit their estimates for the 1936 corporate [operating] budget to him by Oct. 1. The department of finance will complete its work on the budget in time to submit it to the city council at its first meeting in December, he said. The council is expected to adopt the budget at its first meeting in January.

At present only one thing is certain about the new budget: It will be higher than the $49,716,398 appropriated for corporate purposes in 1935, due to the canceling of one half of the economy pay cuts imposed on city employés in 1932 and the adding of 500 policemen and 200 firemen. The 1935 budget was increased over that of 1934 by these actions which are effective for the last 6 months of this year, and the 1936 appropriations must go up to care for the increases.

CALL L-STREET CAR TRANSFER SUCCESS; 55,000 DAY'S TOTAL

Satisfaction was expressed by both surface and elevated line officials yesterday over the operation of the intersystem transfer arrangement that went into effect Sunday.

The records of the companies showed that street car patrons were the heaviest users of the new transfer privileges on Monday, when the first real test of the arrangement came. Surface lines officials said that their employés had issued 34,524 transfers to the elevated lines, while about 20,000 transfers were issued by the elevated lines, making a total of approximately 55,000, which is 15,000 more than estimates made Monday night.

Executives of both companies said the new plan is causing but little confusion among patrons and employés have been instructed to show tolerance while the public is familiarizing itself with the system.

The officials predicted that the daily average of users of transfers will mount as more persons realize the advantages of the plan.

Although isolated instances of congestion were reported, for the most part patrons of the two systems proceeded in orderly fashion through the transfer routine.

Some misunderstanding resulted from the provision in the plan whereby only those who pay cash fares receive transfers. Holders of weekly passes on elevated trains and suburban riders buying reduced fare tickets expressed disappointment when they learned of the rule excluding them from transfer privileges. Other riders complained that transfer points were too few and privileges not extensive enough.

3,619 CADETS IN R. O. T. C. RECORD FOR ILLINOIS U.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 24.—(AP)—An all time record of 3,619 students in the military brigade at the University of Illinois, was announced today by Col. Fred Brown, commandant of the nation's largest R. O. T. C. brigade.

Col. Brown said the total of registration this year was 460 more than a year ago. Part of the increase was attributed to an increased general registration at the university. Approximately 600 more students have registered for general courses this year than last, officials of the school said.

Greater interest in military training was also believed a factor in the sudden increase of students in the military unit.

Taylor, Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Thelma Bailey, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Corrine Craig, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Mrs. Florence Kelley, Fresno, Cal., and Mrs. Grace Porter, Geraldine, Mont.

70,000 VETERANS MARCH IN 7 HOUR LEGION PARADE

Scores in St. Louis Crowd Prostrated by Heat.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Aching feet were a badge of honor here tonight as 70,000 American Legionnaires rested after today's seven hour parade and prepared tomorrow to tackle their perennial national convention problem, payment of the bonus.

An estimated 300,000 persons jammed streets along a two mile line of march to view the colorful annual parade of drum corps, bands, drill teams, and just plain veterans.

Scores of women, overcome by unusual early fall heat and the pressure of the crowd, fainted along the line of march. The actual suffering was worse, however, among the marchers, mostly inclined toward middle-aged paunchiness and slowness of foot.

Drill Units Remain Jaunty.

Members of the crack drill units, who were in better physical condition, retained their jaunty air at the end of the parade, but "Elmer," the rank and file Legion man, did not fare so well. There were two known heat prostrations among the marchers.

Virtually all St. Louis business was suspended for the day. Except for a skeleton staf on duty in the residence sections, the entire city police force was concentrated in the parade area.

Highlights of the parade were many. Drawing special applause was the Iowa delegation. Each man shouldered a 20 foot green corn stalk and at regular intervals "presented arms."

Illinois Largest Group.

Illinois, because of its heavy Legion membership and close proximity to St. Louis, had the largest representation in the line of march. The Illinois marchers comprised an entire division of the parade.

Prizes announced tonight for contestants in the parade included:

Best patriotic float, Racine, Wis., with "Spirit of '76-'17."

Best Legion float, Olney, Ill.

Best marching unit, Miami, Fla., Drum and Bugle corps.

Best one man drum corps, Jerry Helleack, Fox Lake, Ill.

Turn to Business.

While the Legion marched, chosen leaders conferred on tomorrow's business. The legislative committee bent again to the task of deciding which among 700 departmental resolutions will be submitted to the convention tomorrow.

Most of the resolutions deal with hospitalization of disabled veterans, and similar matters, but 45 urge unqualified payment of adjusted compensation certificates. A sweeping majority of the state delegations support this view, and a unanimous resolution to this effect is virtually assured.

Cleveland continued to lead other cities campaigning for the 1936 convention. Denver, Atlantic City, and Los Angeles were not counted out of the race, however. A settlement of the question by the convention probably will be made tomorrow.

LOUIS UNHURT BY BAER'S HARDEST PUNCH

CUBS LEAVE FOR ST. LOUIS TO CLINCH PENNANT

WARNEKE WILL OPEN AGAINST P. DEAN TODAY

Need Two Victories to Gain Title.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs, two victories removed from a formal clinching of the National league pennant, will walk right into the back yard of their last surviving enemy, the Cardinals, today and proceed to the business of trying to end it all without further delay.

Refreshed by two days of rest, and not at all worried about their ability to capture the two games that will mean a title, the Cubs departed last night for St. Louis with Robert Round Lewis, the traveling secretary, leading the cheering for a party of 46.

Manager Charley Grimm, anxious to get to his home town, went on ahead, but will greet his gallants at their St. Louis headquarters this morning with a pep talk and a few new jokes.

P. Dean No Bargain.

Nudging the Cardinals further out of the pennant picture today in the opener of the five game series will be mainly a matter of whether Lon Warneke can beat Paul Dean, the silent half of the famous pitching brothers. Paul, as the Cubs well know, has been no bargain for them this season, but on the other hand Warneke has been no bargain for anybody for the last two months.

It probably will not be the only time during the series that the Cubs will have to look at P. Dean's pitching. Win or lose today, he'll be back in there as long as the Cards have a mathematical chance. So will Warneke, if it is necessary. And, then, there's Dizzy Dean for the Cubs to think about. To prime himself for a riotous finish, at least an attempt at one, Dizzy has taken what for him is a record breaking rest. He hasn't been in a game since Sunday. He's a cinch to start twice if the Cubs don't end it in the next 48 hours.

Seek Nineteenth in a Row.

Warneke, if he can turn in a victory, will register his twentieth of the season, which for him had an unhappy start, and at the same time will stretch his team's winning streak to nineteen games.

If Warneke doesn't win today it is going to cause more than a little alarm. Victory for the Cards would cut the Cubs' first place lead to two games. Victory for the Cards again tomorrow over Bill Lee would reduce the advantage to one game. And if the Cards should triumph again in the third it would tie them up in the percentage column. Then to win a pennant the Cubs would have to take the last two.

But, and this makes happier reading, if the Cubs win only one of the five, thus creating a tie at the finish next Sunday evening, they'd still have a shot at the world series spot in a three game playoff.

CARDINALS WIN, 11-2

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Wild Bill Hallahan yielded only three hits today as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh, 11 to 2, and gave warning to the league leading Chicago Cubs that they are not yet out of the National league pennant race.

The Cards aided Hallahan with 11 hits, including home runs by Jim Collins and Leo Durocher, and the Pirates committed three errors. It was the veteran southpaw's 14th victory of an erratic season.

Deans Ready to Pitch.

Today's victory reduced the Chicago lead to three games. Tomorrow the Cubs open a five game series here with the Cards. The Cards need five victories to win the championship but four out of five would bring them a tie and require a play-off. The

Grimm Admits 1932 Mistake; Won't Repeat

BY EDWARD BURNS.

"The biggest mistake I ever made in baseball was when I let the boys cool off after clinching the 1932 pennant."

Thus did Charles John Grimm bare his soul yesterday. It is always hard for a baseball fellow to admit he ever was wrong, but Charley came right out and admitted that, in the spirit of kindliness, he pulled a boner when he assigned Pitcher Bob Smith to second base, assigned pitchers to three inning stints and otherwise let his Cubs loaf as a warmup for their world series with the New York Yankees, which they lost in four straight games.

"Even if we breeze in Thursday afternoon we'll play the other three games with the Cardinals just like the championship depended on each of them," said Boss Charles.

"The only regular who is going to get any letup in his routine is Gabby Hartnett. The big boy's fingers are all bunged and his lame ankle continues to bother him. So the minute we are over the top, out comes Gabby. All he needs is about the amount of rest he'll get before the world series starts."

Aiming for 102 Victories.

"There are several reasons we won't let down aside from the tuning up business. Naturally we want to run our winning streak as high as we can. We can't tie the Giants' 1916 record of 26 straight this season, but 23 straight would look pretty sweet in the record books.

"We also have a chance to run up a total of 102 victories for the season, a total no Cub team has reached since 1910.

"If the club librarian has informed me correctly, no National league team has topped 101 victories since 1912, and only one team has reached the 100 mark since 1913, the Cardinals taking 101 in 1931.

"We won 98 to grab the championship in 1929 and 90 was more than enough in 1932. I want to make it 102 this year but will settle for 100 or even 99, provided there is no letdown."

Work Planned for Warneke.

Lon Warneke is scheduled to tune up on plenty of work, unless Grimm changes his schedule. He is going to pitch the opener today, stand by for relief tomorrow, and if he doesn't relieve Friday or Saturday will start in the season final Sunday. This will have him on edge for the series opener in Detroit a week from today.

Aside from Hartnett's minor injuries there isn't an ailing workman on the squad. Despite the gratifying condition of his squad Old Doc Lotshaw, the Cub trainer, has been bearing down just as hard as the players. He took all of his trick lamps, magnetic belts, fancy lotions, and capsicums to St. Louis, along with 1,000,000 yards of tape and gauze. He left his Materia Medica at home because there wasn't room in the baggage car for the volume, and besides, he never has been able to make head nor tail of the text, anyhow.

Tigers Due Tomorrow.

The Tigers are due in town tomorrow and advance agents say that Manager Mickey Cochrane will ask permission to work out at Wrigley field tomorrow afternoon. If permission is granted, the workout will have to be confined to the outfield, for the entire infield has been peeled and when new sod is laid it will be given a week to take root.

Lon Warneke, the Cubs' ace pitcher, just before boarding train for St. Louis. Warneke will pitch today's game and Mrs. Warneke is telling him he had better win.

HI-DE-HI! ALL IS HI-DE-HO ON SOUTH SIDE

Trafic Stops, Fun Starts as Louis Wins.

The colored citizens of Chicago's south side, who have claimed Joe Louis for their own, turned out en masse last night to celebrate his victory over Max Baer in New York City. Every cigar store, every billiard hall, every café and every street corner boasted its loudspeaker carrying the message of the fight, and as soon as the word came through that Joe had got his man the streets became a solid mas of screaming humanity.

The celebration started long before 9 o'clock, Chicago time, when the bout went on. The news of Joe's wedding, held before instead of after the fight, was the signal for the outbursts of cheering and the continuous blasts from noisemakers of every description, which lasted through the battle and far into the morning.

Trafic Is Blocked.

Trafic was blocked for hours on some of the busier thoroughfares in the colored section as celebrants flocked onto the pavement and moved in a clamoring mass toward the cafés. Police were practically powerless as the cheering thousands swept through South Park way, Michigan avenue and State street, and on cross streets from State to Cottage Grove avenue. The demonstration was entirely orderly. There were few harsh words and no blows. Every one of Louis' color seemed confident he would win and jubilant when he justified their belief in him.

One of the centers of after-the-fight celebrations was the Savoy ball room, 4733 South Park way, where Louis had appeared for a brief period following his recent knockout of King Levinsky.

Police estimated that 5,000 stood in front of the office of a colored daily newspaper to listen to a blow by blow account of their favorite's triumph.

HARLEM GOES MAD

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Harlem, the city of thousands who can't understand why Joe Louis wasn't born there, went hysterical tonight. During the brief time Max Baer and Louis were slugging it out at the nearby Yankee stadium, Harlem was just one blaring radio voice.

Then it came—the roar of a cataract of human suspense loosed by two words: "Louis wins."

The wildly cheering crowds rushed from houses and stores, ran pell mell through the suddenly thronged streets, fell over each other, pummeled each other, and sought every available noise making device.

Auto horns, overturned wash tubs, and yelling, made the scene one of the most jubilant Harlem has ever known.

The police, ready for any emergency, were confronted with a major problem at 128th street and Lenox avenue where one colored couple delighted the good natured crowd by dancing naked in the street. A hurry call for a patrol wagon was sounded and they were hustled off to Harlem court.

WELL DIGGER'S COURAGE

La Fayette, Ala., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Old settlers here say Joe Louis owes his triumph over Max Baer to a strain of Indian blood in his grandmother, and the courage of his grandfather, the community well digger here.

Louis was born Joe Louis Barrow in the picturesque Buckalow mountain section here 21 years ago. His paternal grandfather, Mon Barrow, knew no fear in digging a new well or repairing a caved in well.

Recently, Joe's uncle, Albert Barrow, made a trip to Detroit to visit Joe and his mother and came home with tall tales.

"Joe is about the popularest man in America," Albert said, as he stopped the family steer and wagon in the shade.

"He looks tender like a woman, like he never done a day's work in his life, but that's all wrong.

"Like I said, I didn't go up there beggin', for the Lord knows Joe's got a world of po' kin and he can't make 'em all rich.

"Joe's got a step-pa, Pat Brooks, who comes down in this section jes' spreadin' joy with Joe's money. They tell me he give $16 to a church collection down in his home town near Demopolis."

FIGHT BY ROUNDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 24.—The round by round story of the Joe Louis-Max Baer fight tonight follows:

ROUND ONE.

The fighters came out cautiously. Louis was short with a light left. Louis jabbed twice to the face and they clinched. He jabbed a right to the jaw. Baer rushed Louis to the ropes and missed a hard left and right. Baer landed a short right to the face in a clinch. They sparred carefully, then Louis hooked a hard left to the head. Baer missed with an overhand right.

ROUND TWO.

Baer ducked out of a corner and missed with a left lead. Louis shot a straight left to the face. Louis again snapped Baer's head back with a left. Louis ducked under Baer's left hook. They exchanged hard lefts to the face. Baer staggered Louis with a hard left. Louis pinned Baer to the ropes and knocked him down with a right to jaw. He was up at count of nine. Louis sent in a left and Baer went to the floor. The bell rang at the count of three.

Louis hooked lefts to the face; still Baer did not attack. Louis stabbed a left to Baer's nose. In a semi-clinch Louis scored with both hands to the body. Louis hooked a left to the face. Louis rocked Baer with two hooks to the jaw. In a clinch Baer covered. Louis led with two left hooks to the face and hooked a left to the body. Louis pumped his left to Baer's face and crossed his right to the jaw. Louis crossed his right to the jaw and Baer went to the floor.

Baer sank to his knees, dropped his hands to the canvas, and remained in that position as Referee Donovan counted him out.

The time of the round was 2:50.

LOUIS WHISPERS "I DO," KISSES BRIDE AND RUNS

Interrupts Nap to Marry Just Before Fight.

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Joe Louis entered the ring tonight a married man and his radiant bride, who until ten minutes before Joe left for the Yankee stadium was simply Miss Marva Trotter, 19 year old Chicago secretary, sat in a ringside seat and urged her man on to victory.

The last minute ceremony climaxed a day of denials that the marriage would not take place until after the fight. The license was issued to Joseph Louis Barrow, 21; and Marva Trotter, 19 by Philip A. Hines, deputy city clerk, who sent his Chief Clerk Julius J. Brosen to the apartment house in which they were married, with a blank at 7:30 o'clock.

Bride Uses Fire Escape.

Louis, after a brisk walk along the Harlem river speedway following the weighing-in ceremonies, slept most of the late afternoon in the 6th floor apartment of Mrs. Lucille Armstead, which overlooks upper Harlem and the Yankee stadium from the bluffs of Harlem's Sugar hill.

At 7:30 his retinue whisked him downstairs to the first floor apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Porter. The bride-to-be joined him there, coming up the rear fire escape, to avoid the crowd which thronged the building.

Attired in white velvet with white shoes and a corsage of gardenias and lilies of the valley, she stood close to her warrior groom while her brother, the Rev. Walter Trotter of Clinton, Ia., pronounced the marriage vows a few moments before 8 o'clock She was attended by her sister Novella.

Police Clear Way.

A few minutes after eight a police emergency squad cleared a pathway through the mob clustered about the apartment entrance, and at 8:10 Louis and his aids hustled to the green coach which rushed him to the stadium.

Later after Mrs. Louis had watched her husband make $215,000 in about 15 minutes, she rode home on a street car for 5 cents. She sat in the 25th row ringside at the stadium and when the fight was over walked from the stadium with four girl friends to the car line.

She said she wasn't interested in a celebration and only wished to wait quietly for Louis to return.

Louis followed his wife to their three room apartment in Washington Heights as soon as he could dress and fight his way from the stadium. A crowd of 500 had gathered in front of the building and it took six husky cops to get him on the elevator.

The Louis apartment was located not in Harlem, but in the better residential section overlooking Colonial park.

THEY MET AT FIGHT

Mrs. Joe Louis, the former Marva Trotter, saw her husband for the first time on Dec. 14, 1934, at the Louis-Lee Ramage fight at the Chicago Stadium. She was one of the 12,151 spectators.

A friend escorted Miss Trotter, 19 year old Chicago stenographer, to the bout, and afterward took her around to congratulate Louis on his 12th successive professional victory.

Last Friday, as Louis tapered off for his fight with Max Baer, she went to New York where they were married last night.

She is a native of Boley, Okla., and the daughter of William Trotter, who brought his family to Chicago in 1920. They reside at 6326 Eberhart avenue. She has six sisters and three brothers, and was graduated from Englewood High school.

Marva's father said he was "strong for Joe, a fine upstanding boy, as well as a first class fighter."

"He's a clean cut youngsters if I ever saw one," the elder Trotter said.

RIGHT GLANCES OFF JOE'S JAW IN FIRST ROUND

SaysMaxTelegraphs His Blows.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The bridegroom went out to battle. Joe Louis, calm, calculating Brown Bomber of pugilism, was married tonight at 8 o'clock to Miss Marva Trotter, former Chicago stenographer. Two hours later Joe Louis stepped into the ring at Yankee stadium and in four rounds dealt an end to the career of Max Baer with a methodical attack which annihilated the Livermore Lothario, himself recently wed.

Joe Louis, who only fifteen months ago left the amateur ranks in which he had become the outstanding Chicago Golden Gloves fighter since Barney Ross, tonight was a master workman. More impressive was his complete disregard for all superstitions of the ring.

Did any fighter ever dare fate by escorting his fiance to the altar, then desert her momentarily to fulfill a business engagement which netted a quarter of a million dollars, a business deal watched by 85,000? Joe Louis, fighter extraordinary, knows no superstition, admits no superior.

Storm Louis Quarters.

Louis, acclaimed and applauded, sat nonchalantly in his dressing room after his crushing defeat of the man the world had recognized one year ago as the heir to Jack Dempsey's fame. Hundreds fought the cordon of police to gain admittance to the quarters where Louis was changing his fighting togs.

Scores of photographers pushed forward. Others climbed the steel lockers.

"Let's have a smile, Joe," one cried.

"Shake hands with the mayor," another shouted.

Mayor Frank Couzens of Detroit, beamingly proud of this 21 year old lad who was working in a Detroit automobile plant for $5 a day less than two years ago and today can write his check for hundreds of thousands, crashed the circle to grasp Louis' hand, the hand which wrote taps to Baer's career.

No Tougher than Amateurs.

"It's just like Golden Gloves," Joe said, when we smashed our way close to Louis with an off tackle thrust worthy of Bronko Nagurski. "I just hit him a little harder, that's all. Baer wasn't nearly as tough as some of the kids I fought in the Chicago tournament of champions."

"Did Max hurt you with any punch?" we asked as we leaned over to talk, unmindful of all the noise.

"The hardest lick I got," Joe replied, "came in the first round. Baer swung his right hand hard. It caught me on the side of the face as I turned with the punch. But it didn't have any effect. You could see those punches coming. Max sure told me when he intended to swing."

Sees the End.

"When did you know you would win?" was our next question.

"I thought I had Baer licked in the third round but the bell stopped me," Joe said. "Then, in the next round, when I kept stabbing my left in his face and he didn't even try to hit me I knew it was all over. I kept hitting him with the left, hoping he would open up, but he wouldn't. So I finally cut loose with my right and Max went down. I was so sure he was done that I didn't pay any attention to him after that."

That's actually what Louis did. As Baer sank to the canvas in the fourth round, Joe turned his back and shuffled across the ring to the far corner. He had no more concern than the hunter who knows he's scored a clean, lethal shot.

It's Curtains for Baer.

The timer raised and lowered his hand. The referee caught the count, his lips moving inaudibly above the booming crescendo of the crowd. Baer half resting on his knees, half supporting his weight on one hand, the hand which had knocked out Max Schmeling and Primo Carnera, took the count of ten. His head was bowed; he displayed no sign of bravado for the thousands. He was whipped, completely, decisively.

After the fight Baer, in his dressing room, cursed his luck. Jack Dempsey, who had seconded his pal and thereby relinquished his right to referee in the state of New York, gave encouragement. But Dempsey's words of cheer fell on deaf ears. Few gathered in this room. They chose to congratulate a victor rather than console a loser. However, Baer's spirits rose rapidly.

"Gimme a cigaret," he said irritably. "Lace those shoes."

Lips Puffed; Nose Swollen.

His lips were puffed. A blotch marred the contour of his cheek. His nose was enlarged noticeably from the Louis' jabbing left.

"I'm through with this fight racket," he shouted as we mutely offered our hand. "Louis? A good kid. No, Maxie won't be in the bread line.

great fights of history. Jack Dempsey was a participant in the other five.

These figures were slightly under expectations. Night probably added to the deception, but from the ringside it was impossible to discern an empty row. There were some in the cheaper sections, behind the long rows of faces turned from every angle toward the ring. The unfilled seats were hidden behind the crowd, however, and their expanses, not vast, were lost in the mantle of evening.

The New York Milk Fund will receive ten per cent of $805,725, after which Louis and Baer each will get 30 per cent, or approximately $215,000.

Louis Takes Command.

It was the kind of fight the boys said it would be. Louis was the aggressor from the beginning. At the end of the first round he was as far in front as Jimmy Durante's beak. It required only the first three minutes for Louis to give his opponent a thorough boxing lesson. He snapped back Baer's head with sharp jabs to the face, spun him around and shook him up with short rights and lefts to the head. He brought blood to Baer's nose after 30 seconds of fighting with the first real punch of the battle, a boisterous left hook.

Throughout the second round Louis, the master boxer, crept snakelike inside of Baer's guard, raking him with short arm blows. He then would writhe gracefully back out of range only to leap in suddenly with a succession of left hooks to the head and right hand smashes to the body. In and out he glided, weaving, bobbing, creeping and jumping until Baer hardly knew where he was.

Baer Comes In, Gets Hit.

Baer, still trying to keep up a brave front, came charging in, but he was like a man with a bludgeon attempting to smash a will o' the wisp in a fog. Time after time he threw his devastating right at Louis' jaw, but he might as well have been throwing rocks at a bobbing cork. Louis had speed of foot, speed of hand and speed of body. And with all this he had speed of brain, because he outthought Baer all the way.

The former champion had no change of pace, no versatility in his attack. He knew nothing except to wade in and look for an opening. He invariably waded into a flurry of left jabs that rolled him back. He came on again and again, but always to the same fate, a left jab in the eye or nose, a right cross to the jaw and then a clinch that held him in a noose he couldn't slip or break.

Max Lands About Three.

Baer kept his theatrics fairly well under control, although he took time to wave to a customer while seated on his stool after the first round. He landed one blow in the first round that jarred Louis, and hit him twice after the bell in the second. These were about the only wallops Louis caught.

Baer took his worst beating in the third round. In the middle of the round Joe backed Max against the ropes and blazed away with a two handed attack to the head that made the Californian shiver and tremble in the storm. A crushing right to the jaw finally sent Baer sprawling in the resin for the first time in his life. Still game, he was up at the count of nine, only to be swept around the ring like a chip in a whirlpool. Battered, stunned, figuratively punch drunk, he stood up under the fire until shortly before the end of the round, when a left hook again sent him to the floor. The bell saved him at the count of three.

Then Comes the Crash!

Whatever fight was left in Baer disappeared early in the fourth round when he took body punches that doubled him up. Then came the crack to the jaw that put an end to one of the most one sided and yet one of the most dramatic fights in a generation.

Commissioner Bill Brown of the New York boxing board, seated at our side, summarized the situation with the remark: "What a fighter!"

Louis and his bride will spend a day or two in New York and then plan to return to Chicago, where they will make their home.

BAER THREATENS WALKOUT

The fighters weighed in early this afternoon at the offices of the New York boxing commission on Center street in Foley Square. Baer scaled 210½ pounds and Louis 199¼.

Baer enlivened this meeting with a theatrical threat to call off the fight, which wasn't taken seriously by observers.

"All right," Baer shouted during a heated argument over the six ounce gloves to be used. "The fight's off. I'm through." And he stalked out of the place.

There was a conference, and shortly afterward Julian Black and John Roxborough, Louis' managers, agreed to both fighters wearing the gloves Max had chosen. They are specially built with flaps that protect the knuckles of the first finger when the fist is closed. It was generally understood that these gloves had been agreed on some weeks ago and that Baer's protest was merely part of his act.

In addition they agreed to bandage the hands with 12 feet of soft gauze, instead of the customary six feet, and six feet of surgeon's tape instead of two.

The weighing-in ceremony was conducted by Brig. Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the commission, and William Brown, member of the board. The examining physicians were Dr. William H. Walker, brother of former Mayor Jimmy Walker, and Dr. Harris Feinburg.

Dr. Walker announced that Louis' blood pressure was 118 over 65. His pulse was 76, with no difference after exercise. Baer's blood pressure was 128 over 80 and his pulse 68. His pulse advanced to 70 after exercise, but returned to normal in 15 seconds.

Baer was accompanied by his manager, Ancil Hoffman, and by Jack Dempsey, who served in his corner tonight. Izzy Klein, the Chicago Golden Gloves trainer who prepared Baer for tonight's fight, also was there. Louis was escorted by his managers, John Roxborough and Julian Black. The Louis party arrived a few minutes before 1 o'clock, the appointed time, but Baer kept them waiting half an hour.

Odds on the fight remained in Louis' favor at 8 to 5.

In the gathering were the heavyweight champion, Jim Braddock, who next summer will fight the winner, and five former titleholders. They were Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Jack Johnson, Jack Sharkey, and Primo Carnera.

John Roosevelt represented the White House at the ringside. Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York accompanied his son Peter to the bout. Other state leaders reported on hand were Gov. George Earle of Pennsylvania, Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, Gov. Frank Fitgerald of Michigan, Gov. Wilbur Cross of Connecticut, Gov. Harold Hoffman of New Jersey, and Gov. Louis J. Brann of Maine.

Col. Roosevelt There.

Other celebrities included Col. Theodore Roosevelt and the embattled colonels of Madison Square Garden, John Reed Kilpatrick and John S. Hammond; Joseph E. Widener, George Widener, Herbert Bayard Swope, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Winston Guest, M. A. Aylesworth, Harry F. Sinclair, Wallace Beery, Bert Lahr, Al Jolson, George Burns and Gracie Allen, John Hertz, and Conde Nast.

The Chicago delegation included Sheldon Clark, George Getz, Joe Triner, Packey McFarland, P. A. Nash, Michael J. Flynn, John Toman, Al Horan, B. I. Budd, Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin, Robert Rasmussen, who gave a party for John Jacob Astor III., Horton Smith, Frank Walsh, Ky Laffoon, B. J. Fallon, James Mullen, Nate Lewis, Jacob Arvey, Barney Ross, Henry Sonnenschein, Jim Harding, John Egan, and George Ross. Promoter Mike Jacobs said that more than 500 tickets had been sold to Chicagoans.

The gates were thrown open at 6 o'clock and an hour later the outer fringes of the stadium looked like Addis Ababa. Harlem, it seems, had turned out en masse to support its idol, Louis. Estimates on the number of colored spectators ran as high as 20,000.

A force of 1,925 police and detectives was assigned to maintain order. Early arrivals, however, gave no evidence of disorder. It was a highly partisan but a good natured throng. Six hundred and seventy ushers, all with "hunting-big-game-in-Africa" hats, corresponding in color to the color of the tickets for their sections, were required to seat the crowd.

Trusting Customers Fooled.

There were loud screams of anguish when some of the ringside customers discovered the location of their seats. Some of them who thought they were to sit in row 6, 7, or 8 turned out to be in rows 46, 47, or 48. Their seats were in rows 6, 7, or 8 all right, but in different sections from what they thought. Customers were required to buy their tickets sight unseen. No charts ever were disclosed to public view. The trick ringside sections were arranged in a way to aid the scalpers.

It is fairly simple to sell a sucker a seat in the 4th or 5th row at a rich premium, but is somewhat difficult to ask the same price for one in the 38th. The ringside was designed for only one purpose—to confuse the spectator and to enrich the speculator. Mr. Jacobs and the Twentieth Century club, which promoted the fight ostensibly to raise money for the Hearst milk fund, had the whole affair in their hands. Mr. Jacobs is a splendid promoter. He also is a very successful scalper. But maybe it all means more milk for the babies.

Mann Wins Opener.

Nathan Mann, 177 pounds, from New Haven, Conn., stopped George Chip of Wilkesbarre, Pa., in the fourth round of the first preliminary bout.

Bob Pastor, heavyweight, who whipped Otis Thomas of Chicago in the 1934 intercity Golden Gloves bouts, won the second match of the evening. He was given the decision over Terry Mitchell of Boston, after four rounds.

Heinz Kohlhaas, who as amateur heavyweight champion of Germany knocked out Duffy Dvonch of Chicago in the 1932 international Golden Gloves bouts at Soldiers' field, lost a decision to George Turner of Sallisaw, Okla., sparring mate of Max Baer, in the next preliminary.

The fourth bout was stopped in the fourth round after Jorges Brescia, claimant of the South American heavyweight championship, inflicted terrific punishment on Paul Pross of New York. It was a technical knockout.

Cancela Gets Decision.

Tony Cancela, 194 pounds, of Tampa, Fla., won a divided decision from Jimmy Merrit of Tulsa, Okla., in the fifth bout. It was a four rounder.

The last preliminary before the main bout resulted in a six round decision for Eddie Mader of New York over Hank Hankinson of Lancaster, O. They were heavyweights.

Ford Smith, Kalispell, Mont., heavyweight, won a six round decision over Buddy Baer, young brother of Max, in the six round semi-final which was put on after the windup.

Braddock Says He'll Fight Louis; Calls Baer Scared

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Champion James J. Braddock was far from impressed by Max Baer's showing.

"I think Max was scared before going into the ring," he remarked casually, "and as soon as he saw a little blood he became panic stricken. He didn't offer any opposition."

Asked if he, himself, was ready to meet Louis, Jimmy answered with a very emphatic "absolutely."

In Baer's corner was the once mighty Jack Dempsey, a forgotten figure. He was not introduced and no attention called to the fact that he even was present. For this night, at least, he was just another second.

One of the most engrossed spectators was Governor Lehman. At the finish, he just sat there with eyes shining and face lit up. "It was a wonderful fight," he said, "the best I've ever seen. My, how that boy Louis can hit!"

The number of words that streamed over the telegraph wires was beyond computation, but there were 118 wires reserved, a new record for sports events in New York city.

Joe Jacobs was asked whether or not his man, Max Schmeling, would challenge the winner. Joe nearly swallowed his cigar at the absurdity of such a question. "Of course," he said. He plans a trip to Germany in the near future and, according to him, Mike Jacobs [no relation] is going with him.

Young George Turner, one of Baer's sparring partners, fought in one of the preliminaries, and just to make things a bit more confusing. he wore the bathrobe of another one of the training mates. He jumped into the ring with "Abe Feldman" emblazoned across his back.

Joe Humphreys, who has announced most of the important heavyweight fights for two decades, and who was only recently very ill, made a comeback and entered the ring to announce the principals in the main bout. He received a great hand as he climbed through the ropes and introduced the fighters.

At 10 o'clock the speculators who still had tickets to sell started to unload. They were asking only $1 for $5.75 seats and $2 for the $11.50 locations. When word spread they were mobbed by buyers who had held off for just this moment. One disappointed speculator was heard to remark: "This is the cheapest crowd I've seen in years."

Talking It Over

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Press agents for Pat O'Brien, the movie actor, repeatedly have alluded to his football feats which enabled Marquette to defeat Notre Dame. . . . The Milwaukee school is proud of O'Brien but can find no record of a gridiron victory over the Irish. . . . Inky Woykyns, a full back with the College All-Star football squad, has landed a job as assistant coach at his alma mater, Southern California. . . . George Burns, former Giant outfielder, is a billiard room proprietor in Albany, N. Y. . . . Promoter Bill O'Brien says the offer Fred Perry rejected to turn professional was $50,000. . . . The British tennis ace held out for $100,000. . . . American league players say Red Rolfe, Yankee infielder, is the best bunter in baseball. . . . The New Yorker hotel provided every fight fan with a set of binoculars. . . . The Greentree polo team is named for the Manhasset estate of its organizer, J. H. [Jock] Whitney, and the Aurora four gets its name from East Aurora a suburb of Buffalo, home of Seymour Knox, who organized its team. . . .

After going through about 100 letters a day offering the former champion luck charms, magic words, get rich quick schemes, medical secrets, and entreaties from the lovelorn, Manager Ancil Hoffman admits "that Max Baer isn't the screwiest person in the world." . . . Jack Dempsey probably had a more severe workout before the Louis-Baer match than either of the principals.. . . . He must have shaken hands with approximately 800,000, most of whom tried to crowd into his restaurant the last 48 hours before the fight. . . . Fans from San Francisco, Seattle, Chicago, Miami, and Mudville, Ark., all wanted to say hello to the most popular of all fight champions. . . . Jack told one and all that Baer was a cinch to stop Louis, provided he had anything left at all. . . . And he intimated that Baer had plenty. . . . Charley Grimm still believes he was being kidded by New York reporters in an interview at Wrigley field last week when they asked him: "When you are playing the Tigers in this park, what outfielders are you going to put out on the street behind the right and left field walls?" . . .

The San Francisco sports writers are a fraternal group. . . . In fact, they don't even nod. . . . The Green Bay Packers are shuffle board addicts. . . . They learned it at their training camp. . . . Joe Louis balked at wearing striped pants and tails at his wedding. . . . "Nobody is going to be looking at me, anyway," he said. . . . "I think I'll just lock the preacher in the room with us and come out laughing," he said. . . . Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's Brookmeade stable is reported to have earned $251,000 last year and operated at a $42,000 deficit. . . . This year the stable has won only $38,000 in purses. . . . Domestic strife developed in the Baer camp several days before tonight's match. . . . Said Brother Buddy to Max: "If you don't whip Louis, I'll have to change my name. I can't be associated with any stumble bums." . . . It started in fun that wound up seriously. . . .

Frank Packer, wealthy society leader who also is the leading boxing promoter in Australia, will build an arena modeled after Chicago Stadium in the heart of Sydney next year as a monument to himself. . . . Harry Stuhldreher, quarter back of the Four Horsemen, has his Villanova backs wave their arms over their heads when they shift to enhance the direction of the Notre Dame system. . . . Baseball writers have been asked to select the Big Ten of baseball so that their pictures and statues can be placed in Cooperstown, N. Y., museum.

Ten Years Ago Today—Wild Bill Mehlhorn and Walter Hagen were the finalists in the National P. G. A. tournament. . . . The eyes of the football world were on the Notre Dame-Baylor battle. . . . Gene Tunney knocked out Bartley Madden in the third round at Minneapolis, Minn. . . . Coach Yost of Michigan shifted his lineup in an attempt to find a team that could stop Red Grange. . . . Garland Grange, Red's brother, withdrew from the Illini team on account of a shoulder injury.

RUBI AND LEWIS MEET TONIGHT ON MARIGOLD CARD

Bert Rubi, Budapest, Hungary, light heavyweight wrestler, now making Detroit, Mich., his home, and Young Lewis of Marshalltown, Ia., will be opponents in the windup attraction of the wrestling show tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. Pat Newman and Jimmy Demetral will be semi-final performers. Preliminary matches involve Charles Grubmyer and Ernie Peterson, Bobby Pearce, and Cyclone Burns, and Leo Donoghue and Bill Brooks.

TRIBUNE'S FIGHT EDITIONS GO TO NEW YORK BY AIR

Chicago fight fans in New York for the Bear-Louis bout at Yankee stadium last night were able to read a complete account of the battle in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE this morning, through a special arrangement between THE TRIBUNE and American Airlines.

At 1:30 o'clock this morning, American Airlines' Night Owl plane departed from the airport with a special shipment of TRIBUNES, bound for New York.

LOUIS UNHURT BY MAX BAER'S BEST PUNCHES

Not for a long time. To hell with this business."

Baer jumped from thought to thought, striving to hide his feelings. One year ago a toast of Broadway and the hero of the movies, tonight Baer sat alone except for his paid helpers.

"How's Buddy coming?" he asked suddenly as if he hoped his kid brother might make amends to the thousands who had overwhelmed him with boos as he staggered down the steep steps from the ring to the aisle and a long, slow journey to his quarters.

"Come on up and have some beer," was his invitation in the next breath. "I've ordered a lot of beer."

"Kingfish Not So Bad."

Max Baer, the braggart of Speculator, talked irrationally. At the press row, King Levinsky, knocked out by Baer, humbled by this furious colored fighter sprung from Chicago's Golden Gloves, paraded in vain glory.

"Now you know Louis can hit!" the King reminded his coterie. "Guess I ain't so bad at that."

Barney Ross, the world's champion welterweight, who won a Golden Gloves title six years ago, visited Louis' dressing room. He congratulated the Bomber.

"Joe Louis," Barney said earnestly, "IS the greatest fighter I ever have seen."

Here's How Kelpamalt Put 26 lbs. of Good Solid Flesh on "Jimmy" Braddock

New World's Heavyweight Champion

Famous Fighter Tells of Simple Change that CORRECTS IODINE-STARVED GLANDS — Quickly Builds Up Tired, Pale, Rundown Men and Women—Brings Them New Strength, Rugged Energy and Lbs. of New Solid Flesh.

If you are tired, rundown, weak and discouraged take this valuable tip from Jimmy Braddock, the new World's Heavyweight Champion whose smashing victory and sensational comeback recently startled the whole sports world. For years, the new champion had been underweight, too light, unable to handle real heavyweights. Yet in 6 short weeks, with the aid of Kelpamalt, the new mineral concentrate from the sea, he packed on 26 lbs. of hard, solid flesh, built up his rugged, shattering strength and flashing energy.

"The cause of most rundown conditions, weakness and underweight, in my opinion, is largely iodine starved glands", says "Jimmy". "When these glands—particularly the important gland which controls weight building—lack NATURAL PLANT IODINE (don't confuse this with ordinary chemical iodine), even diets rich in fats [illegible] have huge appetites, yet stay skinny."

With the discovery of Kelpamalt—a mineral concentrate from a huge 90-foot sea plant harvested off the Pacific coast, you can now be sure of your needed ration of plant iodine in concentrated, easy to take form. 1300 times richer in iodine than oysters, Kelpamalt helps your food to do you good, build rugged strength, add weight and banish fatigue. Its 12 other minerals stimulate the digestive glands which produce the juices that enable you to digest fats and starches. 3 Kelpamalt tablets contain more iron and copper than 1 lb. of spinach or 7½ lbs. of fresh tomatoes, more iodine than 1,386 lbs. of lettuce and more calcium than 6 eggs.

Start Kelpamalt today. Even if you are "naturally skinny", you must add 5 lbs. the first week or the trial is free. Costs but little to use.

KNOTT, WALKUP TURN BACK SOX, 3 TO 0 AND 6 TO 3

Double Defeat Hides First Division Berth.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The hopeful White Sox, struggling to gain the green pastures of the first division come the season's end, made no progress in that direction yesterday during a double header with Mr. Rogers Hornsby's Browns at Comiskey park, losing both games, 3 to 0 and 6 to 3.

The twin defeat, coupled with Boston's double victory over Philadelphia left the Chicagoans three and one half games back of the fourth place Red Sox.

The first game found the Sox' attack frustrated more than somewhat by Jack Knott, who was so frugal with hits that the Sox could gather no more than three. During the first seven innings only three Sox batters managed to get the ball out of the infield and Al Simmons, who doubled in the first inning for the lone extra base hit off Knott, was the only Chicagoan to attain third base.

Tietje Is Manhandled.

Meanwhile, the Browns were mauling Les Tietje for eleven hits to hand him his 15th defeat of the year. Two of those eleven were home runs by Irv Burns and Harland Clift. Burns smashed his into the right field stand after Lyn Lary had walked to open the game, and Clift drove out his in the ninth.

The Browns were outhit in the second game, 10 to 6, but one of their six was Burns' second homer of the day with a runner aboard in the ninth. Nor was the wildness of Vernon [No Hit] Kennedy precisely a detriment to the St. Louis cause. Kennedy held his foes powerless for four innings, during which time Zeke Bonura drove out his 21st homer to give Vern a 2 to 1 lead.

Came the fifth, and the Browns got to Kennedy for three hits, producing two runs. The Sox tied it up at 3 to 3 in the fifth on singles by Sewell and Simmons, and all went well until the eighth where Kennedy went astray in earnest. Three passes, a wild pitch and a fielder's choice enabled St. Louis to go ahead, 4 to 3, and Burns' circuit smash in the ninth did the rest.

FIRST GAME

The Browns were not long in reaching Tietje. The first two batters produced a pair of runs. After Lary had walked and stolen second Burns hit a home run into the right field stands. They weren't quite done there, either, for after Hayes had thrown out Solters, Bell and West singled in succession. Hemsley then flied to right and West was caught off first, Shea to Bonura.

The only Sox hit off Knott in the first four innings was a two base wallop off the score board by Simmons in the first inning with one out. This produced naught, for Piet was thrown out by Clift and Bonura fouled to Burns.

From here on until the ninth activity was limited.

With one out in the second Carey doubled to left center, and in the third, with two out, Bell and West both singled. Lary beat out a hit to deep short to start the fifth. Appling got the second Chicago hit in the fifth, beating out a scratch over short. West singled in the sixth, and Pinch Hitter Washington singled in the eighth. But none of this developed a scoring threat.

Appling threw out Hemsley for the first out in the ninth, and Clift then smacked his 11th homer of the year into the upper left field deck. Carey followed with a single to left. Knott fouled to Shea, and Lary was safe on Hayes' fumble. Hayes threw out Burns to spare Tietje further embarrassment.

SECOND GAME

The Browns took themselves a one run lead in the first without getting a hit. Lary walked, advanced to second on Burns' sacrifice, and then stole third. Solters was passed and Lary came home on Bell's fly to Haas.

Each of the Sox lead off batters in the first five innings hit safely, but no runs blossomed until the fourth, when Bonura's homer on the heels of a single by Haas brought in two.

Kennedy appeared well set in the fifth after Bonura's homer when he picked Clift off first after walking him and then fanned Carey. Heath, however, replied to this with a double and moved to third on a wild pitch. He scored on Walkup's single. Lary walked and Burns' hit scored Walkup. Solters fanned to end the uprising.

The Sad News.

The Sox loaded the bases in the sixth, but came out with nary a run. After Bonura fouled to Heath, Appling drove a hit through Lary. Kreevich added a hit to this, and Luke reached third and Mike second on Bell's bad throw from right. Hayes was passed to fill the bases, but Sewell popped to Carey and the latter threw out Kennedy.

Kennedy began his downfall in the eighth by walking Lary, who went to third when Vern threw wild. Burns walked and Solters grounded to Appling, who threw Lary out at the plate. Bell reached first on a fielder's choice, Sewell's tardy throw failing to nip Solters at third. Clift walked, forcing in the winning run.

After Heath had fanned to open the ninth, Walkup singled. He was forced by Lary, who went all the way around on Burns' homer. Solters then doubled to the center field wall, but Hayes threw out Bell.

Whoa Up There!

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, veteran Davis cup players, defeated their international squad teammates, Don Budge and Gene Mako, in the doubles finals of the Pacific Southwest Tennis tournament today.

Roderich Menzel, the Czechoslovakian, and Carolyn Babcock of Los Angeles, were defeated in a semifinals mixed doubles match by Nancy Lyle of England, and Jacques Brugnon of France, 9-7, 6-0.

The women's doubles title also was decided today with Mrs. John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, and Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana, Cal., defeating Miss Babcock and Mrs. Esther Martosh, Los Angeles, 6-0, 2-6, 12-10.

CHICAGO BOY HIT BY BALL SUFFERS SKULL FRACTURE

Dayton, O., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Four more teams, suffering their second defeats, were eliminated today from championship play of the National Baseball Congress.

Only two teams remained undefeated—the Bubba-Hicks of Houston, Tex., and the Oakford, Ill., nine, and these will meet tomorrow.

Those eliminated from further tourney competition today were the Chicago Jednotas, Webster, S. D., the Chicago Felz Motors, and the International Printing Inks of Battle Creek, Mich.

An accident in which Outfielder Frank Mueller of the Felz Motors sustained a multiple skull fracture when hit by a pitched ball, played its part in elimination of the Chicago team, 11 to 6, at the hands of the Milwaukee Pet Foods.

NO SAINT WINS 17TH START; HE LOST FIRST 16

Captures Winnetka Purse by Length.

When No Saint went to the post in the Winnetka purse at Hawthorne yesterday he was making his seventeenth start of the year. Then when he thundered home a length in front of Marie Jean and Terrier it was the first time that he had taken a look at the winning post. Despite his many failures, he had numerous backers and paid $8.80 for a two dollar ticket.

Six year old Haggerson, owned by Tony Pelleteri, isn't a very reliable racing tool, but every now and then he runs like a champion. He ran like a champion in the 6½ furlong fourth race yesterday and was the winner by half a length from the fast finishing Let Her Play. Shady Gate finished third. Haggerson paid off at $11.80 because his last racing effort hadn't been so good.

The 7,000 spectators at Hawthorne couldn't believe their eyes when they saw 25 to 1 odds posted against one of Col. Bradley's horses in the 2 year old race which opened yesterday's program. So a few of them wagered at the tall odds. Behind Me ran last, with the favorite, Our Patty, a handy winner.

Jim Norris' young jocky, W. Ray, was riding in fine style yesterday. He won on Our Patty and Haggerson, and his stout finishes were a big factor in deciding the issue.

Roth Adams Team Wins in Grimm Trophy Game

The Roth Adam Coals defeated Norwood Park yesterday, 8 to 6, at Mills stadium. Bill Ascher, hurling for the Coals, was hit freely in the first four innings and was relieved by Fox, who held the Norwoods to two hits. The Coals will continue the playoff for the Charley Grimm trophy and Illinois State Baseball league championship Friday.

Winner trained by H. W. Fisher. Went to post at 2:20. At post 4½ minutes. Start good from gate for all but Frolicking Sis. Won easily; place driving.

OUR PATTY, a factor from the start and raced a trifle wide throughout, overtook the leaders quickly when ready in stretch and, holding on well, was in safe command the final eighth. FANAWAY, on inside throughout and showing speed from the start, held on fairly well. EARLY HOUR, forced to lose much ground, closed fast.

SECOND RACE—Mile and one-sixteenth. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Time, :24 3-5, :49 2-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 1-5, 1:46 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Cabotin, $14.60 straight, $6.20 place, $2.40 show; Sam Alexander, $7.40 place, $3.60 show; Beaver, $2.60 show. Winner trained by C. C. Miller. Went to post at 2:53. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

CABOTIN, well in hand for five-eighths, swerved out when beginning to move up entering stretch, stood pressure gamely when straight, and wore down SAM ALEXANDER in the closing strides.. Latter, under light restraint early and saving ground throughout, increased his advantage slightly under pressure nearing stretch, but weakened in final eighth, yet barely failed to last. BEAVER, raced very wide the first five furlongs and on inside thereafter, appeared through on stretch turn, but came again strongly and finished fastest.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Winner trained by A. Wallin. Went to post at 3:23½. At post 3½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

SEVENTH HEAVEN, forced to lose ground, responded to strong pressure after reaching stretch and, after wearing down the leaders, held OH DOLLY safe. Latter, probably best and shuffled back on the turn, was slow to respond when clear in final quarter, but finished racing stoutly. GERALDINE M., a factor from the start and also raced wide, gave way slightly in late stages.

Time, :23 1-5, :46 4-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:19 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Haggerson, $11.80 straight, $8.00 place, $4.80 show; Let Her Play, $8.80 place, $5.00 show; Shady Gate, $7.60 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 3:56½. Left at once. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

HAGGERSON, a sharp factor from the start and raced very wide until reaching stretch, took command quickly under strong riding and, holding on well, stalled off LET HER PLAY. Latter, also close up from the start, secured room on inside in stretch, where she stood a drive gamely and was wearing down the winner. SHADY GATE lost ground practically throughout and held on fairly well.

NO SAINT forced a fast pace under light restraint, took command easily as RICKEY ROO faltered in stretch, but was vigorously ridden out. MARIE JEAN raced wide and, badly outrun the first half mile, improved her position rapidly thereafter. TERRIER, a factor from the start fought it out gamely in the drive.

SILK MASK forced the early pace under mild restraint, raced around FRENCH PRINCESS gradually after reaching the last quarter and, though not strongly persevered with, sustained fine speed to the end and had something left. BUBBLESOME lost considerable ground early, but saved some on stretch turn, then came to outside when wearing down FRENCH PRINCESS. Latter displayed keen speed for five-eighths, then tired, but narrowly missed lasting to be second.

Winner trained by J. Oros. Went to post at 5:18½. At post 1½ minutes. Start good. Won driving; place same.

POMPOPHONE, quickest to get going and brought over sharply, was taken under stout restraint when outrun, stood a drive gamely and, after wearing down WAR DIMES, drew clear fast. Latter raced to the lead with a big loss of ground and weakened badly in last sixteenth. MY GENTLEMAN, well up throughout, held on with good courage.

ATCINES, lucky to save much ground, improved his position gradually and after wearing down the leaders withstood KING PIN'S bid. Latter, improved, lost much ground and finished boldly in a fine effort. FOXLAND HALL forced the early pace under restraint, took a short lead on stretch turn, was under pressure the last three-sixteenths, and was tiring when mildly impeded near end.

GUARANTEED TREATMENT AGAINST BALDNESS
By the Inventor of the Permanent Wave
CHARLES NESSLER pioneer in modern hair research—Inventor of the Permanent Wave, author of "The Story of Hair" and many scientific papers. Invented the "Kerascope", the first scientific formula to measure hair production. His most recent contribution, Pro-Ker, is the first guaranteed formula for maintaining human hair growth.
Full instructions are given in the booklets wrapped with every bottle of Pro-Ker.
$1.00 8 oz. size $1.50 16 oz. size
A treatment that will save the hair on your head has not only been your hope, but the hope of generations. The announcement of such a discovery by Charles Nessler is the sensational climax of 35 years' scientific research.
With PRO-KER Charles Nessler's new preparation, PRO-KER Laboratories make this guarantee.
No matter what your age—no matter how great your present hair loss—whether you suffer from such secondary conditions as dandruff, oiliness or itching scalp—PRO-KER is guaranteed to stop your hair loss from the first application of its use—and promptly to correct the secondary conditions. (For details see booklet.)
"Baldness is not due to falling hair," Mr. Nessler tells us. It is due to the fact that nature fails to replace the hair that falls. So it is upon this startling discovery on which PRO-KER is based. PRO-KER helps nature to complete the hair growing cycle—to replace the hair that falls with new, live, lustrous hair.

RECORD HOLDERS OF TURF CLASH IN MATCH TODAY

McCoy Rides Myrtlewood; Haas Up on Clang.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The two great speed horses of American racing—Myrtlewood from Kentucky and Clang from Louisiana—will battle it out for supremacy in a six furlong match race at Hawthorne this afternoon.

Both hold world's records and both have an army of backers among middle western racing fans. The two of them have come up to the often delayed struggle in perfect condition and last night Myrtlewood was the favorite at 3 to 5. The odds against Clang were 13 to 10.

Myrtlewood ran six furlongs in the world's record time of 1:09 2-5 at Arlington Park. A couple of days later Clang ran seven furlongs over the same course in 1:22, which was also a world's record.

Track Must Be O. K.

So it was only natural that a match between them should be demanded. It has been on again and off again a half dozen times because conditions were not just right.

And it will be on again today if the track is good or fast and will be off again should rain visit the course and the track become muddy.

Brownell Combs, owner of Myrtlewood, simply will not let her go into the important engagement should bad track conditions prevail. He does not believe that Myrtlewood is at her best on anything but a good or a fast track.

McCoy vs. Haas.

The veteran Jimmy McCoy was picked yesterday to ride Myrtlewood. Buddy Haas, under contract to Tom Worden of Chicago, will have the leg up on Clang.

Two of America's veteran trainers will saddle the horses. Bill Sallee, a Kentuckian, will put the saddle on Clang. Ray Kindred, another veteran from the blue grass country, will perform a like chore when Myrtlewood gets ready to go to the post.

The match will be staged as a special event, 20 minutes after the fifth race, and 25 minutes before the sixth.

Both Work Fast.

The preparations of both record holders for the test have been brilliant. Myrtlewood was sent a handy three furlongs in :36 yesterday morning as a blower. On Sunday she did five furlongs pulled up in 1:00. Clang worked well, going six furlongs in 1:12 handily. He was at the quarter in :23, three-eighths in :34 3-5, and half in :46 3-5.

Both Myrtlewood and Clang will carry 110 pounds, which means that Myrtlewood is giving Clang 3 pounds. She is entitled to that break in the weights on her filly allowance.

The race has created so much interest and so many bets of horse against horse have been made that the Hawthorne management made preparations last night to entertain the banner weekday crowd of the season.

GARDEN BOARD VOTES, BUT HOLDS RESULT SECRET

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Madison Square garden, a house divided against itself by losing the first million dollar boxing gate since the days of Tex Rickard, balloted today on who shall head the corporation during the next year—but the results of the vote will not be made public until tomorrow.

The maneuvering of the Louis-Baer fight into the hands of the Garden's growing rival—Mike Jacob's Twentieth Century Sporting club—had embroiled the Garden corporation's two factions into a bitter fight for leadership, each charging the other with mismanagement.

The balloting, by a technical election of a board which in turn would name the officers for the next year, will determine whether Col. John S. Hammond, chairman of the board, or Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president, will hold the reins of the organization which once all but monopolized the boxing industry.

CUBS AND SERIES.

CHICAGO'S Cubs have participated in seven world series. Their record of success in these interleague series leaves considerable to be desired. In only two of the seven has triumph rested with the National leaguers. Strangely enough those lone victories back in 1907 and 1908 were against Detroit, their opponent this year if they participate, which seems reasonably assured. Detroit has even a more drab world series record—no title in four combats.

The Cubs, since adoption of the so-called national agreement in 1903 providing for organized baseball and a world series, have been National league champions in 1906, 1907, 1908, 1910, 1918, 1929, and 1932, with ultimate triumph only in 1907 and 1908, as stated. Games results were: Won, 14; lost, 22; tied, 1.

In the same period Detroit won American league flags in 1907, 1908, 1909, and 1934, without a single world banner going to the City of Straits. Games won were 7; lost, 16; tied, 1.

Explanation.

Absence of The Wake from these pages the last two days, if you chanced to notice it in the general sports excitement, was due to an aggressive family of flu germs which climbed into our system. We've dispossessed most of them and hope they stay out—what with the world series and football impending.

Gay Cubs Off for St. Louis to Clinch Flag

Deans are ready, Paul being slated to start against Lon Warneke tomorrow. Dizzy probably will pitch Thursday.

St. Louis jumped into a three run lead in the first inning at the expense of Red Lucas, Collins' twenty-third homer of the season scoring Medwick ahead of him after Lynn King, recruit from Houston, tallied on Medwick's safety after walking and stealing second.

Hallahan Wild in Third.

Hallahan had a spell of wildness in the third when the Pirates scored their runs, but outside of that inning had the situation well in hand. Suhr opened with a double to right center, went to third on Hallahan's balk and scored when Lucas beat out a slow bounder to Gelbert. Two wild pitches placed Lucas on third, from which he scored on Woody Jensen's long fly to Pepper Martin.

The Cardinals added two more in the third and Durocher's home run in the fourth boosted the score to six. Birkofer took over the Pittsburgh pitching duties in the fifth, but was promptly batted out. Joe Medwick was the first to face M. Brown, another Pirate hurler, and his drive went for a double when Lloyd Waner lost the ball in the sun. Three runs scored before the inning ended.

Davis, Center, Passes Test; Joins Badgers

Madison, Wis., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin football team had broken even this afternoon on the four players whose eligibility was in doubt pending examinations.

David [Red] Davis, Milwaukee sophomore center, passed his examination last night. This afternoon it was announced by university officials that Gene Zinser, promising sophomore half back from Milwaukee, had failed in his examination and would be lost for the season.

George Lanphear, Beloit, who has been playing at guard and quarter back, and Lynn Hovland, Bloomer, were taking examinations this afternoon with their eligibility depending on the outcome.

If Lanphear is eligible, he probably will go back to right guard to replace the injured Capt. Ray Davis in the South Dakota State college game Saturday, with Bill Parrott or Johnny Fish starting at quarter back. Allen Mahnke is back at his old center berth after being tried at end. Coach C. W. Spears gave the varsity a long defensive workout this afternoon.

INDIANA CRIPPLES RETURN.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The return of almost a full team of cripples to active practice brightened football prospects at Indiana university today. Players who were pronounced recovered from minor injuries, ranging from pulled muscles to tackle shoulders, included Dileo, Filchock, Clasen, Fox, and Briggs, backs, and Keck, Risher, Sirtosky, and Lubanovich, linemen.

N. U. BUILDS DEFENSE.

A defense against De Paul plays occupied the attention of Northwestern's football team during yesterday's practice. Two freshman teams that have been drilling on De Paul formations were employed against the varsity with little success.

Offensive scrimmages today and tomorrow will have a direct bearing on who will appear in the lineup against De Paul Saturday.

Only Sam Papich, veteran tackle, will be out of action Saturday. Bill Henderson, regular end, induiged in his first contact work of the season yesterday.

DE PAUL SCRIMMAGES.

De Paul university's football team held its last scrimmage before the Northwestern game yesterday. The opening part of the drill consisted of offensive pass maneuvers and the remainder was given over to defense.

Frank Jenkivicius, sophomore reserve guard, is definitely out of the Wildcat encounter. He underwent an operation recently and is not ready to play.

HAWKEYES SCRIMMAGE.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa football squad struggled through a long scrimmage today in the worst heat of the season. A blazing sun kept the temperature around the 90 degree mark.

Coach Ossie Solem continued to experiment with lineup combinations. He moved Bill Secl from tackle to guard, a position which he held last year, and shifted Rudy Leytze to a tackle job. Leytze had been playing at guard during the first two weeks.

MEDWICK ONLY BIG SIX HITTER TO BOOST MARK

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HAARLOW FEELS FOOTBALL URGE; JOINS MAROONS

Basketball Star Bids for Place at End.

Bill Haarlow, star forward on the University of Chicago basketball team and high scorer in the Big Ten last year, reported for football at the Midway yesterday as the Maroons entered their final three days of practice before the season opener against Nebraska at Lincoln Saturday. Haarlow is out for an end position.

A senior, Haarlow has had practically no football experience, but is captain of both the basketball and baseball teams this year. He weighs 170 pounds and stands 6 feet 1 inch. It is doubtful if he will be useful in the early games, but may see some action later in the season.

The Maroon party of 40, including coaches and trainers, will entrain for Lincoln tomorrow night on the Burlington.

OHIO WORKS ON OFFENSE.

Columbus, O., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Ohio State candidates went through a long drill on offense today in preparation for their first game with Kentucky, Oct. 5. For the first time since training started all members of the squad were in uniform.

NOTRE DAME SCRIMMAGES.

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—After a spirited line scrimmage this afternoon Coach Elmer Layden announced that he will have one more scrimmage tomorrow for every one and will then name the Notre Dame lineup for the game with Kansas here Saturday. Frankie Gaul, varsity quarter back, rejoined the squad today after recovering from a slight infection.

Bill Renner, Bob Cooper, John Smithers and Cedric Sweet, backs.

Dwight Reed, Negro sophomore prospect, and Ray King, sophomore from Duluth, appear to be fixtures at the ends. Julie Alfonse came down with an attack of boils yesterday. If he is not ready Saturday, Andy Uram, sophomore, will get the call at half.

ILLINI SEEK PUNTERS.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Seeking punters to understudy Les Lindberg, Coach Bob Zuppke of the Illinois football team today spent considerable time with Ken Nelson, Bill Charle and Cliff Kuhn. News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Chicago artists and stations will unite in presenting a gala one hour show from 10 to 11 o'clock next Sunday evening at the Civic theater in connection with the launching of the annual Community Fund drive in which 147 charities are to share. Entertainers to take part in the program include Ireene Wicker, the Singing Lady; Gertrude Niesen, Edgar A. Guest, the Northerners, Vivian Della Chiesa, Franz Imhof, Fibber McGee and Molly, the Morin Sisters, Radio Rogues, Eddie Peabody and Roscoe Ates, the tangle tongued movie comedian. Others are to be added to the list. Phil Stewart will announce the program.

Speakers will be Philip D. Armour, general chairman of the drive; Clarence E. Randall, and Edward Ryerson Jr. Outlets will be announced later.

When the Cubs and Cardinals launch their big series this afternoon four Chicago stations will report the proceedings direct from the park at St. Louis—W-G-N, with Bob Elson; WBBM, Pat Flanagan and Allan Hale; WMAQ, Tom Manning, and WCFL, Hal Totten. The broadcasts start at 3:45. Prior to that WCFL will present a portion of the Sox-St. Louis game here, and WIND will carry that entire contest.

Jack Fulton Jr., who used to sing with Paul Whiteman, will replace Don Mario as the soloist on the Penthouse Serenade show over NBC, starting Sunday, Oct. 13. This show also features Charlie Gaylord's orchestra. Gaylord will supplant Horace Heidt's crew at the Drake hotel and on W-G-N beginning next Sunday for five days. Heidt's troupe is to make a four day tour, including stops at Milwaukee, Freeport, Peoria, and Davenport, Ia. They'll return Oct. 4 to play the Junior League ball.

Ray Noble's orchestra has been engaged to headline the new NBC "Pause That Refreshes" series beginning Oct. 30. Noble will leave that perfume sponsored program Oct. 9. It will, however, continue on the air, possibly with Richard Himber's orchestra.

Ed East and Ralph Dumke, the Sisters of the Skillet, who opened a new show on CBS the other day, received a telegram on the day their new series started reading: "Program coming in terribly. Wish you were here. Reinald Werrenrath." Investigation revealed that the wire had been sent before they took their places at the microphone. Eddie and Ralph can hardly wait till Werrenrath goes back on the air.

Eddie Cantor, Jack Benny, and Phil Baker will all return to the air next Sunday. Fred Allen will be back the following Wednesday. Thus the nights will be filled with nonsense again.

Among last season's major radio attractions that are still outside the fold are Ed Wynn, Joe Penner, Jane Froman, Gertrude Niesen, Jack Pearl, and the Metropolitan Opera. Penner is said to be happy with his picture work in the west. Wynn has lots of money and may go into a Broadway show. Jane Froman has several guest appearances scheduled, but no regular series. Miss Niesen will be starred in the new Follies.

HOLD NEW YORK RITES FRIDAY FOR DE WOLF HOPPER

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Funeral services for De Wolf Hopper, noted actor, who died Monday in Kansas City, will be held at noon Friday at the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration, known better to actors and to the outside world as "The Little Church Around the Corner."

Simple services have been planned, but within the small church virtually every prominent theatrical figure in New York will appear.

Delegations from the Lambs and the Players' clubs will be at the church to pay their last respects to a man whose career extended deep into the memories of the oldest theater-goers.

CAMP ALGONQUIN BENEFITS SHARED BY 1,999 PERSONS

501 Children Gain 900 Pounds in Weight.

A total of 1,999 mothers and children from the poorer districts of Chicago benefited from summer vacations at Camp Algonquin, summer camp on the Fox river operated by the United Charities of Chicago and supported by readers of THE TRIBUNE, it was announced yesterday.

Weight charts of 641 of the vacationists showed a total gain in weight of 900 pounds by 501 campers, principally undernourished children, and a total loss of 189 pounds by 140 campers, most of them overweight mothers.

The largest registered gain was made by an all-summer camper, a small girl from the stockyards district, who gained 10½ pounds. A 13 year old boy, seriously malnourished, gained 9½ pounds, while a 10 year old boy who spent six weeks in a hospital last winter due to malnutrition gained 6 pounds.

Juveniles Donate $3.54.

A "Mystery Girls" circus and a play, "Idle Dorothy," given by and for the juvenile world of Chicago, netted $3.54 for THE TRIBUNE free ice fund.

The circus, which raised $3, was given by six little girls from the south side, members of the "Play Club" of the "Mystery Riders," on Sept. 5 and 6 in their Little theater.

Participating club members are Georgia Segal, 11 years old, 5217 Greenwood avenue; Marilyn Glatt, 11, of 1109 East 52d street; Jeanne Marie, Marietta and Jamie Colette Fox, 5200 University avenue, and Merle Sloan, 5304 University avenue.

Members of Play Cast.

The Good Friends club of Rogers Park sponsored "Idle Dorothy," which brought 54 cents to the ice fund. Members of the cast are George Ryan, 6506 Greenview avenue; Harriet Harris, 6603 Bosworth avenue; Virginia O'Rourke, 6511 Bosworth avenue, and Sonia and Bobby Blauner, 6513 Bosworth avenue.

The two contributions bring the ice fund total to $1,682.42. Donations to the fund should be addressed to the cashier, Tribune Tower.

LAW CLERK HELD FOR FORGERY IN TAX SUIT PROBE

Herbert H. Kerman, 29 years old, 3808 Pine Grove avenue, a law clerk, was held yesterday by the blue sky division of the state's attorney's office on a charge of forgery in a tax case. He will be arraigned in the Felony court this morning.

According to Assistant State's Attorney Eugene J. O'Connor, who is in charge of the blue sky division, Kerman confessed forging the name of Assistant State's Attorney James O'Keefe in connection with a case in which the Sinai Kosher Sausage company, 3351 South Halsted street, and the Kosher Star Manufacturing company, 1008 Maxwell street, were sued for $1,500 in delinquent personal property taxes for 1931 and 1932.

When the case was called last week before Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten, Jack Levine, owner of both companies, produced receipts in full for taxes bearing the name of O'Keefe. Investigation disclosed a forgery and Kerman was arrested last Friday. Levine, according to O'Connor, said he paid Kerman $185 to "take care of his taxes."

Insanity Suicide Verdict in Woman's Leap to Death

A verdict of suicide while temporarily insane was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the fatal plunge of Mrs. Julia K. Spencer, 50 years old, 1327 North Dearborn street. She leaped to her death early yesterday from a room on the twelfth floor of the Morrison hotel. It was testified at the inquest that Mrs. Spencer formerly had been employed as a housekeeper at the Dearborn street address and recently lost her position. A note and a picture of herself standing beside the grave of her husband in Rosehill cemetery were left in the room. The note stated that her own grave, already paid for, was beside that of her husband.

Sweitzer Is Granted New Trial Delay Until Oct. 21

Robert M. Sweitzer, ousted county treasurer, won a continuance until Oct. 21 from Judge John C. Lewe in the Criminal court yesterday in his trial on a charge of withholding $414,129 from Michael J. Flynn, Sweitzer's successor as county clerk. Benedict Short, chief defense counsel, and his associate, T. Harvey Levinson, asked a longer delay on the ground that the criminal charge should not be pressed pending determination of Sweitzer's civil suit attacking the legality of his ouster. This civil action is scheduled for trial on Oct. 1 before Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher.

Funeral services for Mrs. Myrtle Stevens Bennett, 71 years old, 11228 Longwood drive, steel container manufacturer, who died at home Sunday after a five weeks' illness, were held at the Bennett home yesterday. Burial was in the Beverly cemetery. Through an error, an item yesterday announced that the funeral would be held today. Mrs. Bennett was the widow of John Chase Bennett, who died in 1899. In 1909 she took over the concern that is now the Wilson & Bennett Manufacturing company, 6532 South Menard avenue, and of which she was president until her death. Under her leadership an indebtedness of $50,000 was wiped out and the company grew into one of the largest of its kind in the world. Surviving are two sons, Steven A. and John C., and a daughter, Mrs. A. P. Heinze, all of Chicago.

ROSCOE C. POUND QUITS AS DEAN OF LAW AT HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Roscoe C. Pound, famous Harvard law school authority, announced tonight his resignation as dean of the faculty of law to take effect next September. His resignation, he said, was only from the deanship and not from the faculty.

He would continue, he said to hold the chair of Carter professorship of law.

When Dean Pound retires next September he will have finished 20 years as dean of the law faculty and will be 66.

Born in Lincoln, Neb., in 1870 he received his early education at the University of Nebraska, coming to Harvard in 1889.

STANDARD GAS SELLS BYLLESBY SERVICE FIRM

ActionResult of New Utility Law.

JOHN J. O'BRIEN.

In one of the first changes of corporate structure to result from the Wheeler-Rayburn bill's drastic regulations for public utility holding companies, Standard Gas and Electric company last night announced the sale to operating companies in its system of the stock of Byllesby Engineering and Management corporation. All of the stock in the management concern previously was owned by the parent concern. The latter realized no profit from the sale, said John J. O'Brien, president of Standard Gas, in making the announcement.

"Sale of this stock to the operating companies in the system," said the company's statement, "has been made to carry out the spirit of the recently enacted federal public utility act of 1935, various state legislation, and the decisions of certain state regulatory commissions."

Form Mutual Service Concern.

"Byllesby Engineering & Management corporation has for many years rendered management, engineering, and other services to these operating companies, which will now be enabled to establish a mutual service company."

The step is expected to mean reorganization of the management corporation, and it was regarded possible that it may lead to some change in the directorate of Standard Gas, although no information other than the brief statement was forthcoming from the company.

The 1935 federal legislation provides, in effect, that service to operating companies in a holding company system be furnished at cost and that the servicing organization be mutually owned. Thus, any profit, made by the service body would be reflected in the companies served and owning its stock.

Specific Restrictions Made.

The act provides that the securities and exchange commission, the regulatory body, cannot approve a service company until it is shown that the company is so organized as to ownership, costs, revenues, and the sharing thereof as to reasonably insure the efficient and economical performance of services, sales, or construction contracts for member operating concerns at a cost fairly and equitably allocated among them.

Further, the cost must represent a saving over the cost of comparable work performed by independent persons or organizations.

The SEC also may order reapportionment of charges where it finds existing allocations unfair, may raise charges in other cases, and may eliminate furnishing of services in certain instances. The SEC also may lay down terms under which service contracts may be entered into and the means by which costs may be determined.

Must Study Contracts.

The commission is further charged with the duty of investigating different types of contracts and recommend legislation in accordance with its findings.

In the past Byllesby Engineering has paid substantial dividends to Standard Gas as a result of profits from its service contracts with Standard subsidiaries. Typical contract fees have been 2½ per cent of annual gross revenue of the contracting company for management and 7½ per cent of construction costs for engineering service.

Some of the contracts had been attacked even before the federal legislation, and as a result of state laws and orders of state regulatory commissions some of the fees have been cut down. In several instances, contracts were ordered canceled, the scale of fees changed, or charges limited to certain fixed sums.

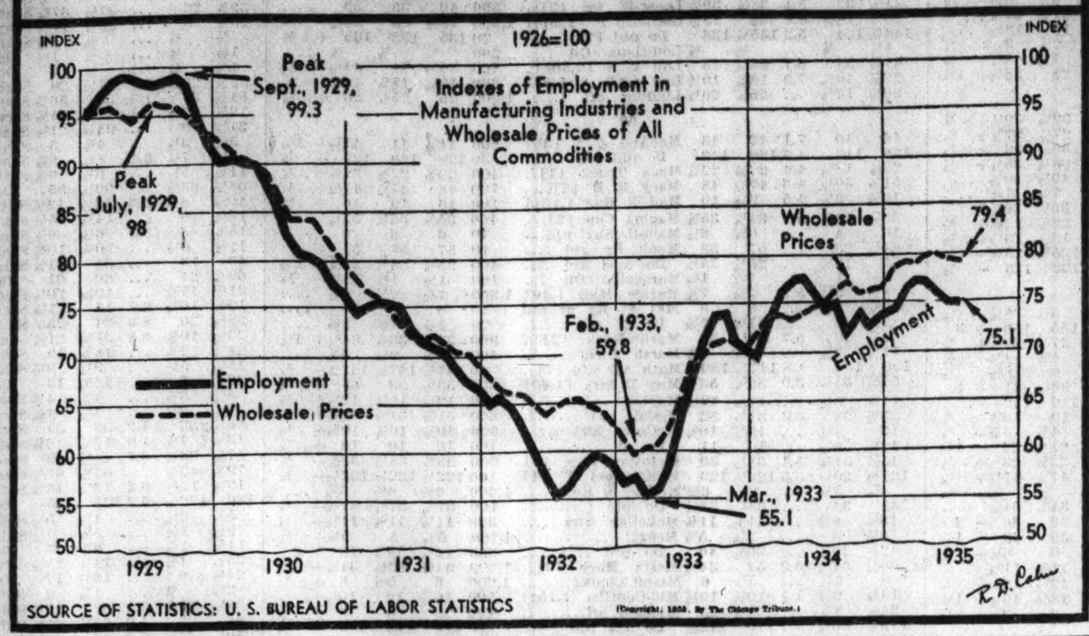
Fluctuations in Employment and Wholesale Prices During the Past Seven Years



SOURCE OF STATISTICS: U. S. BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS (Copyright: 1935. By The Chicago Tribune.)

Jobs and Pay Gain in Illinois During August

Industrial activity in Illinois during August, as measured by employment and pay roll reports from 4,339 manufacturing and nonmanufacturing companies, rose seasonably over July and improved over a year ago, according to a review issued yesterday by the Illinois department of labor.

These industries as a whole showed a gain of 0.7 per cent in employment over July, while pay rolls gained 1.3 per cent. During the years 1923 to 1934 the average rise during the July-August period was 1.3 per cent in employment and 2.6 per cent in total wage payments.

Compared with August, last year, the industries reported an increase of 0.7 per cent in employment, the index standing at 72.9—based upon the monthly average for 1925-'27 as 100—compared with 72.4 a year ago. The rise in pay rolls amounted to 6.9 per cent, with the index at 57.2 per cent, compared with 53.5 per cent of the 1925-'27 level in August of last year.

Reports National Gains.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Workers in manufacturing industries increased 180,000 in August over the previous month with a weekly wage increase of $8,900,000, Secretary Perkins announced today.

There was a decline in employment in nonmanufacturing industries in August of 25,000, so that the total increased employment was 155,000 in the industrial field surveyed by the bureau of labor statistics.

In the weekly pay roll among nonmanufacturing industries there was a decline of $900,000, leaving a net total weekly pay roll increase of the industries reporting to the bureau of $8,000,000.

Factory employment rose by 2.8 per cent and pay rolls by 6.7 per cent, the survey stated. Of 90 industries surveyed, 68 showed increases in the number of workers employed and 72 showed pay roll gains.

Gains Larger Than Usual.

Increases in factory employment and pay rolls are usual in August, gains having been shown for each year since 1919, with only one exception, in 1930. The gain of 2.8 per cent in factory employment is slightly more pronounced than previous August gains and has been exceeded during the last 16 years in only two instances, 1922 and 1933. The increase of 6.7 per cent in pay rolls has been exceeded in only one instance, 1933.

Gains in factory employment in August were shown in both the durable and nondurable goods groups. Employment in the nondurable goods group increased 3.9 per cent while the durable goods group showed a gain of 1.6 per cent.

"The increased employment in durable industries and the larger pay rolls," Secretary Perkins said, "is most significant at this time when there is usually a seasonal letup in productive activities."

THREE ROADS TO CUT TIME OF FIVE TRAINS ON TWIN CITIES RUN

Running time of five trains on the three principal roads between Chicago and the Minnesota Twin Cities will be cut from 35 minutes to more than an hour when Chicago reverts to central standard time next Sunday.

The Milwaukee road's Pioneer Limited will clip an hour and 14 minutes from its schedule to an elapsed time of 9 hours, 15 minutes. At the same time the road will speed up its Olympian 35 minutes to the same elapsed schedule.

The Burlington road announced it will meet the reductions by cutting the running time of its Empire Builder and North Coast Limited 35 minutes to 9 hours 15 minutes. The Chicago & North Western will make a similar cut on its Victory Limited.

In each case departure time has been shoved back, giving travelers a full evening in Chicago and enabling them to arrive at either St. Paul or Minneapolis on time for a full day there. The Pioneer Limited will leave here at 10:15 each evening, arriving in St. Paul at 7:30 the next morning. The North Coast Limited and Victory will leave at 11 p. m., arriving at 8:15 a. m. while the Empire Builder and Olympian will depart at 11:15 p. m., arriving at 8:30 a. m.

The North Western also announced a new train, the Fast Mail, to leave here at 10 in the evening and arrive in St. Paul at 7:55 a. m.

BRITISH REPORT UNPAID ITALIAN BILLS INCREASING

LONDON.—(AP)—British firms are having increasing difficulty in collecting for goods sold in Italy because of Italian exchange restrictions. Outstanding British claims under the Anglo-Italian clearing plan amounted to $9,577,027 for the week ended Aug. 28.

This steady expansion of uncleared balance is causing some concern in business circles, and is said to be due partly to excess of British exports to Italy over Italian exports to Great Britain.

The Financial Times says: "There has been persistent evasion all the time by Italian exporting firms, and protests by the British embassy in Rome have had little or no effect.

"These direct payments mean that insufficient sterling is transferred to the Bank of England to satisfy the claims of British firms which have exported goods to Italy. If British importers continue to meet Italian demands for payment outside the clearing agreement exporting trade to Italy will not only be brought to a standstill but British exporters will be left high and dry for their money.

"The only way to make the agreement work more satisfactorily is to make it compulsory for British importers of Italian goods to pay the purchase price into the clearing account with the Bank of England."

Banks Holding 207 Millions to Quit FDIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—Thirty-four state banks holding 207 million dollars in deposits and having 474,627 partially or wholly insured accounts, will withdraw from the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation because of the new permanent insurance law, it was announced today.

The deadline for withdrawal notifications for state banks not members of the federal reserve system, fell last night. The 34 banks will be dropped from the insurance fund Oct. 12 and their insurance assessments refunded. Banks which are members of the federal reserve system may retire from the FDIC at any time by resigning from the reserve system.

Two Illinois Banks Retire.

Two of the 34 withdrawing banks are in Illinois, the Illinois State bank, Alton, with deposits of $1,538,000, and the Kell State bank, Kell, with deposits of $68,000.

Depositors in the withdrawing banks will be notified that after Oct. 12 that their accounts will no longer be covered by insurance. Of the 474,627 accounts in the 34 banks, 465,596 were fully insured.

Although state banks not members of the federal reserve system had to notify the FDIC by last night if they wished to leave the insurance fund and receive back their assessments, there was no such deadline for banks which are members of the federal reserve system. Such banks can withdraw from the FDIC only by resigning from the reserve system first.

New York Banks May Quit.

Rumors that some large New York banks may leave both the reserve system and FDIC continue to circulate. Officials of the reserve system took notice of these reports today, but added that no formal withdrawal notifications had been received.

Large banks, for which the new insurance is both costly and of little protection, may not take action until the first of next year. Although they are to be assessed under the new plan in November, they will be allowed to credit against the new assessment money already paid into the FDIC. These credits will obtain them insurance until Jan. 1. They may withdraw after that date, rather than pay additional assessments.

Crowley Glad So Many Stay.

Chairman Leo T. Crowley of the FDIC today expressed gratification at the small number of state nonmember banks which are leaving the insurance system. He pointed out that 7,750 nonmember state banks had voluntarily joined the FDIC.

"Deposit insurance is now permanent," he remarked. "Over 14,160 banks, holding more than 98 per cent of the deposits in the nation's licensed commercial banks, are insured. Another year should see a large number of the 1,000 banks not now insured apply for admission to the insurance fund."

ECONOMIST SEES FRESH CRISIS IN NEW DEAL PLAN

Predicts Huge Rise in Living Costs.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's program for remodeling American social life is creating a bubble that will eventually lead to another price collapse and economic crisis, Melvin T. Copeland, professor of marketing in the Harvard business school, predicted here today. Speaking before the Boston conference on distribution, he said.

"The stage is set for a rise in the cost of living and in commodity prices generally that will surpass that of the war years. The Roosevelt program is unleashing forces which will bring about a repetition of the very disaster that he is now trying to cure. An overexpansion of credit and currency will lead, some years hence, to another price collapse and economic crisis.

Debts Intensify Depression.

"One of the chief reasons for the severity of the current depression has been the existence of large debts, owed by farmers, home owners, industrial corporations, railroads, municipalities, states, and foreign governments. These debts were the chief influence leading to devaluation of the dollar and demands for cheap money. Yet here we are piling up another huge debt, which may be a millstone on our necks when the next crisis occurs."

He said devalution of the dollar has provided a nominally larger gold base on which credit can be greatly expanded through bank loans.

"The government is buying large amounts of silver," he continued. "Since most people dislike to carry 'cartwheels' in their pockets, paper money is being put out against this silver. Potentially, however, the most serious threat to our cost of living comes from the government debt.

Credit Used to Boost Debt.

"This debt is increased by bonds and these bonds have been taken largely by the banks. Presently many of these bonds probably will serve as the 'security' for the issuance of federal reserve bank notes. Many persons have viewed with complacency the tinkering with our currency so long as a new issue of 'greenbacks' was not started.

"With an unbalanced budget there is little essential difference between the government's printing 'greenbacks' and its issuing bonds against which paper bank notes can be put into circulation.

"So long as the government is spending more than its income it must continue to borrow and to cover its borrowings by bonds that in effect can be converted into bank credit or paper money. Hence no end to the rise in the cost of living is in sight while government expenditures exceed revenues."

Not Too Late to Check Inflation.

"It is not too late," he said, "to check the powerful inflationary forces that have been unleashed. Since the country cannot stand a heavy increase in revenue producing taxes the first essential step would be an immediate tapering of government expenditures so that those expenditures could be brought into line with government revenues in the future.

"The responsibility for this price situation rests squarely upon the shoulders of one man, President Roosevelt," Copeland declared. "He has no desire to be the cause for all the human misery that will result from the threatened rise in the cost of living, but he seems willing to gamble in order to carry out his schemes for remolding American social life."

Copeland Inflation Warning New Jolt to Dozing Fears

BY HOWARD WOOD.

[Acme Photo.]

The warning yesterday by Prof. Melvin T. Copeland of the Harvard business school that "the stage is set for a rise in the cost of living and in commodity prices generally that will surpass that of the war years" was an eye opener for those whose consciousness of the steady progress of inflation has been dulled by time and by repeated warnings not yet come true.

Prof. Copeland isn't the only Harvard expert who has his eyes on the far horizon and who foresees the ultimate effects of inflation down the road. Last year Dr. O. M. W. Sprague of Harvard, former special adviser to the secretary of the treasury and former consultant to the Bank of England, at a luncheon of the Bond Men's club of Chicago made a similar prediction. Inflation, he said, was laying the foundation for a price upsurge that would make the 150 per cent increase in wholesale commodity prices during the world war look pale by comparison.

* *

Dr. Sprague's forecast was listened to with keen interest. Prof. Copeland's will probably be given less credence. Even financial men are beginning to figure that because they have heard the cry of "wolf" so often without seeing the wolf it must be a false alarm.

History shows that whenever a nation has entered upon a program of inflation the first step in the long process of inflation arouses many fears. Then there is a period of months or years during which little happens and people begin to believe that their original fears were groundless. Then, unless the inflationary program is halted, there comes a time when the consequences of the inflation are so apparent that everybody begins to recognize them and the rush is on.

* *

With the government continuing to spend billions in excess of its revenues, sooner or later—probably not before the 1936 election—one of two things must happen. Either reviving confidence will generate enough business activity to take up the slack in employment and permit the government to taper off its deficits, in which case there will be a "prosperity inflation" similar to that experienced during the last decade following the wartime inflation, or there will be "fear" inflation, further debasement of the currency and panic.

Either of these developments would inevitably bring in its wake an upsurge of prices.

Inflation is like baldness. The first discovery of thinness on the scalp sends the frightened victim into the drug store for an armful of tonics. Then as each day's inspection fails to disclose any great loss from the previous day he lulls himself into the comforting belief that maybe he's not losing any more until one day he hears himself referred to as a "bald headed man," and it's all over.

* *

The fundamentals have not changed. Inflation invariably begins with a government's spending more than its revenues and it doesn't end until the budget is put back in balance. The United States government last year spent 3,500 million dollars in excess of its income and this year the budget deficit is estimated to be 4,500 millions.

The government is still spending, the banks are still buying government bonds, and bank deposits subject to check are still mounting. The inflation program is progressing more rapidly than ever. It is the lag between cause and effect that is deceiving. Bank deposits are already inflated and are becoming more inflated. The effect of this expansion, however, will become apparent only when people begin to employ this vast and growing reservoir of funds.

ABBOTT COMMITTEE COMPLETES REPORT ON TRACTION MERGER

After several months of study the committee headed by W. R. Abbott has completed its report on plans for consolidation of the Chicago street car companies, it was reported yesterday. The committee is expected to make a report to the federal court in the near future.

The group, named by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, is made up of representatives of the various security holders. W. R. Abbott, chairman, was appointed by the court as an impartial member to head the committee.

Members of the committee declined yesterday to discuss the nature of the report. According to gossip in La Salle street, however, the plan proposes an extremely simple capital structure for the projected new consolidated street car company. First mortgage bond holders of the Chicago City railway, Calumet and South Chicago Railway company, and the Chicago Railways company are expected to get first mortgage bonds, dollar for dollar, under the plan.

700 to Hear Dawes Tell of Future Trade Trends

Nearly 700 reservations have been made for the joint meeting tomorrow night in the Stevens hotel of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Illinois Manufacturers association which will be addressed by Gen. Charles G. Dawes. Gen. Dawes, who is credited with forecasting the upturn in business which took place last summer, will explain the basis on which he made his forecast and give his opinion on future trends.

RE-ELECT DRAKE AND TWO OTHERS TO HUPP BOARD

Richmond, Va., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Stockholders of the Hupp Motor Car corporation in annual meeting today reëlected J. Walter Drake, William B. Mayo, and Seward L. Merriam, all of Detroit, as directors to serve three years. Vernon R. Drum and Hal H. Smith, also of Detroit, were confirmed in their present offices as directors until the stockholders' meeting in 1936. Harvey Campbell Jr. of Detroit, was confirmed in office as a director until 1937.

The meeting was to have been held Sept. 11, but A. M. Andrews and Frederick Dodge obtained an injunction to prevent its being held. The injunction, however, was dissolved yesterday.

DOUBT NEW LAW TO REORGANIZE ROADS IS LEGAL

Court Questions Act in Milwaukee Case.

H. A. SCANDRETT.
[Moffett Photo.]

Three verbal bombshells were exploded in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's courtroom yesterday, thereby unsetting the reorganization proceedings of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railway company.

Both the court and counsel for the road raised doubts as to the constitutionality of recent amendments to section 77 of the amended bankruptcy law which affects railroads. At the same time the management of the road was attacked as banker dominated and "unique in its mismanagement."

Further spice was added to the hearing when attorneys for the Milwaukee characterized attacks on the management as "somewhat scurrilous."

Judge's Comment Surprises Lawyers.

Judge Wilkerson's comments, which came as a surprise to the group of widely known Chicago and New York lawyers, were leveled at the amendment passed by the recent congress which required the court to appoint trustees for all railroads seeking reorganization but making the court's action subject to ratification by the interstate commerce commission.

"The court here is asked to perform a judicial act which may be appealed to the United States Circuit of Appeals and to the Supreme court," said Judge Wilkerson. "And yet the act provides that an administrative office may overrule the court's action. The statute seems to be unique, to say the least."

Urges Scandrett as Trustee.

Previously, Henry A. Scandrett, president of the Milwaukee, had been recommended as a trustee by Robert T. Swaine of New York City, chief counsel for the road. Kenneth F. Burgess, attorney for 16 insurance companies owning $70,000,000 of the carrier's securities, joined in urging the appointment.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, was suggested as co-trustee by James B. Alley, attorney for the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which has loaned $11,500,000 to the Milwaukee and would provide an additional $24,-

STOCKS EXTEND RECENT RALLY; TRADE IS QUIET

Fears Over European War Situation Subside.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 24.—The stock market failed to find anything to get excited about today and as a result the session came fairly close to duplicating yesterday's performance. Sentiment underlying the market continued to be bullish and leading issues were able to extend the rallying movement. Gains for the most part amounted to a point or less, with only the rails being unable to show an advance in the averages.

Although brokers expressed the opinion that the recent shakeup was beneficial so far as the technical position of stock was concerned, the waiting attitude of the professionals and board room traders was accentuated again by the ebb in trading volume. Total transactions just managed to pass the 1,000,000 share mark.

Fears Over Europe Subside.

Less apprehension continued to be displayed in the street over the European situation and more attention was directed at the reports of business and trade. No group was conspicuous in the quiet trading, although a few specialties attracted attention with substantial gains.

Metal shares were aided by the optimistic remarks of American Smelting and Refining company officials and for a time these issues were prominent on the upside.

An unusual feature was a revival of interest in the food shares, which enjoyed their best day in weeks. National Biscuit, General Foods—which declared the regular dividend—Corn Products and Standard Brands caught the eye of ticker-tape watchers. National Biscuit was especially active and closed with a gain of 1⅝ points.

Rail Reports Encouraging.

While the reports of the first dozen railroads for August showed an increase in operating rate, the list moved in a narrow range.

Allied Chemical, with another regular dividend, led the chemical group with an advance of 4½ points.

Some of the miscellaneous issues to catch the eye were American Woolen preferred, which climbed 2¼ points, and Coca Cola, up 2½ points. International Printing Ink picked up over a point on the increase in its dividend.

Mail order shares continued strong, Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward both adding major fractions to their value. Motor accessory shares approached their best prices of the year. Wright Aero stood out in the aviation group with a gain of 3⅞ points.

Chrysler, General Motors, Mack and Auburn were all higher in the automotive section. United States and Bethlehem Steel gained fractions.

Large fractional gains were the rule in the tobaccos, coppers, amusements, oils, and stores.

Hudson to Start Making 1936 Models Next Week

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Roy D. Chapin, president of the Hudson Motor Car company, today announced the company will go into production of its 1936 line the first week in October, the earliest date in recent years. Moving ahead of the production schedule is in line with the policy adopted by the automobile industry to endeavor to level out production and employment.

SQUEEZE FEARED IN SEPTEMBER CORN; PRICE UP

Other Futures Are Easier; Wheat About Steady.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The possibility of a market squeeze in the September corn delivery on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday caused a heavy covering movement in that future which lifted the price nearly two cents a bushel. Other corn contracts, based on the new crop, declined moderately, and the wheat market closed the day with virtually no change in prices.

So seriously is the market position in the September corn future regarded that the business conduct committee of the exchange yesterday called the matter to the attention of clearing house members. The open interest in the contract at the close of trading Monday was 4,029,000 bushels, while total visible supplies in all principal markets amount to only 3,916,000 bushels.

Only Five Days for Delivery.

The September contract has only five days to run and no deliveries have been made against it so far this month. Contract stocks in Chicago public elevators, available for delivery, amount to only 50,000 bushels.

Buying yesterday, credited to short interests, lifted September corn 1⅞ cents a bushel to 83⅛ cents—a premium of 25 cents a bushel over the December corn future.

The threatened squeeze in the corn market comes on the eve of the harvesting of a big crop. Supplies of corn on hand at present, however, are extremely low because of the meager harvest in 1934. Commercial users are scraping the bottom of the bins to tide them over until the new crop is available.

Wheat Loses Early Gain.

Interest in the corn market overshadowed other developments in the grain market yesterday. The wheat market had an abortive rally early in the day and prices rose about a cent a bushel. Gains were wiped out, however, before the market closed and May wheat future closed ¼ cent lower. September and December wheat closed unchanged.

Closing prices on December futures with comparative quotations were:

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$0.98¼	$0.98¼	$0.99⅝
Corn	.58½	.58½	.59⅝
Oats	.29½	.28⅝	.28¾
Rye	.50⅝	.49⅝	.49½

There was little change in wheat prices in foreign markets yesterday.

REGISTRATION TO HAVE SLIGHT EFFECT ON CURB

The Chicago Curb Exchange will lose less than 2¼ per cent of its trading volume through failure of companies with securities listed to file applications for registration with the Securities and Exchange commission, officials of the curb said yesterday. Unregistered securities are to be dropped from listing Nov. 1, when the curb becomes a national exchange. The deadline for filing is Oct. 1, unless extensions are granted.

Of the present group of 89 stocks and 23 bonds, registration applications have been filed for 57 stocks and 20 bonds. Of the present listings 65 are through the 59 companies issuing them, while 47 issues are registered by curb members, and are known as members listings.

Thirty of the fully listed securities of 26 companies are being registered. The others have said they will not file because of the low volume of trading. This is borne out in curb records which show that 26 of those being dropped have not been traded this year.

Map Year's Program Today for Transportation Assn.

The thirty-six members of the board of directors of the Transportation Association of America will meet at 10 a. m. today at the Union League club to map out a program for the year. SUIT TO DISSOLVE TAX INJUNCTIONS STARTED BY U. S.

Contend Processors' Action Threat to Government

Michael L. Igoe, U. S. district attorney, yesterday started arguments before Federal Judges James H. Wilkerson and Charles E. Woodward to dissolve six of the 24 injunctions issued here restraining the federal government from collecting millions of dollars of processing taxes.

Chicago packers and flour processing concerns are the principal corporations that obtained the injunctions, most of which were issued by Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Igoe contended that if the agricultural adjustment act should be declared unconstitutional, the plaintifs would have ample means of obtaining refunds of taxes paid under it.

Igoe Explains Law.

"Under the law," Igoe said, "these processors can pay the tax and then sue for the return if the act is later declared void.

"The litigation has come upon us like an avalanche. We believe the reason for it is that a new amendment has been passed subjecting these processors to proof that they themselves pay the tax and did not pass it on to the ultimate consumer before they are entitled to a refund."

Igoe declared the injunctions have been tying up tax collections and if continued this would destroy the greatest power of the government, that of taxation and collection of revenues.

Under the injunctions the plaintifs were required either to deposit the taxes with the court clerk or give sufficient bond so that if the law should be allowed to stand the money would be turned over to the government.

Questions Legality of Refund.

Igoe's principal contention is that even if the law should be declared unconstitutional the processors would not be entitled to a refund of the taxes paid unless they could prove that they had themselves absorbed the taxes.

Willard King, one of a score of lawyers representing the packers, said that no remedy but injunction is open to the packers. King will resume his arguments today. He will be followed by M. H. Eustace, special assistant to the United States attorney general, sent here from Washington especially for this case.

AID TESTIFIES OF BOND DEALS FOR H. O. STONE

James G. Alexander, who was appointed financial adviser of the now defunct H. O. Stone & Co. brokerage house before it went into receivership in 1931, was the principal witness yesterday at the hearings being conducted in the United States court house by the congressional committee investigating bondholders protective committees.

Alexander was placed with the real estate brokerage firm at the insistence of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company [then the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company]. His annual salary was $25,000 which Alexander said he received, though he was employed there only half a year.

During that time, Alexander told Attorney A. G. Hubbard, counsel for the committee, he and the bank obtained loans of more than $900,000 for the company, most of which was used to cover misappropriations of its officials. Alexander also testified that he and the bank purchased $680,000 in securities and notes of the Stone company for $500,000, each putting up $250,000, and that immediately after the deal was closed the bank paid Alexander $340,000 for his half of the securities.

U. S. Steel Official Defends Plan of Company Unions

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Arthur H. Young, vice president of the United States Steel corporation, made a defense of the so-called "company union" plan of labor relations today by urging "kibitzers" to remember that the human element in industry "is the factor of greatest importance." Young, known as a labor relations expert in the steel business, spoke before the Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers.

"We are told that the day of rugged individualism has passed," he said, "and in its place has come some sort of collectivism which usually, in its description, approaches a form of state socialism. We are told that the workers' principal concern today is security. We are told that it is something new. You men know the fallacy that security of life is a newly discovered wish on the part of the man on the job or his employer."

Declare Human Element Paramount.

Young said the human element in business is the factor of greatest importance, and added he wished to drive it "deep into the consciousness of every kibitzer who, behind the mask of assumedly necessary social reconstruction of our national life, would, without invitation from the players, change the rules of an ancient and honorable game, even though themselves be not the players of the hand."

The steel and electricity reports took a peep into the future today and one of them found two things that augur well—the need for more modernization of steel plants and the probability that homes soon will be built of metal. The seer was W. H. Burr of Coatesville, Pa., the first speaker at the convention. He supplemented his address with the remark that steel makers have completed only half the modernization work necessary to bring the industry in line with the present state of technical development.

50% of Work Yet to Be Done.

In the last 30 years the industry has been replacing steam drives for electric drives in the mills, but fully 50 per cent of that work is yet to be done, he said.

Burr, electrical and mechanical superintendent of the Lukens Steel company at Coatesville, added that the giant new mills built in the last two years will find markets for their output in "housing and air conditioning."

He described the house of the future as a structure constructed almost entirely of steel—walls of two sheets of steel with light structural members and insulating materials between.

More than 100 exhibits were on hand, outstanding among them a miniature reproduction of the hot strip mill recently instaled by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company. The tiny mill turns out toy sheets of steel ready for working.

AMERICAN SMELTING PRESIDENT FORECASTS DIVIDEND RESUMPTION

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Simon Guggenheim, president of American Smelting and Refining company, said today that dividends might be resumed on the company's common stock during the next year. He also indicated that cleaning up of accumulations on the second preferred in the near future was a probability. He returned from a business trip abroad.

"If conditions remain as they are," Guggenheim said, "there is no reason why directors, when they meet early next year, should not consider payment of a dividend on the common stock." The last payment was 12½ cents a share on Feb. 1, 1932.

The next directors meeting of the company is scheduled for Oct. 2, Guggenheim said, adding that clearing up of the arrears on the second preferred stock "is waranted by conditions." Accumulations on this issue amount to $6 a share.

Concerning business abroad, Guggenheim said the copper now being bought by Europe was for preparedness in event of war. He expressed the opinion that American copper would hardly be barred under neutrality legislation because a neutral country can buy it and resell it.

United States Smelting Refining and Mining company declared a dividend of $2 on the common stock, payable Oct. 15. Three months ago a similar payment was made. The company also estimated net profit for the eight months ended Aug. 31 was equivalent to $5.82 a share on the common stock compared with $5.78 a share in the like period of last year.

The United Verde Extension company declared a dividend of $1, payable Nov. 1. On Aug. 1 the company declared a dividend of $1 as a partial distribution of assets.

RESERVE BOARD BANK ADVISORS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—One of the most optimistic reports on business since the beginning of the depression was made to the board of governors of the federal reserve system today by the system's advisory council.

In a meeting marked by its brevity the advisory council of private bankers, which frequently has taken violent issue with the reserve board, confined itself to a discussion of the industrial and commercial situation. Its meeting with the board of governors lasted only an hour and a half.

Attachés of the board said that the bankers, representing all sections of the country, painted an unusually hopeful picture. They told of an increasing demand for credit, reflecting a quickening of industry and trade. The joint meeting with the board of governors followed a short meeting yesterday of the council by itself. The new banking act and proposed regulations under it were not discussed.

LIGHT HOGS DROP SHARPLY AS NEW CROP SALES RISE

Indications that farmers are beginning to sell more new crop hogs, a seasonal development at this time of year, toppled the prices for light stock 15 to 40 cents here yesterday. The decline erased advances of Monday. Receipts still are establishing new all-time lows.

Selected grades of light butchers established the day's top of $14.35 at the opening, while most of better grades of 200 to 250 pound new crop stock sold from $14 to $14.15. The average at $13.20, processing tax included, indicated a decline of 20 cents.

The good selection of replacement cattle made available to farmers in yesterday's receipts featured the cattle trade. The undertone for fat steers was weak. No top grades of steers were offered, the best available selling at $12.25, averaging 1,411 pounds, with the bulk of the crop going at $9.50 to $11.50.

Lambs were steady to 25 cents lower, although spots in the early part of the session were slightly higher. Top western range lambs to shippers reached $9.85, indicating 10 cents advance, while best natives to city butchers at $9.75 were down 10 cents, and the packer top for natives at $9.50 showed a 25 cent loss.

Calls New York Municipal Gas Plant Plan Fantastic

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—In the course of argument today before Supreme Court Justice Dore in the suits in behalf of the Consolidated Gas system to prevent a referendum in the November election on the erection of a municipal power plant, former Supreme Court Justice Proskauer, on behalf of the Consolidated, declared the city's plan for underwriting the project is a "fantastic scheme" for a project which may or may not be successful.

FARMS' EXPORTS STILL RECEDING, IMPORTS RISING

August and Eight Months Show Wider Spread.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—(AP)—United States imports of agricultural products in August were shown by commerce department figures today to have continued to increase over the previous month and the same month last year, while exports continued to decline.

Both wheat and corn imports gained over July and August, 1934, but there was an increase of corn exports in August over July, although the increase was still far from the August, 1934, total.

Imports of meat products were only slightly over July, but were much greater than in August, 1934, while these imports in the first eight months of 1935 were nearly double the same 1935 period. Beef and veal declined from July.

Fewer Farm Products Exported.

Virtually without exception, exports of farm products were under August, last year, and with only minor exceptions were under July this year. Exports of beef and veal increased, but those of hams and bacons dropped.

Experts had no new explanations for the trend. The drouth, plus reductions of domestic production, in combination with foreign quotas and a tangled international exchange situation, accounted generally for the situation, they said.

SEC AND UTILITY SHOWDOWN OVER NEW BILL TODAY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—A showdown between the securities and exchange commission and the public utilities industry on the latter's intention either to cooperate in the working out of the holding company control law or to hold back pending final adjudication of its basic validity is expected at tomorrow's conference of SEC members with representatives of the industry.

Although the meeting was arranged in order to consider the question of preliminary holding company registration by Dec. 1 and the extent of information to be required as a basis for exemption petitions, commission officials today made no secret of the importance they attached to the first official meeting they will have with spokesmen for the industry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 24.—Bonds continued to improve today in moderate trading with activity showing some pickup over the previous session. A strong tone dominated all sections of the list.

Transfers of $8,880,000, par value, compared with $7,385,000 Monday. The government turnover amounted to $2,250,000 against $1,440,000 the day before.

Small Gains Numerous.

Second grade rails advanced fractions and utilities were supported for small gains. Holding company bonds, recently backward, gained as much as a point. Standard Gas issues continued their uptrend of the last few sessions, after dipping to extremely low levels about a week ago.

Governments followed a gradual firming process with gains of 1-16 to ⅛ point for active issues.

The foreign section also showed strength in most issues, Italian bonds leading the way, with improvement of more than a point. Bond traders continued to direct their attention to the European horizon, but were generally prepared to encounter a long period of indecision from that quarter.

Quick Sale Excites Interest.

Attention of investment circles was inflamed by the quick disposal of a $30,000,000 issue of New York state unemployment relief bonds which were sold by the winning syndicate within an hour after the award was made by the state controler.

Another item of unusual interest was the offering tomorrow by the Pacific Gas and Electric company of an issue of $20,000,000 first and refunding 5 per cent bonds, which are to be priced by the selling agents at 102 and interest.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Cotton goods continued to sell in moderate volume today at strong prices. Raw silk prices were unchanged and buying improved. Rayon yarns were in active demand at firm to higher prices. Burlap prices were steady. Wool coatings for women were bought in large volume.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable was steady, closed 2 to 5 points net higher with sales of 41 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; Sept. closed 10.55c per lb.; Oct., 10.15c; Dec., 10.18; Jan. 10.19c; March, 10.21c.

Chicago National Life.

Investors' Guide: Has Life Insurance Company of America taken over the old Chicago National Life Insurance company policies?—S. L. R.

Answer: The business of Pacific States Life Insurance company pertaining to Chicago National Life Insurance company was reinsured by Life Insurance Company of America, Columbus, O., on Aug. 20, 1935.

The Illinois department of insurance informed us as follows:

"This reinsurance contract provides for a 100 per cent reserve lien to be placed against the reinsured policies, the assets of the company being left with the receivers for liquidation. The claimants will receive their pro rata share of liquidated assets.

"Life Insurance Company of America is not authorized to transact business in Illinois, but from information which the department had the company could qualify in this state. It is our opinion that it is financially capable of meeting the terms of the reinsurance contract. Although the reinsuring company is not licensed in Illinois, the director of insurance has been appointed by that company to accept service of process against it in this state.

"In general, Chicago National Life policyholders will receive approximately the same service as if the company operated in Illinois, although, of course, it is not subject to the direct supervision of this department and the laws of this state."

According to the reinsurance contract, only those policies issued through the Chicago office of Pacific States and the Chicago National Life policies specifically reinsured by Pacific States are covered. All other policies assumed by Pacific States are excluded.

J. L. Marks & Co.

Investors' Guide: Please give me any information as to what creditors of J. L. Marks & Co. will get.—P. H. O.

Answer: It is expected that J. L. Marks & Co., bankrupt dealer of "package securities" on the partial payment plan, will make a final liquidating distribution to creditors in the near future. According to the trustee, creditors will receive something less than five cents on the dollar. The distribution is being held up until settlement of a pending tax matter.

DOUBT NEW LAW TO REORGANIZE ROADS IS LEGAL

Court Questions Act in Milwaukee Case.

000,000 under the proposed reorganization plan.

The attorneys asked time to consider the constitutional question raised by the court, and Swaine then put forth another doubt.

"We had hoped this question would not be raised in this reorganization," he said. "But now that the court has raised it, there is also a question in my mind as to the constitutionality of another provision of the amendment giving the court power to approve a plan of reorganization even though it is opposed by a majority of the security holders."

The attack on the management, permitted to continue in control since the filing of the reorganization petition three months ago, was made by Julius Weiss, New York attorney, representing an independent protective committee. He was permitted to file a petition in the form of an affidavit. He undertook an indirect attack on the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., a principal in a previous reorganization of the Milwaukee before Judge Wilkerson in 1928.

Charges Banker Domination.

Five of the seven members of the road's present executive committee and seven of the ten directors are dominated by the bankers, Weiss charged. He offered to substantiate at a later hearing his various assertions, including one that an unnamed Chicago bank received favors from the New York house in connection with the previous reorganization. Weiss added that one of the previous receivers "had a secret code with the New York banker" whereby the latter was kept informed of progress of the receivership in so far as it affected his interests.

Under questioning by Judge Wilkerson in regard to his clients, Weiss said his committee consists of James D. Colyer, Louis I. Kane, and Henry Schenk. Asked by the court to submit a list of those depositing bonds with the committee and in what amounts, Weiss was unable to comply. He said the committee has "substantial" deposits and promised to furnish additional details later.

Weiss' Statements Challenged.

Many of Weiss' statements were challenged by Swaine, who offered to place Scandrett on the witness stand for cross-examination by Weiss. The latter said he would do so, probably when the hearing is resumed on Oct. 8.

Weiss did not question the personal integrity of Scandrett, but contended he is not qualified to act as a trustee though he might be retained by the trustees to operate the road for them. He asked appointment of "men above reproach" and in no way connected with the "present influences that have brooded over the road."

Weiss called attention to a new amendment to the bankruptcy law which gives trustees power to investigate management history and recommend any action they may wish. Such an investigation, he asserted, would be impeded greatly if one or more of the trustees owed their appointment to or were dominated by the present management.

Raps Insurance Head.

The propriety of Frederick H. Ecker, president of Metropolitan Life Insurance, being permitted to have a voice in reorganization matters also was challenged. Weiss charged him with receiving favors from Kuhn, Loeb & Co., according to disclosures of a congressional committee, and with being on a preferred list whereby he bought securities from the house at a lower price than that paid by his own company.

Again recalling the reorganization of the Milwaukee in 1925-'28, Weiss charged that Percy Rockefeller made a secret commission during the road's purchase of the Terre Haute [Indiana] branch.

Friend of the Coal User

The Friend of the Coal User will supply information on economical use of coal in an attempt to enable users to meet with less loss the added expense which the Guffey coal law is to load on the Chicagoland public. Inquiries should be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed enevelope. Items of general interest will be published.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—I have a rooming house of forty rooms. The steam pipes in the basement are not covered. Would I save on my fuel bill by having them covered?

Answer—By all means, have them insulated with some reliable material. It will save you considerable on the amount of coal used.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Kindly inform me whether or not a coil installed in a warm air furnace to heat water uses or absorbs much of the heat and thus indirectly boosts my fuel bill. I've been told it takes about 18 per cent of the fuel to supply hot water this way; others say it takes none. A. J. A.

Answer—That is an old question and is answered in various ways. It is certain, however, that some heat must go into the coil in order to raise the temperature of the water, and that heat, of course, does not go into the house. Heating water that way, however, is the practical thing to do. We suggest you install a cast iron direct heating coil. This is cheaper than pipe coil, costing only a little over $1 at retail, and is easier and quicker to install.

BUTTER FUTURES HIGHER, EGGS FIRM IN LIGHT TRADE

Trade in butter and egg futures yesterday was light on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, with eggs closing unchanged and butter ⅛ to ¼ cent higher. October eggs were 25¼ cents per dozen and November butter 25⅞ cents per pound.

Steadiness in eggs was somewhat of a surprise to the trade in view of bearish statistics, the out of storage movement last week at the 35 cities being 80,000 cases less than the previous week and 63,000 cases under the corresponding period last year. Next Tuesday will be the first delivery day on October contracts.

The out of storage movement of butter was somewhat disappointing and receipts were fairly heavy. Short covering was regarded as largely responsible for the upturn in futures. Sales of butter were 27 cars and eggs 59 cars. Prices follow:

30 MILLION ISSUE OF N. Y. BONDS SOLD IN HOUR

National City Syndicate Is Successful Bidder.

An issue of $30,000,000 of 2¼ per cent unemployment relief bonds of New York state was sold yesterday to a syndicate headed by the National City bank on a bid of 100.5699, making the net interest cost 2.146 per cent. The syndicate immediately reoffered the bonds on the New York market on a yield basis ranging from 0.35 per cent for one year to 2.25 per cent for 10 years. They were sold within an hour.

The bonds are the last of $130,000,000 authorized in 1930, and mature serially in the amount of $3,000,000 annually from Sept. 25, 1936 through 1945.

A similar issue sold in June, 1934, on a basis of 1.83 per cent.

The only other bidder yesterday was a syndicate headed by the Chase National bank.

Public offering is being made today by a banking group headed by Lazard Freres & Co., Inc., of an additional issue of $20,000,000 first and refunding mortgage 4 per cent bonds, due Dec. 1, 1964, of the Pacific Gas and Electric company. The bonds are offered at 102, which will enable the issuing company to derive 100 per cent of the principal amount of the bonds, less accrued interest and certain expenses to be paid the underwriters. This financing brings to $95,000,000 the total first and refunding mortgage 4 per cent bonds of the company placed on the market since last spring. The bonds retire other issues bearing higher coupon rates.

Application for registration of an issue of $20,000,000 first and refunding mortgage bonds due Oct. 1, 1960, has been filed with the Securities and Exchange commission by the Dayton Power and Light company.

Bankers have been invited to submit bids Oct. 4 for a new issue of $6,000,000 Commonwealth of Massachusetts public works bonds, maturing serially from Sept. 15, 1936, to 1940, inclusive. Bidders are requested to name the rate of interest.

The city of Akron, O., will sell, Oct. 14, an issue of $2,169,000 4½ per cent refunding bonds, dated July 1, 1935, and due serially Oct. 1, 1940, to 1949.

Directors of the Fletcher Joint Stock Land bank have authorized the retirement of another block of $200,000 of the bank's 5 per cent bonds, due May 1, 1952, optional May 1, 1932, making a total of $2,000,000, which have been called for payment on Nov. 1, 1935. Combined with the call is an offer for a limited time to holders to exchange their bonds at par for a 3 per cent issue dated May 1, 1935, and maturing May 1, 1940, optional on May 1, 1939, and ¾ per cent issues, dated May 1, 1935, due May 1, 1942, optional May 1, 1940, and due May 1, 1943, optional May 1, 1940.

SILVER FUTURE HINGES ON USE AS MONEY BASE

Brownell Says Outlook Is Best in 15 Years.

The future status of silver in world economics hinges on the extent to which it will be used as a monetary base when the principal countries restabilize their money systems, Francis H. Brownell, chairman of the American Smelting and Refining company, told the American Mining congress yesterday at the Palmer house. At the same time Brownell said he believes the outlook for silver "is brighter and more promising today than at any time in the last 15 years."

Long an advocate of government aid for silver producers, he defended the silver purchase policy of the administration and the manner in which the buying has been carried on by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Favors Price of 60 to 65 Cents.

Until the present world monetary chaos is clarified, he said, it is desirable that the United States devote its buying power to maintaining the price of foreign silver between 60 and 65 cents an ounce.

"For the United States to push up the price more rapidly," he said, "would create confusion in other countries and other monetary systems, causing melting of coin and fabricated silver, and thus exhaust its buying capacity before stabilization occurs.

"Under the present purchase policy it is probable that stabilization of world currencies would occur before the United States exhausts its silver buying power."

The deflationary influence of the American silver policy in China and its disturbing effect on the Mexican monetary system were cited by the speaker as justifying the cautious buying program which the treasury has followed in recent months.

Billion Ounces Available.

Excluding coin and fabricated silver, Brownell estimated, "there is about 1,100,000,000 ounces of silver available for purchase in the next five years.

"While no accurate information is available, it seems probable that the remaining buying capacity under the silver purchase act is not much above that figure."

The ultimate purpose of the silver purchase act to build up stocks to the equivalent of one-fourth of the total monetary base would not be served by discouraging the use of monetary silver by other countries by pushing up the price too rapidly, the speaker continued. There is reasonable basis for believing, he added, that the United States can purchase the necessary silver at approximately 60 cents an ounce instead of the statutory price of $1.29.

The subsidy now being paid domestic silver producers by the government purchase of all output at 77 cents an ounce is helping to maintain employment among miners and is helping to keep down relief costs, Brownell claimed.

NATL. GYPSUM FEATURES TRADE ON BOARD HERE

Chicago stocks advanced again yesterday with a sudden spurt of 4¾ points in National Gypsum featuring the day. This issue accounted for a fifth of all trading in the otherwise quiet 39,000 share session, with most traders unable to account for the surprising strength. A new high of 27 was scored and the close was 26¾.

One report said National Gypsum currently is earning $3 to $4 a share annually. Another was that the company had bettered its position in government contracts under a "competitive zone agreement" it had made with United States Gypsum. Neither rumor was confirmed.

Allied Products A enjoyed a heavy trade, rising 2 points in anticipation of favorable dividend action. Abbott Laboratories moved up 2⅜ to another new top of 110. Gardner Denver in slight turnover was up 3½ to a 1935 high. Borg-Warner advanced better than a point and other motor shares gained fractionally. Houdaille B was most active in the group and up ⅞.

Other issues to gain approximately a point or better were Brown Fence A, Central Illinois Public Service preferred, Crane, Consumers preferred, Independent Pneumatic Tool, Walgreen, and Waukesha Motors.

Arrangements were made yesterday for sale of a Chicago Stock exchange membership for $4,500. This is $500 less than the last previous sale.

LESS HEDGING PRESSURE IN COTTON; PRICES RISE

There was less hedging pressure on cotton yesterday and, with fair commission house buying based on more optomistic trade reports, futures advanced 3 to 8 points in Chicago while other markets were 1 to 9 points higher. Scattered rains were reported in parts of Texas.

Spot interests were heavy buyers of October contracts in New York, and also took December, and there was also evidence of increased outside speculative interest.

Spot cotton closed 5 points higher with New Orleans, 10.80 cents; Galveston and Houston 10.70 cents and New York, 10.90 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound follow:

FLIGHT OF FUNDS TO U. S. EASES AS DOLLAR DECLINES

European Tension Over War Outlook Relaxes.

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The easing of tension over the Italo-Ethiopian situation found ready reflection in a lessened flight of capital from European monetary centers today as well in the quotations for currencies on the foreign exchange market here. The guilder, the most nervous spot in the entire list, moved around excitedly, but through strong outside support managed to close the day at 67.60 cents, up 2 points but 4½ points below the gold point.

Engagements Only 6¾ Millions.

There is every indication that the capital flight has eased, at least temporarily, for today the total engagement of gold abroad for shipment to New York reported at the Federal Reserve bank amounted to only $6,725,000. There were no imports today and earmarked gold was unchanged.

Since the inauguration of the present movement engagements have amounted to $169,800,000 with England contributing $51,600,000, France $59,300,000 and Holland $42,700,000. Of the total 63,500,000 has already been received here while the remainder is en route or awaiting transportation facilities.

Interest Centers on Holland.

Interest today centered almost entirely in the Dutch guilder and the statement of Premier Colijn in his parliamentary address that deflation would lead to devaluation of the guilder but that if the people remain quiet and the flight of capital is checked devaluation could be avoided unless extraordinary circumstances arise.

The statement of the Bank of the Netherlands today showed that gold stocks in the past week decreased 21,000,000 guilders to 541,900,000 guilders. Circulation was 786,100,000 guilder and sight liabilities 832,100,000 guilders, leaving a gold coverage of 65.1 per cent.

Dollar Loses on Pound, Franc.

The pound was outstanding in its performance, rising 1½ cents to close at $4.93. The franc continued its rally and scored an advance of ⅝ point to close at 6.60 cents. As a result the dollar was worth $1.0051, compared with $1.0060 yesterday, in terms of the franc. The lira again advanced and showed a gain of 2 points on the day, closing at 8.15 cents. Belgas were unchanged and the Swiss franc rose 2 points to 32.54.

Make Stabilization Move.

GENEVA, Sept. 24.—British and French delegations in the economic committee of the league of nations assembly recommended today that all governments follow the policy of combining the freeing of trade with the stabilizing of money that Secretary of State Cordell Hull gave the world in the recent United States treaty with Belgium. Offered in the form of a resolution by Edward L. Burgin of the British board of trade, it said one of the ultimate objectives of his government is a return to the international gold standard.
